STEEL MEN OFFER TO ANSWER GATES

Officers of Corporation Tell Stanley Committee They Will Testify Without Being Subpoenaed.

GARY ENDS CHICAGO VISIT

Comes to New York and Will Probably Confer with Officials Before Testifying.

The Steel Trust's version of its acquisition of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company in the panic of 1907, which, on Saturday, was characterized as a "forced sale" by John W. Gates before the Stanley House Committee in Washington, will probably be heard in a few days.

George W. Perkins, one of the United States Steel Corporation Directors, said yesterday that the officials of that concern had notified the Stanley Committee that they would appear willingly and testify. It will not be necessary for the Stanley Committee to issue subpoenas for the Directors and officers. Mr. Perkins added that while their appearance as witnesses would not be accompanied by any "feeling of joy," they did not wish to hamper the investigation in any way.

Mr. Perkins, who spent the day at his home in Riverdale, had no further comment to make on the testimony of Mr. Gates, whose story of the Tennessee Coal and Iron deal and of the manner in which the Steel Corporation was organized, caused such a stir. He only declared that there were "a lot of things" he could tell.

He said he thought J. P. Morgan would be back from Europe some time in August.

Judge William H. Moore, who was mentioned in the testimony of Mr. Gates, is now in Europe. Grant B. Schley, who was named as one of the managers of the controlling syndicate in the Southern steel concern, was ill at his home in Bernardsville, N. J., and could not be seen by reporters.

Oakleigh Thorne, President of the Trust Company of America, which figured also in Mr. Gates's testimony, said that Mr. Gates's story of the acquisition of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company was true as far as it went.

"I am surprised that Mr. Gates stopped where he did," he went on. "Mr. Gates is a fighter, and he was probably very glad to get back at the Morgan people."

Mr. Thorne said that for a long time there has been some feeling of enmity between Mr. Gates and George W. Perkins, dating back to the time when Mr. Perkins, acting for J. P. Morgan & Co., acquired the Louisville & Nashville Railroad from Mr. Gates.

"There is no doubt that the Tennessee Coal and Iron deal was a squeeze," continued Mr. Thorne. "I use that term because it has been used before. The sale to the United States Steel Corporation [illegible] full story of the deal will be told the Stanley Committee before the investigation is finished."

Mr. Thorne said that he had not been called as a witness by the committee.

Mr. Gates and his son, Charles G. Gates, were here all yesterday. They spent the afternoon and early evening automobiling with a party of friends. On their return to the Hotel Plaza, where Mr. Gates and his family reside, Mr. Gates refused to see reporters.

GARY HURRIES TO NEW YORK.

Expected to Consult Heads of Corporation Before Testifying.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 28.—Former Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the United States Steel Corporation, left for New York to-day on a Lake Shore train. With him went E. J. Buffington, President of the Illinois Steel Company, which is the principal Western subsidiary of the billion-dollar combination.

Judge Gary refused to comment on the testimony of John W. Gates before the Steel investigation committee of the House of Representatives, in which the Chicago stock market plunger and former head of the American Steel and Wire Company declared that Andrew Carnegie got $160,000,000 more than he had previously valued his properties at in the organization of the Steel Corporation. The intimation was given, however, that Judge Gary's purpose in cutting short his Western trip and returning to his office in New York was to hold a conference of the chief officers of the United States Steel Corporation before his appearance beore the Congressional committee next Thursday.

Whether the independent companies will be invited into the conference was not stated.

"Judge Gary recognizes that the Congressional investigation into the manufacture and sale of steel products is of the largest importance," said an Illinois steel man to-night to the correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES. "Speaking of the statements made by John W. Gates before the committee on Saturday, Judge Gary declared that no facts with which the public is not already familiar had been brought out.

"When Judge Gary left New York, I am told, he had not the slightest idea that the Republic Steel and Iron Company would put into effect and maintain its cut of $3 a ton in steel bars. It now seems there is no doubt of the company's intention, and Judge Gary, as the executive officer of the United States Steel Corporation, which controls a majority of the American output, deemed it best that the situation should be gone over by the officials of the corporation.

"It is possible that a general reduction in the price of steel products may be agreed upon at the New York conference. It is more probable, however, that several independent companies will join with the Carnegie Steel Company, which already has announced a reduction, in meeting the cut of the Republic, and that no further reductions will be made.

"The principal point in Mr. Gates's testimony, as Judge Gary seemed to understand it, was that Andrew Carnegie got many more millions for his steel holdings than the actual properties were worth. No one ever denied that fact. Mr. Gates himself says the organizers of the United States Steel Corporation acted wisely in eliminating Carnegie from the industrial situation in the United States."

It was learned to-night that Judge William H. Moore, who has a country residence at Lake Geneva, near this city, has been served with a subpoena to appear before the Congressional Committee during the week. Judge Moore has denied himself to interviewers, but it is understood that service was effected upon him by Government process during the latter part of last week.

AUSTRIAN EMPEROR BETTER.

Change of Weather Improves His Catarrhal Trouble—Physicians Hopeful.

VIENNA, May 28.—A change in the weather, permitting Emperor Francis Joseph to go outdoors the last three days, has resulted in a great improvement in the catarrhal condition from which he has been suffering.

The hope is expressed by his physicians that the Emperor will soon be entirely recovered.

DEAD UNDER BURNING AUTO.

Young Ebersole on His First Trip Ran His Machine Over an Embankment.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 28.—Pinioned under the wreckage of an auto he had just purchased, Elbert Ebersole, 21 years old, son of the President of the Arcadia Bank, was burned to death to-day near Breliner. Henry Reiss, 18 years old, his companion, is so badly burned he cannot live.

Willis Hakes, an auto salesman, sat in the rear seat coaching Ebersole, who was driving the car, when the machine approached a sharp curve, the scene of many auto accidents in the past few years. Ebersole was unfamiliar with the road, and instead of taking the turn before reaching the tracks he drove straight across the rails.

The heavy car plowed over the tracks and plunged down a steep embankment on the other side, overturning in its descent. The three men were caught under the machine, the steering post being driven through Ebersole's chest. The gasoline tank was punctured in the descent, and the escaping gasoline caught fire, wrapping the car in a mass of flames.

AUTO KILLS MOTORCYCLIST.

Motor Car Crashed Into Machine Ridden by G. H. Ellsworth.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 28.—Driving a motorcycle at a speed of fifty miles an hour, George H. Ellsworth, a contractor painter, and President of the Rochester Motorcycle Club, came into collision this afternoon with an automobile driven by Clarence M. Baldwin of 529 West 152d Street, New York. Ellsworth was thrown into the air, and, falling upon his wrecked motorcycle, was fatally crushed. He died in twenty minutes.

The accident occurred at Peck's Corners, about fifteen miles south of the city. Fifteen members of the club had been to Canandaigua Lake, and were returning to the city.

Baldwin, who is a demonstrator for the American Locomotive Company, was taking an automobile from Cleveland to Syracuse, where it was to be delivered to a Cleveland business man who was on a wedding tour. Baldwin, not being familiar with the highways, was running slowly. The motor cyclist, being on the wrong side of the road, dashed into the car before he could swerve his machine to one side.

Coroner Kleindienst talked with Baldwin and told him to proceed on his journey.

KILLED IN CYCLE RACE.

Rider Crashed Into Another's Wrecked Machine—Three Others Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 28.—One rider was killed, another fatally hurt, and two others thrown from their machines while traveling at a speed of a mile a minute at the motor cycle races at Hawthorne to-day.

The dead man is Harry Nixon, [illegible] of Dayton, Ohio, [illegible] first race in Chicago. The rider fatally hurt is Paul J. Bailey, who lies at St. Anthony's Hospital with a fractured skull. C. S. Hinkley is in the same hospital with a broken collar bone, and Frank Hart has several bruises. Bailey's home is in New York, but he has spent much of his time in Chicago.

The mishap occurred in a ten-mile race, free for all. When a third of the way around the curve, Hart's rear tire bursted, and the rider shot headlong across the track.

Nixon, close behind, ran headlong into Hart's fallen machine. His motor cycle shot straight into the air, spinning like a top, and hurled its rider across the track against the outside fence, where he dropped.

Bailey and Hinkley next came to grief at the fatal spot. Their machines were totally wrecked.

OWN FAULT, SAYS DYING BOY.

Lad, Hit by an Auto, Clears the Driver of Blame.

An automobile owned and driven by Franklin Nevius of 593 Riverside Drive, a lawyer at 115 Broadway, yesterday afternoon ran over thirteen-year-old James Bowen of 2,176 Broadway while the boy was playing ball in West Seventy-seventh Street, between Broadway and Amsterdam Avenue. Nevius placed the lad in the car and hurried him to Roosevelt Hospital, where he was said to be dying.

At the hospital the boy told Patrolman Stroh, who followed the automobile in a taxicab, that he himself was to blame for the accident. Dr. McCreery found the boy suffering from several broken ribs, a probable fracture of the skull, and internal injuries.

BLAMELESS, BUT WILL PAY.

Clergyman to Turn Over His Fortune to Parents of Killed Girl.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., May 28.—The Rev. Thomas Grieves, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Greenwich, announced to-day that he would sell all his possessions and give the proceeds to the parents of little Mary Maginn of Saratoga Springs, whom he recently ran down with his automobile and killed. The car has already been sold, and the rector's cottage at Riverside is upon the market.

A Coroner's jury recently held Mr. Grieves blameless for the accident, but he has grieved over it greatly.

AUTO CHASER INJURED.

Policeman Lands in Second Car, While One He Was Pursuing Escapes.

An auto without lights passed Bicycle Policeman Mills of the Ralph Avenue Station in Bushwick Avenue, near Conway Street, Brooklyn, at midnight last night. Three women in the tonneau laughed when the policeman shouted to them to stop, and Mills started in pursuit.

A few blocks along an automobile owned and driven by Frank P. Belknap of Port Richmond, S. I., turned out of a side street and Mills crashed into it. He was thrown up into the front seat of the auto, and his head, face, arms, and legs were badly cut.

Dr. Pascall was called and took the policeman to the Bradford Street Hospital. The auto without lights escaped.

THREE BOYS DIE IN A FIRE.

Were Asleep in a Livery Stable When It Burned—Twelve Horses Lost.

KITTANNING, Penn., May 28.—Three boys were burned to death early to-day when the livery stable of Vance Jewart of Sagamore, near here, was destroyed by fire. The dead are:

JEWART, EARL, aged 12.
JEWART, JESSE, aged 10.
FLANNIGAN, HUGH, aged 14.

The boys spent Saturday night in Pittsburg. Returning home late, they went to sleep in the livery stable. Fire was discovered at 4 o'clock this morning, and the boys were burned to death before it was known they were in the stable. Twelve horses also were burned.

BENEDICT'S YACHT IS ASHORE OFF CUBA

The Virginia, with New Yorkers Aboard, Lies Near an Isle West of Havana.

ALL ARE REPORTED SAFE

Yacht Expected to Float at High Tide—Commodore Sailed from Here April 5 for Amazon Cruise.

HAVANA, May 28.—Wireless reports received here to-night report that the American yacht Virginia, belonging to Commodore E. C. Benedict of New York went ashore on Colorado Reefs, five miles northeast of Jutias Cay Light, on the north coast of Pinar del Rio, and that it had asked for assistance.

The tug Venus was dispatched to the scene from Havana, and the Cuban gunboat Baire, which is patrolling the coast of Pinar del Rio, was ordered by wireless to seek the stranded yacht and extend aid.

All are reported safe. It is expected that the yacht will get off at high tide. It is said that Mr. Benedict's son and a party of friends are on board. They have been cruising in Caribbean waters.

At his home here last night a caretaker said that letters had been received from Mr. Benedict recently saying that the party was on its way home after a delightful cruise.

Jutias Cay is a marshy island extending about three miles east and west, and is twelve miles in circumference. According to the pilotbooks, the only habitation there is a fisherman's hut at its western end. It is separated from the Cuban coast by a channel navigable only with difficulty by small boats and canoes.

Commodore Benedict, who is a New York broker, sailed from here in the steam yacht Virginia on April 5 last for a two months' cruise up the Amazon River. His guests are Colgate Hoyt, James McCutcheon, Harry Rowe Shelley, Dr. F. Montgomery Smith, Harry E. Robinson, Lamont Dominick, and Edward Beers.

The yacht belongs to the estate of Isaac Stern, from which the Commodore chartered it. His objective point was the upper Amazon, about 1,000 miles from the coast. The Virginia sailed from the New York Yacht Club's East Twenty-third Street Station.

The Virginia is one of the most famous steam yachts in American waters. She is the only yacht built in this country from the plans of George L. Watson, the famous English naval architect. She is 200 feet over all, 165 feet water line, 26 feet beam, and [illegible] knots an hour, and her spacious coal bunkers give her a cruising radius of 8,000 miles without recoaling. She carries six boats on her davits, including a twenty-six-foot unsinkable power lifeboat. In addition the Virginia has a continuous sun deck, with pilothouse and Captain's room on the upper deck. The Virginia has made one other cruise to South America, two to Europe, and three to the West Indies.

When he left New York it was Commodore Benedict's plan to stop on the way to the Amazon at several West Indian ports for the purpose of sightseeing.

In his own yacht, the Oneida, Commodore Benedict made a similar trip several years ago and encountered rough weather. Accompanied by a party of friends and business associates he went as far up the great Amazon as Manaos, the farthermost point up the famous river ever reached by a steam yacht. While at Manaos the Commodore and his party were entertained in lavish style by the natives. On leaving Manaos the Commodore presented the rowing association there with a gold cup, which is called the Benedict Challenge Cup, and is rowed for annually by the oarsmen along the Amazon.

In his little Oneida Commodore Benedict has made several long trips. He is known more as a real sailor than a mere yachtsman. He prefers extended cruises to lying in some landlocked port. Only last Fall he came from Bermuda in the Oneida in the teeth of a hurricane that swept the sea at the rate of 80 miles an hour. Despite the gale and high seas the Commodore left the harbor of Hamilton at the time he decided upon and followed the big liner Trent in the direction of New York.

For three days and nights on that trip no one on board, save a couple of the crew who were lashed to the bridge, left the Oneida's cabin. The stanch little craft survived the tremendous buffeting with only a few superficial injuries. The Commodore's friends on board admitted that they were vastly pleased when the Oneida was sighted off the Hook flying signals, "All safe and well."

NEW YACHT HITS THE ROCKS.

The Hoqua Was on Her Maiden Trip—Reaches Pier Before Filling.

Special to The New York Times.

SANDUSKY, Ohio, May 28.—The beautiful $30,000 power yacht Houqua owned by A. A. Augustus of Cleveland, while on her maiden trip from the plant of the Matthews Boat Company at Port Clinton to Cleveland this afternoon, struck the rocks near the outer Cedar Point jetty. A hole about three feet in diameter was staved in the boat's bow, and she began to sink rapidly.

Capt. Shaw of Cleveland, who was in command of the yacht, headed for the Government pier at Cedar Point and succeeded in getting it in shallow water before the boat filled. Aboard the boat were a number of persons from Cleveland, who accompanied Morris Grover of Cleveland to Port Clinton Saturday to witness the launching of his new craft, Eleanor II.

The party left Port Clinton about 10 o'clock bound for Cleveland. The yacht was making about twenty miles an hour when it struck the rocks about a thousand feet off the jetty. It lurched to one side and came to a standstill. Panic reigned for a time among the party.

The party aboard the boat were brought to Sandusky in a naphtha launch and left late this afternoon for their homes in Cleveland.

SON FOR WINSTON CHURCHILL

British Home Secretary's Wife Gives Birth to a Son.

LONDON, May 28.—Mrs. Winston Spencer Churchill, wife of the Home Secretary, to-day gave birth to a son.

Mrs. Churchill formerly was Miss Clementine Hozier, daughter of the late Sir Henry Montagu Hozier. She was married to Mr. Churchill in 1908.

In The Times next Sunday will be published, in the best pictorial section in the United States, excellent reproductions of photographs of interesting news events.

DRIVE FAMILY OUT TO ROB THEIR HOME

Four Victims in Their Nightclothes Flee Down the Fire Escapes.

THREE BURGLARS CAPTURED

Harlem Folk Call the Police and Gang Is Surprised at Work—One Shot Leaving the House.

Driving victims in their nightclothes from their apartment that they might be free to do work unmolested is the latest method of burglars here. Peter Corrigan, his wife, and their two-year-old baby, who live on the ground floor of 118 East 116th Street, and Frederick Wilson, with his wife and baby, who were visiting, were awakened by four men and forced to flee by way of the fire-escape to the rear yard, thence through an adjoining house to the next street.

The burglars will have time to think over the results of their daring, however, for Corrigan notified two policemen, who found the men at work. One was caught trying to use the same means of escape the Corrigans had used, while two others were arrested later on the street. One had been shot by the policeman while endeavoring to escape and the other had stayed by him.

Two of the burglars were held by Magistrate Corrigan in the Harlem Police Court yesterday morning. They said they were John Hoffman, teamster, 1,752 Second Avenue, and James Scanlon, machinist, 1,752 Second Avenue. The third man was not able to leave Harlem Hospital, where he is suffering from a bullet wound in his right leg.

It was about 3 o'clock yesterday morning when Corrigan was awakened by a hand on his door. He called out and the man went away. Corrigan generally keeps the door unlocked, but he arose then and locked it.

Soon after he heard several men come down the hall and rap on his door. He asked who was there. He was informed that it didn't matter who was there, the door had better be opened. [illegible]

"There are four of us here," said the voice, "and if you don't open the door we'll shoot the lock through."

"All right," answered Corrigan. "Wait till I put some clothes on and I'll open the door."

Corrigan told Wilson to climb out on the fire-escape from the kitchen window, go through the rear yard and go through another house to the street, and then look for a policeman. They hustled the women, who only took time to put on shawls over their nightdresses, out the same way. Corrigan had an idea he might be able to keep the men out, but a renewed banging on the door, with curses from without, caused him to change his mind, and he joined the fleeing party.

The women, each carrying her baby, were assisted down the fire-escape to the areaway. Several boards were missing from the fence, and through the opening they made their way to a house that fronts on 115th Street.

On 115th Street the women were left to themselves and the men started after a policeman. At Lexington Avenue they found Patrolman Dodd, to whom they told their story. He was not inclined to believe them at first, but the scantiness of their attire was corroboration and he started with them to their home on 116th Street. On the way they were joined by Policeman Wilson.

They entered the house quetly. But the thieves must have had a man on watch, for they were heard. A chair had been placed against the shattered door from the inside. As the policemen worked to get the door open, they heard the men run through the hall to the kitchen.

When they got the door open, only one man was in sight. He was at the window that led to the fire-escape and freedom. Both policemen shouted, but the man never paused. Though shots from the policemen's guns raked the passage, he made a leap for the window and disappeared.

The four pursuers were close after. Both policemen took the descent from the fire escape at a jump. When they reached the ground the escaping burglar was scrambling through the fence. They pounced upon him just as he was getting to his feet on the other side. The others had escaped, no trace of them being found, although the policemen searched cellars and backyards all around. They took their prisoner to the station house, where he proved to be Hoffman. Corrigan made the complaint against him.

The policemen told the Lieutenant they believed they had hit the man at whom they had fired, and said they would search the streets in the section. The hospitals were notified to hold any one who applied for treatment for gunshot wounds.

At 106th Street and Lexington Avenue the two policemen came upon a man sitting on a stoop. They asked him what he was doing there. He told them that his mother was sick, and that he and a friend had come out to look for a doctor. The friend, he said, was close at hand and would soon rejoin him. As he was talking to them, the policemen noticed he seemed too weak to stand and that blood was soaking through his trousers.

They pretended to believe his story and sauntered away, but they hid to await the return of the other man. He came back in a short time. Then Dodd and Wilson went up to the pair and placed both under arrest. At the station house the men could give no satisfactory explanation of their presence in the neighborhood. They protested they had no share in the burglary, but the sick mother was found to be untrue.

The wounded man was Arthur White, a plumber, of 1,929 Second Avenue. Dr. Cole of Harlem Hospital found White suffering from a bullet wound in the right thigh, and removed him to the hospital. The prisoner was weak from loss of blood and from walking. The wounded man's friend was Scanlon.

During the short time they were in the Corrigan home, the burglars ransacked the place. Bureaus had been opened and their contents were strewn over the floor. Everything was upside down, but the only thing taken was a pocketbook which had been under the pillow of Mrs. Corrigan's bed. It contained less than $4.

The two women and their babies apparently suffered nothing by their exposure. Yesterday afternoon they declared themselves no worse for the experience.

TWO GET 401 MILES IN PARIS-TURIN RACE

TWELVE AVIATORS START

Nine More to Fly To-day in $100,000 Air Trip via Rome—Spectators Barred from Field.

PARIS, May 28.—Profiting by the lessons of last week's catastrophe, when at the start of the Paris to Madrid race M. Berteaux, the Minister of War, was killed and Premier Monis badly injured, the organizers of the second great air contest, from Paris to Turin, sent the competitors away with record speed and precision to-day.

Not the slightest mishap marred the occasion. The new Minister of War, Gen. Goiron; Antoine Monis, son of the Premier, who was slightly injured in the accident a week ago; the Italian Ambassador, Signor Tittoni, and several high officials were allowed on the field, but were kept well behind the starting line. A large assemblage of people were kept out of the danger zone by imposing lines of troops.

The weather was perfect. Twelve out of twenty-one competitors were out for the start when the signal bomb was fired at 6 o'clock in the morning. The machines were sent off in rapid succession, ten leaving within a few minutes, and the entire number being away by 7 o'clock. The remaining nine entrants, including Pierre Vedrine, the Frenchman who won the Paris to Madrid race, will start to-morrow or Tuesday. Vedrine is now on his way back to Paris, leaving Madrid for this city to-night.

The first to cross the line to-day was Roland Garros, who after making many plucky efforts to finish in the Paris to Madrid flight was forced by a series of mishaps to abandon the race. Garros drove a monoplane. He was followed by Andre Beaumont, who rapidly overtook Garros and arrived first at Dijon, the initial recording station of the long journey.

The two continued in the same order, reporting at Lyons and finally landing at Avignon. They covered the 645 kilometers (401 miles) from the aerodrome at Buc, a short distance outside the French capital, to Avignon in 12 hours and 45 minutes, and 13 hours and 35 minutes, respectively, and decided to spend the night there. They will finish the remaining 220 kilometers of the first stage of the flight to Nice to-morrow morning, a total distance of 865 kilometers, or 538 miles.

The other competitors early in the journey were the victims of mishaps, but nothing more serious than "the breaking of wood," and only two of them, Henri Molla, representing France, and the German aviator Frey, had got as far as [illegible] The propeller of his machine was twisted and part of the frame broken, but he himself was not hurt.

The race was organized by the Paris Petit Parisien, and the prizes aggregate more than $100,000. The second stage of the journey is from Nice to Rome, the recording stations being Genoa and Pisa, and the third stage is from Rome to Turin, the official stopping places being Florence and Bologna. The total distance is a little more than 1,300 miles, and the competitors have until June 15 to accomplish the distance.

FLUNG FROM BLAZING AIRSHIP.

Italian Airman Killed in 650-Foot Fall Before Wife and Children.

VOGHERA, Italy, May 28.—The Italian aviator Cirri, while making an aeroplane flight near here to-day, fell from a height of 650 feet and was killed. Twenty thousand persons, including Cirri's wife and children, were viewing the exhibition.

Cirri used a Blériot monoplane. He had completed a number of evolutions, when suddenly the motor exploded and in a moment the wings of the machine were on fire. The aviator fell headlong from his seat.

TO CHURCH BY BALLOON.

Two Aeronauts Make Trip from Lowell to Topsfield and Attend Services.

TOPSFIELD, Mass., May 28.—The balloon as a means of conveyance to church was utilized to-day by Charles J. Glidden of Boston and J. J. Van Valkenburg of South Framingham in a journey from Lowell to this town—twenty miles.

The aeronauts made an early morning ascension from Lowell, arising at 3:30, and promised their friends to land near a church and attend services.

After floating before a west wind for an hour and a half, during which several photographs were taken of the rising sun, two church spires were noted below. The balloon was brought down and struck ground 300 feet from the Methodist Episcopal Church of Topsfield.

The aeronauts waited until the hour of service and then joined the congregation. The pastor in his address referred to the fact that two of the congregation had dropped in to the service from the skies.

COLQUITT DEFIES CHURCH.

Texas Governor Refuses to Resign as a Methodist—Prohibition the Issue.

Special to The New York Times.

GALVESTON, Texas, May 28.—Gov. Colquitt refuses to resign his membership in the Methodist Church, although requested to do so by the local religious body. Instead he will carry his case to the international conference. The trouble was caused by the Governor's stand on the liquor question. He is anti-prohibition. At the time of his election, however, the proposal to change the State Constitution by submitting a prohibition amendment also carried. This was strongly favored by the Methodists and since the election they have openly criticised the Governor because he opposed it.

In his defensive declaration the Governor says:

"A change in the Texas Constitution as embodied in the proposed amendment is a political question, and I deny the right of preachers to take the Methodist Church into politics or to allow their pulpits to be used by politicians for political discussions, in the course of which they may seek to vilify and malign those who do not agree with them. I challenge you to show me anything in the discipline of the Methodist Church or rules and regulations of the society which commits the church to prohibition.

"My forefathers in Georgia labored to establish the Methodist Church, and some of them had much to do in prescribing its rules and regulations, and they did not put prohibition into the Confession of Faith nor did they establish it as one of the rules governing the society. I certainly shall not concede that my pastor or members of the Methodist Church have any right to control my convictions on political questions, and prohibition is not a religious issue."

AUGUSTUS THOMAS DENIES

That Management of New Theatre Has Been Offered to Him.

Augustus Thomas, the playwright, returned yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner George Washington. Mr. Thomas spent three weeks in England. He said that the management of The New Theatre had not been offered to him.

Mr. Thomas said that he had visited several theatres in London, and he still thinks America has better plays and more vigorous writers and that American actors are the equal of the English actors.

HALLEY'S COMET FOLLOWED.

Two Photographs of It Taken at the Lick Observatory Last Week.

SAN JOSE, Cal., May 28.—W. W. Campbell, Director of Lick Observatory, in a report on Halley's comet, issued to-day, said:

"Halley's comet, which was nearest to the sun and to the earth and at its greatest brilliancy more than a year ago, has been followed on its journey into distant space with the telescopes of Lick Observatory.

"The comet is now a little further than Jupiter is from the sun; that is, about 500,000,000 miles, but Astronomer Curtis photographed it with the Crossley reflector on two nights last week, exactly in the predicted position. The comet is now 60 per cent. further from the sun than it was when its approach to the sun was discovered photographically in September, 1909."

HOLD WESLEYAN STUDENTS.

Eight of Them Spend Ten Hours in Cells for an Escapade in Middletown.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., May 28.—Eight Wesleyan freshmen returning from their annual class dinner were arrested at an early hour this morning and kept in the city lockup for almost ten hours as the result of an escapade in which sixty of their class participated. The students at 2 o'clock this morning went to the grounds of the Russel Library, where a large stack of Revolutionary cannon balls are kept. Each student in the party seized a cannon ball and climbing to the top of College Street Hill commenced rolling the balls down the incline to the sidewalks. The police arrested eight of them.

All were taken to the station house and locked up until noon, when they were released on bail to appear in the police court to-morrow morning.

FOR CARDINAL'S JUBILEE.

All Baltimore to Help Celebrate Mgr. Gibbons's Admission to Priesthood.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 28.—With all the committees hard at work, plans will be perfected this week for the big nonsectarian demonstration to be held at the Fifth Regiment Armory on the afternoon of June 6 in honor of the dual jubilee of Cardinal Gibbons, the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood and the twenty-fifth anniversary of his elevation to the Cardinalate.

The Reception Committee, of which Bishop John Gardner Murray of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Maryland is Chairman, will meet to-morrow morning, and the Committee on Special Invitations, of which ex-Mayor Mahool is Chairman, will meet to-morrow afternoon. On Tuesday morning in the Mayor's reception room the Executive Committee, of which Gen. Murray Vandiver is Chairman, will meet.

The Committee on Finance met yesterday and decided to send out 4,000 letters asking for subscriptions. These letters will be sent out to-morrow, each of them containing a post card on which the recipient of the letter is asked to write the amount he is willing to contribute. About $1,000 is already subscribed.

BROKER'S DAUGHTER GONE.

Police Asked to Search for 15-Year-Old Helen Mumford of Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 28.—Police of New York, Philadelphia, and other Eastern cities, in response to messages sent from Chicago, to-day began a search for Helen Mumford, the 15-year-old daughter of William O. Mumford, a grain broker of this city, who disappeared from her home last Tuesday.

The Eastern cities were notified of the girl's disappearance after her father had suggested she might have gone there to visit relatives. A thorough search of this city failed to reveal the least trace of the girl.

A tilt with Mr. Mumford's housekeeper, Mrs. Mary Smith, and imagined jealousy of her older sister, are believed to have been the motives which prompted the girl to run away.

Mr. Mumford did not report the disappearance of his daughter to the police until four days after she left.

The last seen of the girl was on Tuesday morning when she set off ostensibly for the Englewood high school. She is 5 feet 8 inches tall and looks much older than her years. She has blond hair and blue eyes and weighs about 140 pounds.

STUDENT ARRESTS GOV. DIX.

Spring Day Frolic at Cornell Leads to Fining of Executive.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 28.—Friends of Henry Koch, a Cornell Law School student from Brooklyn, asserted to-day that he was the only person who had ever arrested Gov. John A. Dix. In the excitement of the Spring Day doings yesterday the affair was overlooked, but it became known to-day that the Governor had been brought before the bar of the "Court of Injustice," which the law students set up as their contribution to the celebration.

Many an innocent passerby was seized and mulcted, but it remained for Koch to bring in the most distinguished prisoner Spring Day has ever known. He walked up to the Governor as the latter entered the grounds, and, getting by Commander de Kay, the Governor's aid, said:

"Governor, you are under arrest."

Commander de Kay interfered, saying: "You cannot arrest the Governor of the State."

President Schurman of Cornell, who was on the grounds, held against the protest, saying that the Cornell campus on Spring Day was the one place where no one was immune. Koch took his prisoner to a tent where the court was sitting. He charged Gov. Dix with making eyes at the Spring Day girls, and a fine of $1 was imposed. It was promptly paid.

ARRESTS IN PLOT TO SLAY MADERO

STORY OF A $50,000 BRIBE

Viljoen Said It Was to Bind Him and Orozco to Betray the Revolutionary Chief.

SONORA DISOBEYS MADERO

Legislature Refuses to Elect His Choice for Governor — Reyes a Candidate for the Presidency.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, May 28.—Daniel de Villiers was arrested in the lobby of the Hotel Orendorff at 9 o'clock to-night, charged with conspiracy against the life of Francisco I. Madero, Jr., leader of the Mexican revolution. The warrant was issued by District Attorney Peyton H. Edwards of El Paso County, following information given him of an attempt of de Villiers and two other men to bribe Gen. Pascual Orozco and Gen. Ben J. Viljoen, the highest ranking officers in Madero's Northern army to desert their chief.

De Villiers was talking to the clerk of the Hotel Orendorff when Deputy Sheriff Brown appeared and placed him under arrest.

"What's the charge against me, I demand to know?" he exclaimed excitedly, as Brown started to lead him away.

"Conspiracy to murder, maybe," Brown replied. He took his prisoner through the lobby and to an automobile, which took them to the El Paso jail.

As soon as de Villiers was under arrest it was announced by a representative of Madero that W. F. Dunn, an American, said to be a native of San Antonio, Texas, had been arrested this afternoon in Monterey, Mexico, charged with being in the conspiracy to take the life of Madero. The third alleged conspirator, a Mexican named Cadena, has not yet been arrested.

Knew Viljoen in South Africa.

De Villiers formerly lived in South Africa and knew Gen. Viljoen when he was a member of the Boer Senate. Because of that acquaintance, it is declared, he was chosen as the man to make a definite proposition to Viljoen to desert Madero and take Orozco with him. De Villiers is said to have offered $50,000 to Viljoen to betray his chief, and said: "There is a fortune in it for both of us if you will watch Madero and help us make friends with Orozco."

He is quoted as saying that Dunn, Cadena, and himself represented men of great wealth who were powerful members of what is known in Mexico as the Cientifico Party, which was formed by Señor Limantour and had Ramon Corral as one of its chiefs.

Viljoen went to Madero and told of the offer. Madero told Viljoen to lead the conspirators to think he was willing to turn traitor and to learn all that he could as to the identity of those who were behind the plot. Madero then called in Orozco and gave him similar instructions.

A short time after this conference Viljoen returned to El Paso. He found de Villiers and Dunn waiting for him in the lobby of the Hotel Sheldon. Viljoen quietly whispered to de Villiers to accompany him to his room and bring Dunn. They then went to Viljoen's room, where in a little while they were joined by Cadena.

According to Viljoen's story de Villiers asked Viljoen if he was ready to talk business, and Viljoen said he was ready to listen to whatever proposition the three had to make. De Villiers then stated that he and his companions were empowered to negotiate for men of great wealth and influence who were anxious to overthrow Madero. He added that in the opinion of those powerful men one of the surest and best means to attain this end was for Viljoen and Orozco to join the opposition.

$50,000 the Preliminary Bribe.

The subject of the monetary reward that Viljoen and Orozco were to receive then came up, Viljoen says, and a cash retainer of $50,000 in American money was finally agreed upon to bind the bargain. One of the men, said to have been De Villiers, thereupon made a preliminary payment of several hundred dollars to Viljoen as a pledge of good faith. One of the three was then ordered to go to Mexico City and get the rest of the money. None would agree to use the telegraph, nor would they listen to a proposition to make the payment by check. Those whom they represented, they pointed out, would not stand for any such proceeding as that under the changed political conditions in Mexico.

While the alleged bribers were busy with Viljoen and Orozco the agents of Madero, and also of President de la Barra, were busy getting at the bottom of the plot. This afternoon, according to a telegram, Dunn, who left here to get the money, arrived in Monterey, on his way to Mexico City. He was taken from the train and arrested on a charge of conspiring against the life of Madero.

When Viljoen was asked about the story to-night he said that it was true and that $50,000 was the amount offered him to betray Madero. He also said it was true that the alleged conspirators had told him they represented men high in the councils of the so-called Cientifico party.

Viljoen says that among other things de Villiers asked was to let him know in advance the train and route Madero would take in going to the City of Mexico. Why this information was wanted Viljoen says was not disclosed.

Viljoen says he was told that in the event Madero was overthrown Rosendo Pinado, a member of the Mexican Congress and said to be prominent among the Cientificos, was to be made President. He also says he was told that thousands of guns for use in a new revolution were stored in the State of Coahuila.

Sonora Legislature Disobedient.

Word was received here to-day that the Legislature of Sonora had named as Provisional Governor Avelino Espinosa of Hermosillo, a well-known lawyer. Francisco I. Madero, Jr., named for the post José Maria Maytoreno, and the naming of Espinosa is in direct opposition to his wishes. This is the same trouble that was encountered in Coahuila over the choice of Señor Carranza.

Maytoreno, however, will be the Provisional Governor. If necessary troops will be sent into Hermosillo to see that he is duly inducted into office. Señor Madero and President de la Barra are in accord in the matter. Sonora is the home State of ex-Vice President Ramon Corral.

Señor Madero spent another quiet day to-day, and did not go to his office in the Custom House. His intention now is to leave for Mexico City next Friday morning. One of his advisers was asked to-day why he was delaying his departure.

"Señor Madero wants the Mexican people to recognize Señor de la Barra as the President of their country," he replied, "and he is averse to doing anything that might embarrass the President. He himself fully recognizes Señor de la Barra, and he will do all within his power to secure for him the recognition of the public. He knows that if he had gone to Mexico City immediately after the Diaz resignation he would have been received as a great conqueror or something of that sort, which would have meant for the time being, at least, the overshadowing of Señor de la Barra. That is the reason of the delay."

Madero Saves a Newspaper.

On representations made to him that efforts were being exerted to suppress the publication of El Pais, a radical newspaper in Mexico City, Señor Madero late last night sent an urgent telegram to President de la Barra stating that he would oppose any limitation of the freedom of the press. His message read:

"I have heard that a newspaper is to be suspended. Please do your best to see that there be no persecutions of the press, as it would be injurious to the prestige of the new régime."

In an interview he pointed out that it was one of the conditions of the peace agreement that there should be liberty of the press.

Señor Madero last night received a telegram that Gen. Geronimo Trevino, Chief of one of the military zones with headquarters at Monterey, had resigned. He said he would urge Trevino to retain the office. The importance of Trevino's position lies in the fact that he succeeded Gen. Reyes as Governor of Nuevo Leon after the latter had shown Presidential aspirations, and he is now known as an implacable opponent of Gen. Reyes. Because of this fact the Madero party is anxious to keep him in the field.

It is stated that Gen. Viljoen will leave for Lower California Thursday or Friday to begin the campaign for the subjugation of the Magonistas. His chief subordinate in that campaign will be Major Raoul Madero, a younger brother of the revolutionary leader.

REYES SEEKS THE PRESIDENCY.

May Be the Leading Candidate Against Madero in Elections.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, May 28.—An announcement that Gen. Bernardo Reyes will be a candidate for President has added great interest to the electoral campaign which is now opening. That the Maderists fear Gen. Reyes is no secret, in the light of the strong objection which Francisco I. Madero, Jr., registered at the first peace conference against the return of the man whom he classified as being opposed to granting terms such as Señor Limantour and other more fair-minded Federals might see fit to make.

Two years ago Reyes was immensely popular, and the Reyesta movement swept over the country. In the light of recent events it appears that it would have been as successful, or even more so than the Maderist movement, as Reyes was highly popular with the army. Reyes turned a deaf ear to all propositions, even when his friends ceased to insist on his running for President against Gen. Diaz, and wanted to compromise on the basis that he run for Vice President with Diaz.

Reyes May Not Be so Strong.

So much discontent had been manifested that the Government was frightened. Reyes was called to Mexico City, and is understood to have been required to declare his intentions. As he protested his loyalty to Diaz he was required to leave on a military mission to Europe, which the public accepted as a banishment. In refusing to head his party at that time, when its members were ready to offer their fortunes and lives to support him, he lost many followers, most of them going to Madero, following the promulgation of the plan of San Luis Potosi. Consequently his weight in the present campaign is questionable, yet as his personality is unquestionably stronger than Madero's, and the prestige of a military man is powerful in Mexico, he is certain to be Madero's principal rival.

Gen. Felix Diaz will be Reyes's running mate. The determination of Reyes to have a hand in Mexico's affairs was shown by his recent plan of crossing to Guatemala from Havana and meeting Felix Diaz in Oaxaca to head a counter-revolution. This was the intention when it appeared that Madero was going to attempt to retain the provisional Presidency. His resignation and the elevation of Señor de la Barra to that post removed the necessity of fighting at present. Regardless of the result of the election, it is feared that the defeated candidates will claim dishonesty and fight in the open.

De la Barra May Balk.

It is now said that President de la Barra resents the open manner in which Madero speaks of directing the affairs of the nation during the ad interim period. Señor de la Barra insists on handling matters as he sees best. While all concerned consider him a man of no great strength, there is a chance that he may be a stronger character than any one dreamed heretofore.

The Madero forces are having trouble in maintaining order in many towns, while brigandage is flourishing, as in Colonial times, in the rural districts. The effort to waylay the Diaz train is generally regretted here. The public felt that his exit under the cover of darkness had been most uncalled for, but, with the determined effort to stop the train, it is now believed that Diaz knew more of the forces menacing him than did the people generally. Ugly rumors are afloat as to who inspired such a course. Friends of Diaz are already trying to unravel the plot. It is evident that the Vera Cruz rebels had to be notified from this end.

Printed matter from the Lower California Socialists is being distributed throughout the republic inviting all Mexicans to join their cause, which has as its object the setting up of a new republic on the peninsula. The disbanding of the rebel army may contribute many recruits to the Socialists.

Hopes to Divide Large Estates.

Manuel Calero, the new Minister of Industry and Agriculture, took the oath of office to-day. He says he will begin the task of the division of great rural estates as soon as he has the proper authorization from Congress.

Mrs. Luz Cosio de Lopez, daughter of ex-Minister of War Cosio, has resigned as the head of the Mexican Red Cross, and Mrs. de la Barra has been selected in her place. Mrs. Lopez brought the Red Cross into local disrepute by stating that the organization would not attend the rebel wounded, as few of its members were in sympathy with their plans. Her attitude resulted in the formation of the Mexican White Cross. The latter society in the few weeks of its existence has completely outgrown the older order.

Last night a number of officers of the Federal army, who fought in the battle of Juarez, arrived here and were received with all enthusiasm by the rebel soldiers.

The work which was suspended recently on the new legislative palace is to be resumed if a bill by the new Minister of Finance, Ernesto Madero, passes, providing $2,000,000 to carry on the work. The new Minister has not hesitated to dip into the well-filled coffers left by Minister Limantour. On his first day in office yesterday he entered bills providing for the expenditure of more than $8,000,000, the larger portion of which is to be used to pay the debts of the revolution.

Business conditions here show little evidence of betterment. With the lull in the fighting most of the stores are making every effort to reduce their stocks. Great fear is entertained that the parity of the peso cannot be maintained, and failures of several important houses would not be unexpected.

The House of Deputies yesterday voted that the new elections be held on Oct. 1. The matter will go to the Senate to-morrow. It is understood that President de la Barra opposes this date, insisting that the bill be amended to provide elections on Sept. 1.

Newspaper Correspondents in Danger

Two newspaper correspondents in Cuernavaca, one an American and the other a Mexican, are threatened with death for an article which appeared in yesterday's issue of El Heraldo Mexicano, the afternoon edition of the Mexican Herald, and this morning in the Mexican Herald. It characterized Chief Zapata as a bandit.

The truth of the matter is that the story was local, having been obtained from a passenger just returned from Cuernavaca. It was published without a date line, but, in their ignorance, the leaders in the resort thought that anything about that place was the work of the local correspondents. The officials of the American company owning the two papers have wired to Gen. Asunzolo advising him that the Cuernavaca correspondents were not responsible. Robles Dominguez, the local representative of Madero, was notified and has wired both Zapata and Asunzolo to protect the correspondents. Lawlessness in Cuernavaca is continuing.

There was a bloody fight at noon today at San Luis Potosi between the police and the Maderist soldiers and the people. Two policemen were killed and four wounded, and two Maderists were killed and two wounded. A policeman attempted to arrest an inebriate and the people tried to stop him. Other policemen ran to the assistance of their comrade. Members of the crowd then opened fire. The Maderist guard ran to the rescue and were also fired on. There is great unrest in that city, and further trouble is feared.

Warm Welcome to Dr. Gomez.

No less than 10,000 people were at the railroad station to-night to greet Dr. Vasquez Gomez. The train could hardly get into the yards. The people escorted Madero's chief aid through the principal streets in carriages, and from the balconies above came showers of flowers. In a short talk delivered from his carriage shortly after his arrival Dr. Gomez called on the people to help the officials of the new régime in making it a success.

"If by any chance the new Government should fail," he said, "it would mean that the liberties bought at so great a price would have to be won all over at a higher cost. Lawlessness having its rise in legitimate enthusiasm is nevertheless lawlessness, and its continuance will greatly hamper the government of the people."

DIAZ RECEIVES NO VISITORS.

Keeps to His Room Overlooking the Gulf at Vera Cruz.

VERA CRUZ, May 28.—Gen. Diaz spent Sunday in quiet. He rested most of the day, denying himself to visitors, with the exception of members of his immediate party. From the window of his room he has glimpses of the Gulf. A sea breeze to-day gave great relief to the residents of this torrid port.

Crowds gathered around the house where the former President is staying, apparently on watch for any chance occurrences, and keeping close vigil in spite of the blistering sun. There were no demonstrations, the people seemingly being content merely to discuss the situation. Near by an electric plant droned like a great beehive. Sentries paced the verandas, and the whole neighborhood looked like barracks, as every house is filled with soldiers.

La Opinion, a local newspaper, in its leading article to-day invites Gen. Diaz to live here.

"Porfirio Diaz, we repeat, has not fallen; he has risen again," says the paper. "The Mexican people are noble and generous, and know how to measure what they owe to the Porfirian administrations. History will in time make a just balance of the bad and good that the people owe this extraordinary man. Oh! that Gen. Diaz, as an example to other Spanish-American nations, would pass his remaining years in his own country; here, in Vera Cruz, in sight of the sea, seeing in this port the prosperity of the whole country."

SEVEN SOCIALISTS SHOT.

Maderists Tried Them on Charges of Robbery and Extortion.

Special to The New York Times.

TUCSON, Arizona, May 28.—Seven Socialist insurrecto officers, who had been tried by a Maderist military tribunal on charges of robbery and extortion to the extent of $60,000 in the Altar district of Northwestern Sonora, were taken a mile outside the town of Altar yesterday and shot to death. The dead included Capt. Cardoza, former jefe politico of Tubatam; one American, a Russian, two California Mexicans, and two from the Altar district. Their names were kept secret.

The men were former members of the Berthold command at Mexicali. Their trial lasted more than a week. The bodies were buried near where they were killed. A bulletin was sent by telegraph to the principal Juntas along the border reading: "The Provisional Government of the District of Altar announces that seven officers convicted of outrageous and unwarlike acts were shot and killed this afternoon while attempting to escape."

SEEK THE DEFEAT OF GAMBLING BILLS

Real Aim Is to Permit Resumption of Race Track Betting, Says Canon Chase.

APPEAL TO LEGISLATURE

Assistant District Attorney Elder Joins in Protest Against the Gittins Measures.

The Rev. Canon Sheafe Chase of Christ Church, Brooklyn, sent an open letter yesterday to members of the State Legislature asking them to defeat the Gittins bills now before the Legislature, and which are designed to change the penal law against gambling. Canon Chase points out that if the bills are passed they will confuse the situation in the interest of the bookmakers, and actually allow gambling on the race tracks. He also incloses a letter from Assistant District Attorney Robert H. Elder of Brooklyn, who states that "the proposed change would make the actual using of the premises for gambling not necessarily illegal."

"One of the bills," says Canon Chase, "undertakes to define 'bookmaking without writing,' which the Court of Appeals has clearly defined, and in so doing, the bill introduces terms so vague, broad, and indefinite as would permit oral 'bookmaking' so long as it was confined to clubs or to a slightly limited number of the public."

Such a definition, says the Canon, is not necessary because of the language used by the Court of Appeals in the Lichtenstein vs. Langan case. "The other bill," asserts Canon Chase, "weakens Section 973 of the Penal Law, which forbids keeping gambling and betting establishments, by omitting the words, 'or any other inclosure or place,' and by inserting the words 'to be' before the words 'used for gambling' which are now in the law.

"The reason given for these amendments to the law are to permit racing without making the owner of the race track responsible for any private betting that may go on without the knowledge of the owner. The race tracks have always found it easy to keep bookmakers off the track if they did not buy 'advanced information,' or by some other subterfuge pay for their permission to do business on the tracks. There is no danger if they are in real earnest, and pay officers to keep professional gamblers off the tracks that the races will not be as free from gambling as are the professional baseball games. This freeing of the races from gambling is what is necessary for the breeding of good horses, and the rearing of honest and industrious boys and girls. The county fairs and the baseball people, who want no gambling attached to sport, do not ask for, but are opposed, to this bill.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the race track people are insincere in saying that they will attempt to carry on races without anything but private betting, and also in saying that they are afraid to make any attempt to carry on any racing, because the law is so drastic that they are liable to arrest if two people bet privately during the races. The law requires some sort of knowledge of the crime on the part of the person accused, and the law, as it now stands, would not permit the conviction of the owner of a race track unless he had such a knowledge of gambling going on upon his premises as would make him morally responsible for it. The changes proposed would allow gambling not only on the race track, but would permit the starting of open-air gambling rings anywhere in the State, where roulette wheels, three-card monte, the shell game, and other gambling devices could be conducted for fleecing the public without interference from the police."

In his letter indorsing Canon Chase Assistant District Attorney Elder says:

"There is no necessity whatever for defining in express terms of a statute what bookmaking is. That proceeding was explained at length by the Court of Appeals in People versus Langan, 196 N. Y., 260. Bookmaking there is very plainly defined in the prevailing opinion of the court at Page 265, and also in the dissenting opinion of Judge Vann at Pages 268-269. A new definition by statute would tend to upset the whole law, reopen the whole question, and complicate the enforcement of the statute very much.

"Neither should the phrase, 'or any other inclosure or place,' be stricken out of Section 973 of the penal law. To do this, under the rules of interpretation laid down by our Court of Appeals, would operate to give express permission, not only to racing associations, but to any association or to any person, to keep gaming and betting establishments in 'any inclosure or place' which might artfully be constructed so as not to resemble a 'room, shed, tent, tenement, booth, building, float, or vessel.' It would be a law licensing gambling in some places. This was just the thing that caused so much dissatisfaction with the old law, which discriminated specifically in favor of racing associations. This proposed change, however, would be worse because it would not only give gambling licenses to race courses, but as well to other associations and to individuals that might be enterprising enough to conduct a place as above indicated.

"Likewise the effort to insert into this section the words 'to be' in front of the word 'used,' in the fourth line of that section, is subject to the same criticism. Such a change would enable the race-tracks to excuse themselves by saying that they maintain their grounds not 'to be used' for gambling, but to be used for something else, and that, therefore, the statute did not operate against them. It would also give this same privilege to others taking advantage of the discrepancy in the law. The proposed change would make the actual using of the premises for gambling not necessarily illegal. I hope that you and your coworkers will be able to prevent the passage of these bills."

It was said yesterday that a number of New York and Brooklyn clergymen are to begin an active campaign against the passage of the bills.

Girl Kills Herself in Street.

Twenty-year-old Martha Regan was sitting on the steps of her home, 335 Grove Street, Jersey City, N. J., last night with several girl friends, when she jumped up suddenly and walked away a few feet. Then she cried out and fell to the sidewalk. The girl had swallowed carbolic acid. She died just after Father Westman, who ran from St. Mary's Church, three blocks away, had administered the last rites of the Church. Why the girl should have committed suicide is not known.

ENFORCING NEW TRAIN LAW.

Intoxication Sends Great Northern Passenger to Jail for Sixty Days.

Special to The New York Times.

FERGUS FALLS, Minn., May 28.—The new law which forbids liquor drinking and intoxication on railway trains was put into practical effect on the Great Northern on Saturday by the arrest of one Peterson, a Fargo man, who boarded the Winnipeg Limited at Glyndon.

Peterson created a disturbance, finally breaking a window. He was arrested and sentenced to pay a fine of $50 or to spend sixty days in jail. He went to jail.

The law is very strict, forbidding any intoxicated person from boarding a train and forbidding any drinking on trains except in regularly licensed buffet cars. The penalty is a fine of $25 to $100 or a corresponding period of imprisonment.

TRAIN FALLS INTO A CREEK.

Heavy Cars Burst Through Burning Trestle—Four Killed.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., May 28.—A double header coal train plunged through a burning trestle two miles east of Bostic about 6 o'clock this afternoon, killing Engineers R. M. Green and J. M. Lindsey and Firemen Roy Dooley and Earl Lewis, all of Monroe, N. C. Conductor Frank Howell of Charlotte is unaccounted for.

Fifteen of the twenty-nine loaded steel coal cars fell through the fire-eaten woodwork of the trestle into Watkins Creek, piling up on the two engines and burying the victims in a mass of wreckage. The heavy train was loaded with coal from the Clinchfield mines.

TAFT REGRETS DROWNING.

Man Drowned in Collision with the Dolphin, Which Carried Miss Taft.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—While police to-day futilely dragged the Potomac River near Alexandria for the body of Alexander Yellowess, killed last night when the Dolphin, Government dispatch boat, with Miss Helen Taft and the daughters of Secretary Meyer aboard ran down the motor boat Culprit Fay, President Taft this afternoon personally interested himself in the river tragedy. The President, after leaving the military mass this morning, visited Mr. Yellowess's apartments, 233 H Street, N. E., to express his sympathy. He found that Mr. Yellowess has no relatives in Washington.

President Taft then called upon John G. Lindsay, owner of the motor boat now resting on the Potomac River bottom, telling him of his sorrow.

The President instructed the police and navy yard officials to give Mr. Yellowess's body every care, when it is recovered, and do all in their power to assist the victims of the unfortunate river collision.

All day the crews of the police boat and the auxiliary launch patroled a broad expanse of water near Alexandria, Va., vainly endeavoring with grappling hooks to locate Yellowess's body.

SHOOTS WIFE'S BROTHER.

Who Had Slapped Her Face in a Quarrel Over Cards.

Peter Cifoli of 221 East 111th Street is in Harlem Hospital with nine bullet wounds in his body as a result of slapping his sister's face yesterday afternoon. His sister Angelina has a husband, Rafael Blois, and they were all at her father's home, at 216 East 111th Street, yesterday afternoon. Angelina and Peter got into an argument over a game of cards they were playing, and Peter settled it, he thought, by slapping her in the face. But Rafael Blois, saying nothing, went across the street to his house and got his revolver. He waited in the hall of the Cifoli house. Soon Peter came downstairs. As he reached the street level Blois opened fire, pulling the trigger as fast as he could.

Policeman Fitzpatrick of the East 104th Street Station came on the run and sent in a call for an ambulance. Dr. Donnelly of Harlem Hospital responded. He found five bullet holes in Cifoli's neck, two in the head, one in the right shoulder, and one in the left shoulder. He rushed his patient to the hospital, where he was said to be in a serious condition, but not likely to die, on account of the small calibre of the revolver employed.

There was some difficulty at first in accounting for nine bullet holes when Blois's revolver only held seven cartridges, but Dr. Donnelly explained that two of the bullets had gone clear through the neck, each making two punctures of the flesh.

CLOSER WATCH ON SALOONS.

Waldo Tells Dougherty to Go Ahead and Put the Lid On.

Police Commissioner Waldo put the Sunday excise problem in the hands of Deputy Commissioner Dougherty yesterday, and Mr. Dougherty assigned precinct detectives to watch the saloons closely and see that the law was enforced. Commissioner Waldo's plan is merely tentative, and if it works well he will have Deputy Commissioner Dougherty take full charge of the excise matter every Sunday.

A tip went out to all the stations that the patrolmen must co-operate with Dougherty's men. The patrolmen, it was said last night, had never been so active in looking for bartenders who insisted upon serving drinks, and the result was that yesterday was about the "dryest" Sunday the city has seen in years. Only a few violations were reported, and in these cases both the plain clothes men and the patrolmen did not make arrests, but jotted down memoranda to form the basis for warrants which will be issued to-day.

On Saturday afternoon Deputy Commissioner Dougherty had before him all the men who are assigned to detective work in the various precincts and told them that Commissioner Waldo was trying to do the right thing by all the detectives and patrolmen, and that it was only fair that he should have their co-operation. Mr. Dougherty warned the men that they must get the kind of evidence that would hold in court. Dougherty, it is said, told the Commissioner that he was positive he could curtail the selling of liquor on Sunday, and the Commissioner told him to go ahead and put the lid down tight.

POLICE SLAYER ARRESTED.

Charged with Murder in Killing Student in Mistake for Burglar.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., May 28.—Michael O'Neill of Englewood, who on Friday night shot and killed Roland Ruddock, a high school student, in mistake for a burglar, was arrested this morning on a charge of murder, made by Assistant Prosecutor J. B. Zabriskie. Senator J. A. C. Johnson interested himself in the policeman's case to-day, and an effort will be made to-morrow morning to have Justice Parker release O'Neill under bail.

The accused policeman is much depressed over the shooting, and a close watch was kept on him to-day. The parents of the dead boy do not blame the policeman and will not urge any prosecution.

RED LIGHT ON STEAM

Sends a Passer-by to the Alarm Box and the Fire Engines to Times Square.

Times Square was filled with the clanging of firebells last night at 11 o'clock and traffic was thrown into confusion as the engines and trucks of six companies boomed into Forty-second Street, followed by the whirr of the red car that brought Deputy Chief Martin. Women scuttled to protecting doorways and strong men, deeply moved, threw their cigars to the gutters long before they would have discarded them in peaceful moments.

There was no fire. The alarm was all caused by that misleading portent atop of the Fleischman baths at Sixth Avenue and Forty-second Street. There is a red light there, and when the steam floats up in front of it, it looks from Broadway as though a peculiarly vicious fire was gaining headway in the building. Last night some one paused long enough to turn in an alarm.

After it was all over and the firefighters had withdrawn a man on the street corner shook his finger warningly at the baths.

"Some fine night," he said in a prophetic tone, "you will find that you have cried 'Wolf, wolf!' once too often."

BLAMES PIPE LEAKS FOR WATER SHORTAGE

Thomas A. Fulton Declares Defective Mains Waste Millions of Gallons Daily.

NOT THE CONSUMER'S FAULT

Many Authorities, He Points Out, Have Condemned Conditions—Commissioner Thompson Criticised.

Thomas A. Fulton, Chairman of the General Committee on Water Supply, declared yesterday that whether we have a water famine in Manhattan and the Bronx this Summer or not depends on the activity of the City Water Department in stopping leaks and waste. Mr. Fulton took issue with some of the views of Water Commissioner Thompson and quoted other authorities against him. He differentiated between waste such as that due to dripping faucets and leakage in the water mains and service pipes.

Commissioner Thompson's efforts are directed to the stoppage of waste, and he has sent out 150,000 letters to property-owners urging them to put their houses in order before any of his 200 new inspectors come around and he imposes fines on their reports. That these letters have taken effect has been brought to the attention of many flat-dwellers in the last week by visits from plumbers hired by their landlords.

So far as leakage from the mains is concerned Mr. Thompson said recently that they had been practically eliminated by the replacement of mains, which had been going on for a long time, with the result that now all the mains are substantially new.

The General Committee on Water Supply, of which Mr. Fulton is Chairman, is made up of delegates from such organizations as the Allied Real Estate Interests, Broadway (Brooklyn) Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce of Staten Island, Citizens' Union, Flatbush Taxpayers' Association, Harlem Board of Trade, People's Institute, Taxpayers' Alliance of the Bronx, Washington Square Association, and West Side Taxpayers' Association. Its offices are at 41 Park Row, and its slogan is, "Water, Plenty for Use, None for Waste."

Referring to the efforts of the city authorities to find new sources of supply that can be developed quickly, Mr. Fulton said yesterday:

"Permit me to suggest that the best 'watershed' is right in Manhattan Island, and the yield therefrom will be much greater, quicker, and cheaper than from any other possible source. To stop the leakage and waste is the best and practically the only way to meet our present difficulty, which is occasioned entirely by the riotous living of the prodigal.

"That there is enormous leakage and waste is settled by the reports of the Water Department for many years past, and the investigations of Col. Benjamin Church, Col. Waring, Foster Crowell, John R. Freeman, Edward W. Bemis, and other engineers, and confirmed by the observations of this and other committees, and of any one who cares to find out. The evidence is endless and overwhelming.

"The preventable leakege and waste seems to be about 40 per cent. There is a certain waste that cannot be reached. While you are curing one leak another breaks forth, so that after twenty years of persistent work it is recognized that of the 36 gallons per capita of London's daily supply, 6 gallons are unpreventable wastage. Commissioner Thompson says we in New York use 110 gallons per capita, and while we doubtless use water more lavishly than the Londoners, there is no such difference in actual use as is here pointed out.

"What do I mean by leakage and waste and what is the difference? The leakage is enormous and preventable; the waste is relatively small and unpreventable to some extent. Very few people waste water wilfully. It is done largely in innocent ignorance. A dribbling faucet means sixty gallons a day, and it is not wilful waste. But the leakage is an entirely different matter.

"After the supply reaches the city limits it may and does leak from the aqueduct, from the reservoirs in Central Park, the hundreds of miles of mains in the streets, the hundreds of miles of service pipes running from the street mains to the houses, the majority of which were not properly connected with the mains originally, and of which Mr. Freeman in his report to Controller Coler ten years ago said some eighteeen thousand had been abandoned and not propertly cut off. Every one of these is a possible leak, often proved to be very large.

"Of such conditions Col. Waring, one of the foremost sanitary and hydraulic engineers of the country, said:

"'The water supply is not designed for the sub-irrigation of a city, but that seems to be its chief and increasing use.'

"This leakage is in no way due to waste by the people in the buildings. It is in the streets and can be cured by the city authorities alone. Commissioner Thompson says through the newspapers: 'The talk that there is enormous leakage of water in New York is nonsensical. There is very little leakage.' I am sorry to contradict the gentleman, but he is wrong.

"Commissioner Thompson told me himself that a water pipe running to Blackwell's Island had been found broken and discharging three to four millions of gallans a day into the river. There are others. Ex-Deputy Commissioner Bemis said in The Engineering News that his investigations showed 40 per cent. of waste in Brooklyn and Staten Island."

Mr. Fulton said he would have something to say later regarding the suggestion that all buildings be metered, as in London, Paris, and Berlin.

DOG TEASES THE POLICE.

Barks and Runs Away, Defying New Rochelle to Steal His Liberty.

NEW ROCHELLE, May 28.—Dog owners are determined that the dog quarantine in New Rochelle shall end and that the dog catchers remain out of private property. In spite of the indignation over the attempt of the dog catcher to take a valuable dog from the yard of Dr. G. Stella yesterday the dog catchers got the dog this afternoon when Dr. Stella was away. Dr. Stella intends to make a test case to have the courts determine whether the dog catchers have the right to enter private property.

The police and dog catchers have been trying in vain for two weeks to capture a homeless little yellow dog that runs about Mechanic Street near the Police Station. Several times a day the dog looks in at the door of Police Headquarters, barks at the desk Sergeant, and runs away. Four men tried to lasso the dog yesterday.

WESTINGHOUSE AFTER GAS.

Erects Derrick Over Well Drilled 32 Years Ago on His Lawn.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., May 28.—The gas well on George Westinghouse's spacious lawn which surrounds his home and which has been capped for nineteen years, is to be used for experimental purposes. Mr. Westinghouse is erecting a seventy-foot derrick over the well and hopes to complete it within two or three days. The work on the Westinghouse lawn reminded old acquaintances of an incident thirty-two years ago when George Westinghouse smelled gas while looking from the window of his mansion, and caused the well to be driven.

Portions of the huge, cone-shaped steel affair to-night tower above the conservatories of millionaires in the exclusive section of Pittsburg, marking the spot where one of the richest wells in Pennsylvania was discovered in the early days. It was afterward plugged and since that time has been given no attention.

When neighbors looked from windows across lawns this morning and saw the steel derrick it recalled the explosion that occurred there more than thirty years ago, when many workmen were burned and Mrs. Westinghouse tore finery into bandages and treated the burns and injuries of the workmen.

Mr. Westinghouse expects to strike the main vein of gas that gave such a tremendous output in the long ago. It is an experiment only, and the inventor desired to make the test on a spot about which he knew everything and where he would be in constant touch with his work.

SAYS HE SAVED KING GEORGE.

Former British Soldier, Who Has Letter of Thanks, Goes to Coronation.

Special to The New York Times.

CALDWELL, N. J., May 28.—David Shanks Kerr of Clinton, five miles from Caldwell, formerly a Sergeant Major of the Fifteenth Yorkshire Regiment, left to-day on his way to England to attend the coronation of King George. Kerr has an autograph letter which he received from Prince George, now King of England, seventeen years ago, which he believes will get him a place to see the procession.

Kerr says he got the letter while the Prince was on a visit to Malta, where Kerr's regiment was stationed, after he had saved the Prince from being bitten by a dog believed to have been suffering from rabies. According to Kerr, the Prince, accompanied by his secretary and an aid-de-camp, was passing through the barrack square at Malta, and the Prince stopped for a moment, while those with him walked on ahead. Just then the dog rushed through the barrack gate directly toward the Prince. Kerr says he cut the dog down with his sword just as the dog jumped at the Prince. The Prince, Kerr says, thanked him, and asked his name. The next day, on parade, the Colonel of the regiment presented the Prince's letter to Kerr in the presence of the regiment. The letter reads:

> Loyal Friend:—I shall ever feel grateful to you for saving me from probable injuries. I trust your career in her Majesty's service may be crowned with success.
> GEORGE.

Kerr left the service about a year afterward.

POCKETS PICKED AT FIRES.

Greenpoint Police Make Two Arrests and Fire Marshal Starts Inquiry.

Soon after a cellar fire started at 1,120 Manhattan Avenue, Greenpoint, late on Saturday night Mrs. Susie Jeuso of 239 Huron Street and Ignatz Nowiskie of 169 Dupont Street, who were in the crowd, found that their pockets had been picked. They both seized a bystander, who said later he was Louis Kaufer, a chauffeur, 27 years old, of 303 East Houston Street, and Policeman Curran arrested him. On the way to the station another young man, who afterward said he was Harry Fisher, 21 years old, of 258 South First Avenue, sought, Curran charges, to give him $25, at the same time whispering a request that Curran make a false statement that would clear Kaufer at the station. Policeman Briody nabbed Fisher.

Both persons were araigned yesterday in the Manhattan Avenue Court and held in heavy bail for trial.

"There have been a large number of suspicious cellar fires in my precinct lately, and all of them at night," said Capt. Coleman of the Greenpoint Avenue Station yesterday. "At each fire there were pickpockets. I began to suspect that pickpockets were the cause of the fire and instructed my men to be on the alert at every such blaze. I consider the arrest of Kaufer and Fisher as very important. Fire Marshal Brophy has all the fires under investigation."

SEES ROBBERY IN PARK.

Policeman Scatters Assailants of Photographer and Makes One Capture.

As Central Office Detective L'Hereux, attached to the West 100th Street Station, was walking near Riverside Drive, on Ninety-seventh Street, about 7 o'clock Saturday evening, he heard cries for help, and running to the Drive, saw five young men attacking a man with a camera. Before L'Hereux could reach the party one of the men smashed the camera over the head of the man on the ground, while another went through his pockets.

At the sight of L'Hereux the crowd scattered, but the policeman captured Harvey. The victim of the boys positively identified Harvey as the lad who struck him with a piece of board, causing several bad cuts on his head, while one of the others secured $25 from his hip pocket.

The victim was Malan Matshimsky, a peripatetic photographer. Harvey is 18 and lives at 826 Amsterdam Avenue. He was arraigned in West Side Court yesterday and held for examination.

DESERTS HIS CHILDREN.

Motherless Girl of 13 Asks Court to Help Find Father.

Mary Housner, 13 years old, dressed in mourning, walked into the Yorkville Court yesterday and wept while she asked Magistrate House to find her father, Joseph Housner, 35 years old, a porter. Mary lives with her two little sisters, Annie and Birdie, 12 and 8 years old, respectively, and since her mother died last October she has been keeping house for her father and her two sisters while attending school.

Mary showed Magistrate House a letter from her father, in which he said he was going away, and that his children would never see him again. The letter was written on the leaf of a copy book and was in Bohemian. Translated, it read:

> Dear Mary: I am going to part with you in the midnight. As I kiss you I am afraid you may awaken. In the daytime I quarrel with you, yet it is hard to leave you. Forgive me, and look after Annie and Birdie. When the money comes from Europe place a tombstone over mother's grave. Go and visit her. I want no funeral and no one to see me. Pay all the debts and be satisfied with what you have. YOUR FATHER.

To his second daughter he wrote on the same page:

> Dear Annie: I loved you very much. That is all I have to say. Don't forget father and mother.

These lines to his 8-year-old daughter were added:

> Birdie: As I depart from you I feel I would rather take you with me. Grow up, little girl, and think of your father and mother. When mother died I lost everything, and I cannot give back to you what I have taken from you. You can do better without me, as I am mostly under the influence of drink. J. HOUSNER.

Magistrate House instructed Mrs. Frances Broadhead, probation officer, to take Mary to the police station, and later take her and her two sisters to the Children's Society. Mrs. Broadhead visited the Housner home and found the other two children crying. She got the neighbors to provide them with food.

Neighbors said yesterday that Housner was once a rich man in Bohemia, and that he has a regular income from some farm or estate. He could be well off, it was said, if he led a more temperate life.

Anthony Horak, a butcher, who lives in the flat above the Housners, said he saw Housner at 1 A. M. yesterday. He was standing outside his door, and was sober. "You'll never see me again," Horak declares Housner said. "I am going out West to work on a farm. I feel I cannot do right, so I am going away."

TWO DEAD IN WIND STORM.

Pekin, Ill., Badly Damaged—Twenty Hurt as Grandstand Falls.

PEORIA, Ill., May 28.—A windstorm today struck Pekin, Ill., ten miles south of Peoria, killing Clyde Sakers and Frank Woodley, boys, breaking both legs of Louis Schaefer and damaging much property.

The city pumping station was demolished. The storm then jumped across the Illinois River and wrecked the plant of the Boley Ice Company. Trees were uprooted, roofs were blown from houses, and plate glass windows were smashed in the business quarter of Pekin. The storm followed the river, and the residence part of the city escaped.

At Grante City, Ill., twenty persons were injured by the collapse of a baseball grandstand during a windstorm. Sidney Mangus suffered a broken leg and internal hurts and may die. The others will recover. Twelve persons injured were baseball players.

Most of the spectators fled at the approach of the storm. The grandstand was lifted bodily by the wind and hurled on a crowd of players, who were huddled behind it, seeking refuge from a bombardment of hail.

ST. LOUIS, May 28.—A windstorm today wrought considerable damage to residences and parks in St. Louis. Dr. J. J. Meredith, who sought shelter under a tree, was denuded by a bolt of lightning, but he was almost unhurt.

KICKED BY AN AEROPLANE.

Mechanic Hurled Fifteen Feet Trying to Start the Propeller.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., May 28.—Robert Tessier, a mechanic employed by the Moisant Aeronautic Company, while attempting yesterday to start the motor of a monoplane in which St. Croix Johnstone was to fly to Springfield, took hold of the propeller while the switch was on. The propeller suddenly began to revolve rapidly and struck him on the left leg above the knee, hurling him about fifteen feet. He landed on the grass.

There were 2,000 spectators on the field, and a rush was made for Tessier. Dr. Sidney F. Wilcox of New York was one of the first to reach him. After an examination the physician found that Tessier was badly bruised on the left leg and forearm, but that no bones were broken. The propeller was wrecked, and persons in the crowd carried off splinters as souvenirs.

Dr. Charles F. Walden, in a monoplane; George F. Schmidt, in a Curtiss biplane; C. H. Rocco in his flexible flier, and Joseph Stevenson, in a biplane partly of the Curtiss type and partly of his own design, were all out on the field in the evening, but Schmidt was the only one that did any flying. He went about 100 feet at a height of about 15 feet.

Boy from Randall's Island Drowns.

While swimming yesterday afternoon in the Bronx Kills at the easterly end of Randall's Island with several other inmates of the Children's Hospital and School, William Freeman, 14 years old, was seized with cramps and drowned. Frank Finnall, 12 years old, tried in vain to save him. The body was not recovered.

BRYAN SAYS LAWYERS AID PUBLIC ABUSES

Thinks Those Who Help Plunderers Will Be Held Equally Guilty in Public Opinion.

SEES TAINT IN JOURNALISM

Students Told That Private Monopoly Is Highway Robbery and the Stock Exchange a Gambling Resort.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 28.—William Jennings Bryan in a speech before 1,500 University of Pennsylvania students in Weightman Hall to-day paid his respects to the dollar worshippers, crooked lawyers, the trusts, tainted journalism, and to Wall Street. His general theme was "The Price of a Soul." He made indirect references to the Judges of the United States Supreme Court for the decision in the Standard Oil case, to Col. Theodore Roosevelt, John D. Rockefeller, and Andrew Carnegie.

"For 1,900 years," said Mr. Bryan, "the Bible has been attacked by the materialists and the atheists. But it has withstood all the assaults.

"Let the materialists and the atheists prepare a better book if they can. Let them employ every method of modern communication and avail themselves of all the progress of 1,900 years, and prepare a book that is better than the Bible or as good. If they cannot there are but two conclusions: Either man has degenerated and you cannot expect as much from him as you could 1,900 years ago or the Bible comes from a higher source than man.

"How much money can a man rightfully collect from society? Place the emphasis on the 'rightfully,' and I swear not more than he honestly earns. For when a man collects more than he earns he collects what somebody else has earned and money to which he is not entitled.

"Ordinarily we call this stealing," he said, "although sometimes we use the word 'reasonable!'

"How much can a man honestly earn? That is another question. I answer not more than what fairly measures the value of his service to society. And, therefore, if a man desires to collect largely and rightfully, he must prepare himself for large service to society. The schools, colleges, and other institutions of learning have as their chief objects the enlarging of human capacity for service to society.

"If it could be impressed upon the young men that they are not to take from society a dollar except what they have conscientiously earned, they would be kept from most of the temptations which drag men down.

"It would not take long to reform the abuses of which the people complain, except for the fact that back of these abuses are the brains of trained lawyers. How long will this continue? The day will come when public opinion will hold equally guilty with plunderers the legal horses on which these plunderers ride."

"The corporations have gone into journalism, and when the corporations go into journalism you cannot often find who are the stockholders. Sometimes the publication is owned by the railroads, and sometimes by another corporate power. The result is you do not know the value of the editorials and of the news printed.

"You find this is true in every great contest in which predatory wealth is on the one side and the people on the other. Thus the sources of information are polluted and the very fountains from which the people drink are poisoned.

"A good deal that is conscienceless is going on in big business. Take the Sugar Trust as an example. Men were paid to cheat the Government that the trust's dividends might not decrease. Yet I wonder how many Christians sold their stock and got out of the Sugar Trust when it was found how the great dividends were being made.

"Take the adulteration of food. In this great Nation in the twentieth century we have to enact criminal laws to keep business men from swindling their customers and from murdering people who use their products.

"I have been amazed that the Christian conscience of this Nation has not been raised against private monopoly. Is there any difference between the principle of highway robbery and the controlling of products the people must have?

"Ministers are not doing as much as they might and ought to do to mold public opinion on moral questions. Take corruption in politics. The minister ought to drive out of his church the man who furnishes money to buy votes. I say that the man who sells his vote for $5 or $10 is not as guilty as the man who furnishes the money to set up his government at auction and then use it for private gain.

"What about gambling? The worst gambling to-day is in the Stock Exchange. We will never stop gambling in the lower levels until it is stopped in high places. These institutions are training embezzlers."

WOMAN BEATEN BY THIEVES.

Break in Her Door and Rob Her—Identifies Two Prisoners.

Mrs. Mary Thomas was attacked and robbed last night in her home on the third floor at 257 West Thirtieth Street, and as a result of police activity two men were locked up in the West Thirty-seventh Street station. They said they were John Farrell of 305 West Twenty-eighth Street and George Sheridan of 309 West Forty-third Street.

The first the police knew of the attack and robbery was when Mrs. Thomas entered the station, bleeding from a cut over her right eye and her face covered with bruises. She said she was in bed when the door was forced open and two men attacked her. She lost consciousness, she said, and when she regained her senses the intruders had stolen $5 from a handbag.

Mrs. Thomas said she recognized one of the men as Farrell, and when Patrolman Tighe was sent to his house he found Sheridan as well. Mrs. Thomas identified them as her assailants.

DEAD MAN IN AIRSHAFT.

Police Arrest Two Who Quarreled with Him on the Roof.

After the body of an unidentified man had been found yesterday morning in the airshaft of 165 East Ninety-ninth Street, the police heard there had been a quarrel on the roof and arrested Daniel Sullivan, an electrician, and David Drohan, a weaver. They were charged with homicide and locked up in the East 104th Street Station.

During the afternoon the officers discovered Sullivan and Drohan with their clothing blood stained, squabbling at Ninety-ninth Street and Third Avenue. They seemed to answer the description of the men seen quarreling with the unidentified man and they were locked up.

RUINS HELP DRAW 350,000 TO CONEY

Ferari Exhibits in the Ashes of Dreamland the Few Beasts He Saved.

FREAKS SHOWN IN BOXES

Lion That Escaped and Was Shot Stuffed to Make a Spectacle—Cat Marooned on Pier Saved.

The first of the burned-out shows of Dreamland reopened for business at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and an hour later the organ of Ferari's Animal Show struck up and the public was invited to step in and see all that remained of the wild beast collection. That is the spirit in which Coney Island is taking the big fire, and on every side yesterday were evidences of a determination to make the best out of a bad business. Indeed, the great waste, five blocks square, was considered an attraction, and it was reckoned that the desire to see the piles of blackened timbers and bent steel helped bring 350,000 people to the island. A plan for clearing the débris to make room for all sorts of small shows is already being considered.

To the freaks fell the honor of reopening Dreamland. A tent was pitched on the edge of Surf Avenue, and by hard work all Saturday night a complete installation of water and electric light was accomplished, canvases displaying the fat lady and the elastic-skinned man were hung out in regular country fair style, and the spielers took their places on the platform and urged the passers-by to come in.

"All that's left of Dreamland, beautiful Dreamland," was the burden of their cry, and a good many visitors were induced to part with their dimes.

The freaks looked a little uncomfortable, each seated in a sort of loose box, but the arrangement had its advantages for the spectators. They could lean over the edge and ask the tattooed lady whether it hurt much to have a beautiful cross worked in indelible ink on the chest and American flags on the arm, and they could chaff the giant in a much more familiar way than if they had been seated in state on a dais.

The remnants of Ferari's show consisted of five lionesses, four leopards, six ponies, and an unestimated number of monkeys. Ferari sent for the traveling outfit he uses in the Winter, and set up his stage under canvas. He was able to put on a show of five acts, half as many as before the fire, and Mme. André with the leopards, Capt. Bonavita and Vincent Rivero with the lionesses, Ricardo with the leopards, and Ferari himself with the ponies, drew good houses all day long. Particularly welcome to the visitors was Marguerite, the baby lioness, seven months old, who had been reported to be dead. But there she was yesterday afternoon, about the size of a small collie, pulling at the rope to which she was tied or working herself up to a playful fury at the sight of one of her kindred in its cage. She had lost, however, her playmate, a terrier, who was stolen in the confusion.

Side Show of a Dead Lion.

Next door the menagerie was a tent in which the stuffed form of Sultan, the lion which was shot on the Rocky Road to Dublin was on view for a dime. The animal had been prepared for exhibition by "Doc" Hewitt and Melvin Howard, well-known Coney Islanders, and the fame of his exit with burning mane and his flight through the crowd brought in a small harvest to the enterprising taxidermists. The police had had it that it was Black Prince that had gone on the rampage, but it was explained yesterday that that animal had been ill for several days before the disaster and was hardly able to walk when it came.

"The fact is," said Frank J. Wilstach, Dreamland's press agent, "the poor brute had never seemed himself since he bit that Spaniard a few weeks ago. I don't know how it was, but it didn't seem to agree with him, and it was just like Oliver Goldsmith's mad dog, 'The dog it was that died.' We hardly expected Black Prince to live through Friday night, anyhow, and so he had no chance of escaping."

The carcass of one lion was found among the ruins yesterday morning, and the relic hunters scrambled for his claws and teeth. Harry Smith, who is employed by Ferrari, declared that so keen was the competition that a policeman took a hand in it and got some of the claws himself, driving Smith away when he claimed a certain proprietorship.

Meanwhile the Department of Health sent Inspectors to go through the ruins yesterday to find and remove any dead animals that had not been completely incinerated. The search led to a little flurry of excitement. In turning over the charred timbers near Surf Avenue Tony Poggi, an employe of the Bauer sisters, came across what looked like the body of a man. It was fully clothed, and as it lay there it seemed as if, after all, some employe of the park had been overlooked and killed. Just as the police were about to be called, however, it was discovered that the figure was only that of a dummy meat chopper which had adorned the Bauer sisters' candy counter, got up in the fashion of a butcher's shop.

One rescue was effected yesterday. After five attempts Charles Rogers managed to get to safety Buster, a big black and white Maltese cat, which was marooned on the end of the remnant of the Dreamland pier. Buster and two dogs belonged to Bill McDonald, who had the fishing concession in the park and lived in the hut where the fishing rods and tackle were stored. When the fire drew near McDonald and Rogers tried to save the rods, and as they opened the door Buster ran, mad with terror, to the ocean end of the pier. The dogs did not escape.

The fire has left about 500 feet of the pier untouched, but there is a gap of about the same length in which nothing remains but still smoldering posts. Buster, a wild animal at all times, hid himself on the pier and refused to try to get back to shore. Rogers went after him yesterday in a dory, and boarded the pier. The cat merely fled to another and more inaccessible place. Rogers made five attempts before he could corner the terrified cat, and he only got him then by throwing a bag over his head.

Eager to Search Ruins.

All sorts of persons wanted to wander through the ruins to find things they had left behind. The bass drummer of the ballroom orchestra seemed to think that perhaps, after all, his instrument had escaped, and the cornetist would not believe for a long time that if he did find his cornet it would be but a mass of molten metal. But Miss Edith Green, secretary of Samuel Gumpertz, manager of Dreamland, was more fortunate. In the ruins of the office were found her gold locket and chain, damaged, but in fair condition, and a purse with several dollar bills intact. Her watch, however, though recognizable, will never go again.

The loving cup presented last season to Wells Hawks, formerly press agent of Dreamland, was also dug out. It was partially fused, but was pronounced only the more interesting for the scars of the fire. A dictionary of similes, on which Mr. Wilstach, Mr. Hawks's successor, has been at work for many years, was also saved. As the flames were threatening Dreamland's publicity bureau, W. Baurnagel, Mr. Wilstach's assistant, smashed open his desk and carried off the manuscript.

Dreamland may perhaps have some kind of a regular show in order within a week. Mr. Gumpertz said yesterday:

"Of course, it all depends on what the Directors decide at their meeting to-morrow, but I hope that we shall clear a street right through to the ocean and install immediately old-time Coney Island shows. That would carry us through the season, and we should not have any of the tremendous expenses that the old park had to carry. Moreover, it would give employment to the 1,600 people we had on our wage sheet."

The L. A. Thompson Company, which lost Pike's Peak in Surf Avenue and the Glaciers in Dreamland, may also run up a one-story building on the avenue, and Dr. S. Fishel hopes to install his incubator babies in their original quarters in Luna Park.

So as fast as temporary arrangements can be made Coney will improvise means to meet the situation. Already yesterday a man balanced a piece of board on a box, displayed a handful of damaged curios on it, and announced, "The 5 and 10 cent store is now open." The concessionaires put tables in front of the brick ovens, all that remained of prosperous restaurants, lit the fires, and sold frankfurters. At tables balanced on half-burned beams, on chairs distorted by heat, it was possible to drink beer, of course accompanied with a sandwich, and H. Tarr hardly needed his sign, "You can't keep a good man down," when dozens were competing for the chance of being photographed in a property auto all blistered and scorched.

One faker waving a miniature rboom kept vociferating, "A clean sweep. Only a nickel," but Coney laughed at his cries and passed on to show that it had lots of resources untouched yet.

There were rumors yesterday that the fire was incendiary, and that it had been started because of labor troubles in Dreamland. Investigation showed that as far as has yet been determined, these reports are baseless. The inquiry into the origin of the fire began by Assistant Fire Marshal Brophy seemed to establish the fact that the tarring of Hell Gate was responsible for the catching alight of the inflammable framework of the show, and it was denied that there had been any trouble with the employes of the park.

Lieut. Matthew Kennedy of the Coney Island Precinct has had a career in the department coinciding in a curious fashion with the fires on the island. He became a patrolman just in time to be present at the fire which took place on May 26, 1899. He made several rescues in the fire on Nov. 1, 1903, saving in particular Hyman Rubin from Ferris's Hotel. For this he was commended by Commissioner Greene and promoted to be Sergeant. When Steeplechase Park was destroyed on July 28, 1907, his services were conspicuous enough to win him a Lieutenancy. He was then transferred away from the island, but was brought back two weeks ago, and it fell to his lot to be at the desk as Dreamland burned.

A roaring trade was done yesterday on the Iron Pier Walk in certain half-burned photographs of "Little Hip," the performing elephant which was burned. They were sold as bona fide relics of the fire. They appear to have been genuine enough pictures of the elephant, but some one wandering through the wreckage came across a small boy crouched behind a pile of timber with a candle on one hand and a photograph in the other. He was singing the edges of the photograph and preparing it for the market.

ATTACK BY JEALOUS WOMAN.

Salesman Slashed with a Razor—His Assailant Saved from Suicide.

Eugénie Soquet, a hairdresser and manicure who had an establishment until recently at 3,350 Broadway, mutilated John Lauer with a razor early yesterday morning in their apartment at 100 West 142d Street, and then tried to kill herself with chloroform and gas. She was revived and will be arraigned in the Harlem Police Court this morning. Lauer may live.

The woman says Lauer had boarded with her for ten months and had promised to marry her. On Saturday night, she told the police, he came in late, and she determined to revenge herself, though Lauer denied that she had any occasion for jealousy.

Lauer is a salesman, 29 years old. Mme. Soquet is 36. They formerly lived at 139 West 135th Street, but about two months ago took the apartment in the rear of the first floor at 100 West 142d Street at the corner of Lenox Avenue. The front apartment is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wolff. Mrs. Wolff said yesterday that she had never heard the couple quarreling. The woman went to work every morning, as did the man, when he was in town. On Saturday evening she saw them on the street. 2 Apparently they had been quarreling, for they seemed not to be on speaking terms. No noise came from their flat, however, until the Wolffs and other tenants in the building were awakened about 3:30 A. M. by screams from the woman and cries of pain from the man.

Somebody telephoned to Police Headquarters. Not even the police know whether it was one of the other tenants or the woman herself. Policeman Stevens was sent from the West 125th Street station, but before he arrived Policeman Volk, on post outside, had been brought by the janitor and Mr. Wolff. A few moments later Dr. Cole came with an ambulance from Harlem Hospital.

Cries were still coming from Lauer, but the woman's voice was still. The policemen shouted to Lauer to open the door, and when he did not appear tried to break it down. They had to resort to the light shaft to get in, finally climbing through a window into the bedroom. Lauer was conscious, but in great pain. The woman, after a scuffle, had locked him in the room. This door the policemen broke down. In the dining room they found Mme. Soquet lying on the floor with a rubber pipe in her mouth, the other end attached to an open gas jet. By her side was a vial of chloroform, partly emptied. She was unconscious, and at first was thought to be dead.

On the table was a letter addressed to her sister, Helène Soquet, who lives at 115 West 143d Street. The letter was taken by the police, but they had not succeeded last night in having it translated. Mme. Soquet is French, but neither a Frenchman nor an Italian to whom the letter was shown could decipher it.

Lauer said the woman had attacked him while he slept. He had been partly awakened twice in the night to find her bending over him. He smelled chloroform, but did not recognize the odor. He asked the woman what she wanted, and she said "Nothing," so he went to sleep again. He was convinced afterward that she had tried to chloroform him but had failed to do so.

Lauer and the woman were both taken to the Harlem Hospital. He did not lose consciousness, and she was revived soon after the institution was reached. She said she had taken some of the chloroform, but the only evidence of this was a slight burn on her lip. Dr. Cole said she was rescued just in time to prevent asphyxiation.

HACKENSACK FLIERS READY.

New Aerodrome Will Be Opened To-morrow with Three Machines on View.

Hackensack's aerodrome will be opened on Decoration Day, when three aircraft, all of new design, will be exhibited. One of these craft, Fred Kuhnert's, is said to be the largest aeroplane ever constructed. It weighs 1,100 pounds and has a wide-spreading canopy that, the owner says, will prevent the aeroplane from overturning, and, once in the air, it is expected to float.

The monoplane invented by Ernest, Charles, and Herman Grassing of Englewood, is at the aerodrome, and the boys will make their first public flight on Tuesday. The front-drive biplane built by G. R. Richmond at Sheepshead Bay also will get its first official try-out on Decoration Day.

Post Office Official Dead.

John Washington, Superintendent of City Delivery at the New York Post Office, died at the City Hospital in Atlantic City on Saturday night after an operation for stomach trouble. He had been in Atlantic City but a few days, and was taken suddenly ill on Friday. A number of friends from the Post Office went on Saturday to spend the week-end with him, only to learn of his death. Mr. Washington had been connected with the Post Office Department for more than twenty years, being first employed as a clerk in the general office. He was about forty-five years old. The body will be taken to Plattsburg, N. Y., for burial, probably on Tuesday.

Colonia Country Club Opening.

The Colonia Country Club of Colonia, N. J., will open its season Decoration Day with golf contests and many club luncheons. At 10 A. M there will be a contest for the Green Committee Cup, 18 holes, medal play handicap qualifying round, first eight to qualify. At 2 P. M. the first round at match play will begin, and semi-finals and finals will be held on subsequent Saturdays. There will be other contests this season for the President's Cup offered by Edwin M. Squier, and a putting contest cup offered by Frank A. Patterson. Edward A. Savage will officiate as Chairman of the House Committee this year. The management of the club house this season will be under the supervision of Mrs. M. A. Sheehan, formerly connected with the Colonia Club of this city.

AWARD OF MEDAL TO KENLON DISPUTED

Protest to be Made by Several of His Competitors in Race for Fire Chief.

HONOR WAS ONCE REFUSED

Charged That Croker Had Board Reopen Matter to Help His Friend—Medal Counts in Examination.

A protest over the award of an honor medal to Acting Chief John Kenlon of the Fire Department is to be made shortly, it was learned last night, by several of the Deputy Chiefs who, with Kenlon, are candidates for the post of Chief vacated by the recent resignation of Edward F. Croker. The possession of an honor medal carries with it three points in the competitive Civil Service examination by which Mr. Croker's successor is to be chosen. But for this approaching examination it is likely that Kenlon's right to the medal would never have been questioned.

It was said also that the question of the legality of Mr. Kenlon's appointment as Deputy Chief might be raised.

The identity of those Chiefs who will enter the protest could not be learned last night, although it will be recalled that Deputy Chief Lally, in charge of Brooklyn, and Deputy Chief Ahearn, in charge of the Bronx, both members of the Board of Merit which authorized the award of the medal, voted against the honor to Kenlon. Deputy Chief Maher was a member of the board also and finally voted in favor of awarding the medal. It was declared last night by an official high in fire circles that Maher had repented of this action now that he realized the advantage thus given to Kenlon in the contest for the post vacated by Croker.

The medal was awarded to Chief Kenlon for heroic conduct at the big fire at Pier 14, North River, on July 15 last. Chief Kenlon was in charge of the marine branch of the department and was on a fireboat which sighted two dock laborers adrift in the river on a log. Fireman Marek of the fireboat James Duane jumped overboard for the men and with the help of others on the boat got them aboard. Medals of honor were awarded to him and to Firemen Walsh, Kelly, and Healy, and to Battalion Chief Worth.

It was for conduct at this rescue that it was proposed to honor Kenlon. The matter was brought before the Board of Merit, appointed on last Dec. 28, by Commissioner Waldo. The board consisted of Deputy Commissioners Johnson and O'Keefe, Chief Croker, and Deputy Chiefs Lally, Ahearn, Maher, and Kenlon. When his name was introduced Chief Kenlon withdrew.

The first vote was against awarding a medal to Kenlon and apparently the matter was dropped there. According to a high fire official, however, Chief Croker, an intimate friend of Kenlon's, managed to reintroduce the question at a subsequent meeting from which Deputy Chief Lally, away on leave, was absent. At this time the medal was awarded.

It is the contention of the men who now propose to protest this award that it was made illegally in view of the fact that the board had taken action already. Furthermore, it is charged that Deputy Commissioner O'Keeffe and Deputy Chief Maher, who voted in favor of the award, did so in ignorance of Chief Croker's intention soon of resigning, and the advantage over his fellows which the award would give to Chief Kenlon. Those who are now about to protest see especial significance in Chief Croker's effort to win the award for Kenlon, since he presumably knew at that time of the near approach of his resignation.

It was declared last night by a man to whose advantage it would be to have the award declared invalid that unless the Civil Servce Board, to which protest first will be made, saw the justness of the claim, the matter may be carried into the courts with a request for a review of the findings of the Board of Merit. It is in connection with such an appeal to the courts that the question of the legality of Deputy Chief Kenlon's appointment as such may be raised.

Kenlon was raised to the rank of Deputy Chief in the Commissionership of Mr Hayes, and was put in charge of the marine division. This was recalled last night by a man vitally interested in Deputy Chief Kenlon's preferment, and the charge was made by him that Mr. Kenlon's promotion from Battalion Chief to Deputy Chief had been brought about largely by Chief Croker and the influence which his place at the head of the uniformed force enabled him to wield.

This man declared that it was Chief Croker who persuaded Commissioner Hayes to apply to the Civil Service Board for an examination for the selection of another Deputy Chief to take charge of the fire boats, and that it was made a condition of the examination that all candidates for this post must hold a master's license of the Steamboat Inspection Service. Chief Kenlon, it was charged, was the only member of the Fire Department holding such a license, and consequently had no competition in the examination.

This charge would be laid before the courts, it was said, provided it became necessary to carry the question of the legality of the medal award to such authority, and every effort would be made to prevent Deputy Chief Kenlon from going into the examination for Chief with any advantage of his fellows.

Chief Kenlon could not be seen last night, and other Deputy Chiefs refused to talk. Ex-Chief Croker was not at his home in the Broadway Central Hotel, and it was said there that he had gone out of town.

CURING LEPROSY CASES.

One Patient Discharged from Metropolitan Hospital—Others Improving.

That leprosy can be cured seems to be believed at the Metropolitan Hospital, Blackwell's Island, where it was learned yesterday that one patient had been discharged nearly eight months ago. Much secrecy was observed in making this discharge, as it was feared that if any publicity were attached to the case life would be made unbearable for the patient.

Dr. W. S. White, the resident pathologist, explained that the patient, an American, was at present employed by a large building contractor in Harlem. At regular intervals he undergoes examinations by a physician familiar with his case, to be sure that there is no return of the disease. So far he reports that his health has been improving and that his strength has completely returned. Dr. White said yesterday that he had no reason to doubt that the man had been completely cured.

It is said that a woman has also been discharged from the hospital and deported to her old home, in the West Indies, where she has since married and is living happily.

A Greek named George Kekas, now at the hospital, has traveled much in this country since leaving Greece at the age of 6. He has been a miner in Nevada, a cow puncher in Wyoming, and has done work on railroads in almost every State in the Union. When taken sick suddenly in Salt Lake City four years ago he found himself without friends or money. The Health Officer wanted to pack him off to the Hawaiian Islands, but Kekas escaped. He eluded the guards one night and boarded a freight train for the East.

He next turned up in Kansas City, where he was identified and ordered out of town. He arrived in New York, and was about to take a boat for Europe when he was detected and sent to the Metropolitan Hospital, where he has been improving slowly. His strength has returned, and he hopes to be cured and discharged.

Dr. F. M. Dearborn, visiting dermatologist to the city hospitals, declares that better care is provided for the lepers in New York City than anywhere else, with the possible exception of the Massachusetts State colony on Penikees Island or the Molokai Island colony, which is supported by the United States Government in the Hawaiian Islands. There are at present five men and one woman in the colony on Blackwell's Island.

"Ever since the New York State Board of Health appointed a committee to look after the subject of leprosy, in 1904, we have had a well-defined policy on that score," said Dr. Dearborn. "Our hospitals have since rather welcomed the lepers who are driven out of other cities. Our doctors know how to care for them, and in many cases cures, or comparative cures, can be recorded. The public still labors under the old delusion that leprosy is incurable and highly dangerous. As a matter of fact, the leprosy cases are far less dangerous than the tuberculosis cases, of which there are over 900 on the Island. Leprosy may rot a man's hands or feet off, but it cannot impair his vitality in the process so much as a case of severe consumption. Leprosy has been a bugaboo for ages. Medical science has routed it. Now people must come to understand the facts."

SAVED FROM BLAZING LAUNCH

F. M. Applegate Reaches Department Pier, Which Also Gets Ablaze.

Frank M. Applegate, an insurance adjuster, who has offices at 54 Maiden Lane, Manhattan, and who lives in Mount Vernon, left New Rochelle aboard his thirty-five-foot launch Florence yesterday afternoon for a cruise up the Hudson over Memorial Day.

With him on the boat were two women members of his family and a business friend. Mr. Applegate guided the Florence successfully as far as 138th Street and the East River. At that point there was a back fire in the carburetor, and Mr. Applegate, who was steering, found himself surrounded by burning gasoline. This quickly kindled the wood and varnish of the cabin.

Shouting to the others to go up to the bow of the boat, Mr. Applegate steered for the Health Department dock at 133d Street. At the pier was the barge Irene, laden with wooden street paving blocks. Mr. Applegate steered his blazing launch between the barge and the pier. Then the pier took fire.

Some one ashore telephoned for the fireboat Zophar Mills, which is stationed at 133d Street and the Harlem River. She put out the fires on pier and launch. Three hundred dollars' worth of damage was done to the cabin of the launch. Mr. Applegate and his party returned to Mount Vernon by train.

IN NEW JERSEY.

JERSEY CITY.—John P. Tuthill was found dead in bed in his home, 290 Edge Avenue, yesterday morning. He had taken poison. He had suffered from melancholia for several weeks, and left a note asking his relatives to forgive him.

BAYONNE.—Veterans of the civil and Spanish-American wars, Sons of Veterans, and members of Company I, Fourth Regiment, N. G. N. J., attended a memorial service last evening in the First Reformed Church.

BAYONNE.—More than 2,000 children yesterday afternoon took part in a May walk by St. Mary's Catholic Church, and attended benediction on the church lawn.

BAYONNE.—Members of the Government by Commission Association will start to-morrow a systematic canvass of the city in search of votes in favor of the idea. Every house is to be visited. The special election will be held June 13.

BAYONNE.—The recently organized German Reformed Church was dedicated yesterday afternoon, when the pastor, the Rev. H. G. Coenen, was installed.

HACKENSACK.—The Northern New Jersey Poultry Association has been incorporated to promote interest in pure bred poultry, and to hold annual shows of poultry and pet stock. The association is arranging a show to be given in the Hackensack Armory this Fall.

MONTCLAIR.—The Directors of the Y. M. C. A. are raising $5,000 to renovate the building, and add to equipment. Already $3,200 has been subscribed. When $4,000 is at hand one citizen has promised to give the last $1,000.

CHILD FINDS PARENTS DEAD ON THE FLOOR

Five-Year-Old Florence Rowden Walks Six Blocks to Get Help to Awaken Them.

HUSBAND HAD KILLED WIFE

Then Shot Himself—They Had Quarreled Frequently Because of His Jealousy.

While his three babies were asleep in an adjoining room, William Rowden, a bricklayer, shot and killed his wife, Margaret, in the kitchen of their home on the fifth floor of 332 East 144th Street, some time after midnight yesterday, and then killed himself. The dead woman's family declare that jealousy was the cause of the shooting, while the friends of the man assert that he was temporarily deranged from an injury to his skull.

The crime was discovered by Florence, the five-year-old daughter of the couple, shortly after 6 o'clock yesterday morning. Florence, her three-year-old sister, Marian, and her sixteen-months-old brother, William, had been put to bed in their room adjoining the kitchen on the previous night by their father. The mother had been away from the house since early in the afternoon. At a late hour the child was awakened by a quarrel between the parents.

In the morning she saw them lying on the kitchen floor. She thought they were sleeping, but failing to awaken them realized that something was wrong. She dressed herself and set out for the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Robert Talbot, at 250 East 142d Street, six blocks away. Mrs. Talbot noticed a red streak in the golden curls of her granddaughter. The child told her that there was blood on the kitchen floor.

Mrs. Talbot summoned her son, Robert, who went to the Rowden flat, found the bodies, and notified the police of the Alexander Avenue Station.

Mrs. Rowden called on her mother Saturday afternoon and told her she had left her husband to put the children to bed. He wanted to know where she was going, but she refused to tell him. She told him that he had deserted her for a week because of his insane jealousy, and she intended to give him a dose of his own medicine by going out without letting him know where she was going. She spent the day with her mother, and in the evening the two women went to the theatre. Mrs. Rowden returned home alone shortly before midnight.

Rowden fired two shots into his wife's left temple, and then killed himself with a shot into his own temple.

Rowden, his friends say, fractured his skull a number of years ago, and a month ago an iron bolt fell on his head, causing him a painful injury.

Competitive Advertising often truly Cooperative

IF you manufacture a line of goods that is already being advertised by one or more competitors, is it too late for you to advertise except at a prohibitive expenditure?

The answer is that the advertising of your competitors will be a help to you, not a hindrance. It will make each dollar you spend accomplish more, and your advertising, in turn, will strengthen that of your competitors by creating new users.

In advertising your product you strive to impress on the consumer a certain idea that makes your goods worth buying. Your competitor's advertising helps impress that same idea that is behind both of your goods. With every succeeding advertiser, the general campaign for the advertised group of your kind of goods becomes more powerful. It is only a question of time before you have awakened a demand for those advertised goods as a whole that will sweep each individual advertiser to success.

You may pick examples at random:

Only a few years ago a manufacturer began a national advertising campaign of men's clothing. He was very successful. Concern after concern followed him. To-day twenty-eight concerns are nationally advertising better clothes for men.

We believe that any automobile manufacturer will agree that the marvellous popularity of the automobile to-day is the direct result of the tremendous cumulative advertising message concerning the pleasure and usefulness of automobiling.

The manufacturer who wants more light will get helpful suggestions from our 40 page booklet on Modern Merchandising.

PORTUGUESE POLLS BRING NO UPRISING

Fears of Assembly Elections So Far Seem Groundless, as Perfect Order Prevails.

NO ROYALIST CANDIDATES

Country Is, Therefore, Indifferent to Issue—Regular Republicans Expected to Defeat Independents.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 28.—To-night's dispatches from both Lisbon and Oporto state that the general elections are proceeding in perfect quiet and with public indifference. There is no excitement over the results of the polling, as there is no opposition to Republican candidates.

In connection with the reports of a projected counter-revolution, The Daily Mail has received the following dispatches from Tuy, on the Spanish-Portuguese frontier, dated Friday night:

"The entire absence of news from the north in the Lisbon press decided me to ascertain the real facts of the situation at first hand. I motored from Lisbon to Coimbra, meeting nothing unusual en route. At stations along the Atlantic Coast line from Castillo to Valencia I saw many sailors, and, at Caminha, silhouettes of a gunboat and a warship loomed in the evening mist.

At Valencia, the last station in Portugal, considerable nervousness prevailed, and the local Magistrate had fled for protection to Spain. I am told that numerous arrests have been made here at Tuy, which is one of the principal strongholds of the Portuguese monarchist refugees.

I speedily obtained confirmation of the reality of the monarchist plot. Senhor Alessandro de Albuquerque, one of the chief heads of the conspiracy, spoke hopefully of the Royalist plans, which he outlined in some detail; but I must confess that I saw no signs of any revolt being imminent in Portugal, save for the obvious apprehensions of the Republican Government.

Tuy is full of Royalist emigres, and enthusiastic monarchist women have masses said in the churches for the cause.

LISBON, May 28.—Perfect order prevailed to-day at the elections for the constituent Assembly, which were held throughout the country. In thirty out of fifty-one constituencies the seats were disputed by candidates of the directors of the Republican Party, the Independent Republican, and Socialist Parties. In the other constituencies the regular Republicans were unopposed.

The Monarchists abstained from putting forward candidates, declaring that the elections presented no guarantees of liberty or sincerity. Instead they circulated all sorts of rumors of a counter revolution, an armed invasion by way of the Galacian frontier, and similar attempts against the Government.

The authorities took extraordinary precautions not only to preserve order, but to anticipate any revolutionary movement. Almost the entire fleet was concentrated in the north, but the intervention of armed force has not been necessary up to the present in any part of the republic.

The polling throughout was heavy, and the first results indicate that a majority of the 231 Deputies will be regular Republicans. A few Independent Republicans and Socialists are likely to win their elections, but the general opinion is that while the Government may have to meet certain divergencies of opinion in the Assembly, there will be nothing like systematic opposition.

In Lisbon police patroled the streets all night, but there were no disturbances. The balloting continued throughout the day, and will continue to-morrow. The regulars carried the day easily in this city. One woman, Dr. Beatrix Angelo, recorded her vote amid thunders of applause.

At Oporto all was peaceful, the Republicans keeping close watch on the Socialists.

It is announced that the discussions of the constituent Assembly will be confined, first, to a law defining the political powers of the republic; second, to organic laws relating to each of these powers, including an electoral law; third, to acts of dictatorship on the part of the Provisional Government, and, fourth, to the budget.

Several of the civil Governors have made representations to the Government, urging the necessity of modification of the separation law, and it is understood that a special bill will be introduced in the Assembly dealing with this subject.

CHILEAN ATTACK ON PERU.

Iquique Rioters Assail Peruvian Club and Burn Flag—Several Hurt.

IQUIQUE, Chile, May 28.—A mob to-day attacked the Peruvian Club and burned the flag of Peru. Troops were summoned to quell the rioting, and several persons were wounded. The Peruvian Consul has resigned and has asked the American Consul to protect Peruvian interests here.

The organization of the mob and the rioting that followed were the outcome of the publication in the newspapers that the Chilean Consulate at Callao, Peru, had been attacked and the Consul wounded.

Diplomatic relations between Peru and Chile were severed more than a year ago. The Chilean Government withdrew its legation at Lima, and the Peruvian Minister was recalled from Santiago. This action was brought about by the expulsion of Peruvian priests from the provinces of Tacna and Arica. The actual dispute between Chile and Peru rests on the question of the ownership of Tacna and Arica Provinces, to decide which a plebiscite of the inhabitants of these provinces has been suggested.

Recently Peruvian activity near the Chilean border has been reported, and Chile has added considerably to its garrisons at Tacna and other points.

London Jewelers Receive Apologies from Newspapers for Saying They Were.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 28.—Several London papers are busy printing apologies to a West End jewelry firm, whom they named as the victims of an alleged confidence trick played upon them by a trio of Americans at a leading hotel.

The story proved to be entirely false, and the papers strove to make amends accordingly.

OUR SAILORS AGAIN FETED.

Denmark Entertains Petty Officers—50,000 Inspect Battleships.

COPENHAGEN, May 28.—The Navy Department to-day entertained 400 petty officers of the American squadron to motor trips and a dinner at the Tivoli Garden. Each of the guests was presented with a cigar case emblazoned with the Danish and American arms.

The officers of the squadron attended a race meeting and dined at the American Legation. The American warships were open to the public to-day, and 50,000 persons inspected the vessels. The King has ordered that no festivities be canceled on account of the death of his uncle, Prince John.

NEW ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA

Applications Mailed

TODAY—TOMORROW—WEDNESDAY

Will be included in the current list.

AFTER Wednesday applications will only be accepted at an advance of 50c per volume, or $14.50 per set, to be executed after all orders included in the current distribution have been delivered. Orders by telegraph will be acknowledged in the same manner.

The 11th edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica is a valuable book because it represents a capital investment for editorial work alone that was without precedent in publishing.

The 11th edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica is a cheap book because remarkable economies effected in its manufacture are reflected in its price.

The editorial outlay before a single copy was offered for sale was $815,000, and the total outlay, including cost of typesetting, plates, maps, etc., was $1,150,000.

The number of sets included in the first issue, of which the lists close on the 31st inst., will probably exceed 30,000 (870,000 volumes).

The continuous production in one operation of so large an edition of the largest book that ever went to the press at one time greatly lowers the cost of manufacture.

The manufacturing cost would have been doubled had the 11th edition, like the 9th, been produced volume by volume over a series of years.

Special Features of the 11th Edition

I. The new edition is being published by the Press of the University of Cambridge, England.

II. It comprises some 40,000 articles, 40,000,000 words, more than 7,000 illustrations, 450 full-page plates, and over [illegible] maps.

III. Though a lineal descendant of ten editions of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, the new work is in no sense revision of the obsolete text of its predecessor. It has been completely recast and rewritten and is an absolutely fresh, authoritative and up-to-date survey and exposition of the whole field of human knowledge.

IV. The plan of the Encyclopaedia has been thoroughly reorganized with a view to combining comprehensiveness with brevity, exhaustive treatment of major subjects with the greatest facility of reference in the case of minor subjects.

V. Something like 15,000 new headings have been added.

VI. The articles have been written by 1,500 contributors—scholars of the highest distinction, and experts and practical men and women whose authority in their special subjects is unimpeachable.

VII. A large and distinguished staff of editors (constituting with the 1,500 contributors a virtual College of Research) has been at work for eight years on the production of the new edition; and the organization and editorial control have all along been so perfect that an unprecedented congruity and co-ordination have been attained.

VIII. Each article is right up to date and all the latest discoveries and results of research have been incorporated.

IX. The whole work has been written simultaneously and is being published practically at one time, not volume by volume as heretofore.

X. To an extent never before realized the work is cosmopolitan—universal. Each article is the work of a first-hand authority, irrespective of whether he happened to live in Great Britain or the United States or France or Germany or Japan or any other civilized country. On the list of contributors are to be found the names of 200 members of the staffs of 39 American Colleges and Universities (besides many names of American practical experts).

XI. The problem of bulk has been happily solved by the issue of an edition on India paper with flexible bindings. In this format the volumes, though containing from 960 to 1,060 pages each, are only 1 inch thick. There is also an impression on ordinary book paper.

Orders are being acknowledged so far as is possible on the day of their receipt, but at the present rate of increase acknowledgment in many cases will be a day or two delayed.

A DUTY PERFORMED

The Cambridge University Press, founded nearly 400 years ago for the diffusion of learning, in assuming control of the Encyclopaedia Britannica regarded its sale at a low price as an inherent characteristic of the undertaking. To place the work within reach of the greatest number of readers, by naming the lowest price, was, in their estimation, to be accounted an essential element of their trust when taking over the copyright. For the moment, at any rate, they are satisfied that, in the advance offer, this part of their obligation is fulfilled to the utmost. They believe that, in respect of cheapness, no publication whatever is comparable with the 11th edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica at $4.00 a volume.

Therefore they are endeavouring by means of the widest publicity (no agents or canvassers being employed) to bring the nature of the present opportunity to the notice of as many as possible of the thousands of Americans (450,000 bought the ninth edition) who will ultimately acquire the work. The reader is accordingly advised that by registering his application at once he will still be entitled to profit by economies (arising from manufacture on an unprecedented scale) to which he will directly contribute if his order is included in this first distribution.

A NECESSARY LIMIT TO PRODUCTION

In view of the extraordinary eagerness of the bookbuying public to acquire the new edition at the unprecedented price at which it is now offered it has become necessary that the publishers, for manuturing reasons, shall limit their contractual obligation in the matter of future deliveries. For the present no provision can be made to fill more applications, and no more copies of the book will be printed or bound than shall be actually called for under the present previous to-publication offer. When the last application bearing the post mark of the 31st has been received, the existing contracts for printing and binding will be finally adjusted and the publishers will devote their entire attention to the completion of the task of manufacturing, as an unbroken series of operations, over 30,000 copies (870,000 volumes) of the largest book that ever was in the press at one time.

Illustrated prospectus (40 pages), 56 specimen pages on India paper, 4 specimen plates and form of application showing the special advance terms, will be sent upon receipt of request.

The Sales Office of the Cambridge University Press Is Open Evenings until 10 P. M., and will be OPEN ON DECORATION DAY (TUESDAY, MAY 30TH).

By having the book written as a whole and the entire first issue manufactured as a whole in one continuous operation the publishers have produced a vastly better edition than the 9th at about half the selling price of that work ($4.00 a volume, as against $7.50).

But to benefit by their foresight the reader must register his application by the 31st. Orders received after that date will be dealt with only when the first distribution has been effected and then at prices of 50 cents a volume or $14.50 per set higher than those now in force for 2 days longer.

Even if he is going away for the summer or for any other reason cannot accept delivery till the fall, he can still avail himself of the present low prices.

For if he registers his application on or before May 31 it will be included in the current lists. The volumes will then be held subject to his order, nor need his payments begin until he actually receives them.

MILITARY FIELD MASS FOR NATION'S DEAD

More Than 30,000 Persons Attend Outdoor Service in Brooklyn Navy Yard.

ALTAR ON PARADE GROUND

Military and Civic Organizations, Police, Firemen, and Other City Employes Attend in a Body.

Thirty thousand persons attended yesterday the ninth annual field mass on the parade ground of the Marine Barracks in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, under the auspices of the United Spanish War Veterans, Gloucester Camp, No. 5, and the Long Island Chapter of the Knights of Columbus.

The weather conditions were ideal, and long before the yard gates were opened the neighborhood of the entrance to the parade ground was jammed with people waiting to be admitted. It was an orderly crowd, however, and the police had no difficulty in handling the situation. Before the gates were opened to the public the military and fraternal organizations were placed in the positions allotted to them on the ground. This took time, and it was not until 11 o'clock that the mass began.

From the balconies of the Marine Barracks the scene on the field was spectacular. In the centre of the north end of the parade ground was an altar stacked with flowers and outlined with lighted tapers. In the background overhanging part of the altar was a large American flag. The National colors were also displayed along the balconies of the barracks.

The military organizations on the field with their standards made an impressive sight. There were sailors and soldiers from the navy and army, the Sixty-ninth Regiment from Manhattan, detachments from Brooklyn regiments, the Police Department, the letter carriers, the Street Cleaning Department, cadet and life saving corps, public officials and representatives from city departments.

Not a sound was heard as the Sanctus was intoned. At the elevation of the Host a detachment of marines which formed the guard of honor in front of the altar "presented arms," and the military and civic bodies stood reverently at attention. Officers drew their swords and the roll of drums was heard.

Many who arrived late were unable to get into the yard. They witnessed the spectacle from the streets. From the roofs of buildings in the vicinity hundreds viewed the ceremony.

The Rev. John L. Belford, rector of the Church of the Nativity, Madison Street, near Classon Avenue, Brooklyn, spoke on religion and patriotism. He referred reverently to the dead soldiers and sailors of the Nation, saying that the service was for men of all creeds who died for their country. He defended the Catholic Church against the charge that she was unfriendly to the Republic.

The mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Matthew C. Gleason, Chaplain of the receiving ship Hancock, assisted by the Rev. John P. Chidwick, who was Chaplain of the Maine when she was destroyed in Havana Harbor, and who now is President of Dunwoodie Seminary, and the Rev. John F. Nash, rector of the Church of the Sacred Heart, Brooklyn, who for many years was Chaplain to the sailors and marines of the navy yard.

The choir, consisting of a hundred voices, was directed by Arthur S. Somers, Past District Deputy of the Knights of Columbus. Selections from the masses of Gounod and Haydn were given by an orchestra, and the Navy Yard, Police, and Letter Carriers' Bands played patriotic airs.

In the navy yard yesterday the Red Cross Society erected hospital tents. No cases of heat prostration were reported, but fifteen persons fainted from long standing in the sun.

GRAVES DECORATED.

Army and Navy Union Holds Services in National Cemetery.

About 5,000 persons from many parts of Brooklyn and Queens gathered in the National Cemetery at Cypress Hills yesterday afternoon to watch the decoration of the graves by the Army and Navy Union and other military organizations.

Before the exercises in the cemetery, which are held annually on the Sunday preceding Decoration Day, there was a parade which started from the grounds of the historic Schenck mansion, in Highland Park. The parade was reviewed at the cemetery by Gen. J. Edwin Browne, National Commander of the Army and Navy Union, and other officers.

A special guard of honor at the reviewing stand was formed of the members of Company A, Forty-seventh Regiment, N. G. N. Y., commanded by Capt. Alfred D. Ecke.

WASHINGTON POST AT CHURCH.

Two Dozen Members Attend Memorial Service in St. Paul's.

Two dozen members of the George Washington Post, G. A. R., attended a memorial service last evening in St. Paul's Church, West End Avenue and Eighty-sixth Street. Dr. George P. Eckman, the pastor, delivered a sermon, taking his text from Exodus, xii., 26: "What mean ye by this service?"

"We are here to pay a grateful tribute to the soldiers, living and dead, who gave themselves to perpetuate our Union. We are here to glorify the memory of the men who fought to preserve our country. I believe that patriotism and religion go together, and I would have my desk on this platform always draped with the National colors.

"The Declaration of Independence, which insured us our country, and the Emancipation Proclamation, which at the stroke of a pen freed three millions of people, are documents which are fit to be placed alongside the Sermon on the Mount and the Ten Commandments. When we look at this flag we recognize that we are here to honor the men who preserved it for us unstained by treason."

Speaking of the wars in which the country has been engaged, he said that they were not for aggrandizement or expansion of territory.

"Our wars have been fought for great principles. The men of both sides believed that they were in the right when they marched to the front. Let us hold up their ideals and teach our children to uphold them."

SERVICE FOR G. A. R. POSTS.

Tributes Read from Gov. Dix, Gen. Grant, and Secretary Stimson.

Letters from Gov. Dix, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, and Major Gen. Frederick D. Grant were read last night at a memorial service in Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, West 104th Street, near Columbus Avenue, which was attended by civil war veterans representing John A. Dix, Phil Kearney, E. A. Kimball, Lloyd Aspinwall, J. L. Riker, and Joe Hooker Posts, G. A. R. Seven other military organizations also were represented.

Dr. Christian F. Reisner, the pastor, preached on "Future Citizens." Gov. Dix's letter said:

> Permit me to send a word of greeting to the old soldiers who worship at your church. In offering their lives for the perpetuation of a free republic they won the gratitude of their fellow-countrymen and all lovers of liberty in every part of the world. The flag with its glory undimmed by the loss of a single star is their best trophy, and will forever bear testimony to their valor and illustrious service. I join you in doing honor to them.

VETERANS AT ST. PATRICK'S.

Attend a Vesper Service at the Cathedral, Escorted by Guardsmen.

Twelve hundred members of the United Spanish War Veterans attended yesterday their annual memorial service in St. Patrick's Cathedral. The veterans assembled in the Twelfth Regiment Armory, Columbus Avenue and Sixty-second Street, and marched to the cathedral, led by their drum and bugle corps and escorted by Company 14 of the Fifth Coast Artillery, Company B, Twelfth Regiment, N. G. N. Y., and Company B, Sixty-ninth Regiment, N. G. N. Y. The services included an address by the Rev. John P. Chidwick, who was Chaplain of the battleship Maine, and a roll call of members of the organization who have died in the last year.

The veterans, Past Commanders John S. Adair and Maurice Simmons and present Deputy Commander William J. Cunningham at their head, reached the cathedral just as the 4 o'clock vesper chimes were ringing.

ROOSEVELT AT GRANT'S TOMB

To Deliver Oration at Memorial Day Exercises.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt will deliver the oration that will close the public memorial services to be held to-morrow afternoon at Grant's Tomb under the auspices of the U. S. Grant Post of the Grand Army of the Republic. The oration follows immediately upon the reading of the regular ritual service for the dead, and is delivered on the platform erected to the west of the tomb. Afterward the veterans pass inside to cast flowers upon the black marble sarcophagus.

The care of the tomb and the annual visit to it on Memorial Day are the cherished privilege of this post of the G. A. R., the only one at this end of the State to have its own building, which is at 489 Washington Avenue, Brooklyn. There are three hundred veterans, and the membership of the associate society is large and noteworthy.

The U. S. Grant Post won its right to serve as special guardians to the tomb by its services at the time Grant died. The post offered to stand guard by the body and this offer was accepted by the family of the former President. Members of the post attended Grant's body from the time of his death until it reached its final resting place on Riverside Drive.

Every year some one is called upon to deliver the oration. Last year it was the Rev. Nehemiah Boynton, and in the course of the quarter century in which the services have been held speakers have been called from all parts of the country. Two of them have been ex-Confederates.

The "Friends of Fifty-one"—Public School No. 51, that is—have selected Memorial Day as a fitting occasion to unveil a tablet in memory of Martin H. Ray, who was teacher and Principal for forty-three years. Senator O'Gorman, one of his former pupils, has been asked to unveil the tablet.

CHURCHES' SUMMER APPEAL.

Trinity Chapel to Join Those Having Special Preachers.

Announcement was made at Trinity Chapel, Twenty-fifth Street, near Broadway, yesterday of a radical departure in its plans. It will join this year the list of churches appealing especially to Summer visitors, as St. Bartholomew's, the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian, and a very few other churches have long done. To back its appeal it has some of the same preachers who have attracted large numbers to other churches in New York in other seasons.

On Sunday mornings, July 2 and 9, the preacher will be Bishop Williams of Michigan, whose sermon at St. Bartholomew's two Summers ago brought National attention. On July 16, 23, and 30 and Aug. 6 Bishop Woodcock of Kentucky will be heard, and the concluding August Sundays will be taken by Bishop Weller of Fond du Lac.

At St. Bartholomew's yesterday it was announced that in August the Rev. J. Stuart Holden of St. Paul's, Portman Square, London, will return. This is his fourth Summer at this church.

ROCKEFELLER BLEST BY AGED MINISTER

Financier Thanks the Rev. Dr. Clifford for His Sermon on the Equality of Men.

THEY COMPARE THEIR AGES

St. John's Conception of Christ in Its Relation to Men Set Forth by the British Preacher.

John D. Rockefeller heard yesterday morning in the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church the Rev. Dr. John Clifford of London, England, who has been characterized by the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, Lloyd-George, as the greatest fighter since Cromwell's time, preach on the equality of men.

After the service Dr. John B. Calvert, formerly editor of The Baptist Examiner, introduced the two men. Mr. Rockefeller placed one hand on the shoulder of the preacher and said:

"We were glad to hear you. We are delighted to have you with us."

"It is a pleasure for me to be here," responded Dr. Clifford.

The two conversed for a few moments, and Mr. Rockefeller remarked that the aged minister looked hale and hearty and fit for many more years of useful service. At that Dr. Clifford smilingly inquired how old Mr. Rockefeller was.

"Seventy-two," was the answer.

"Dear me," said Dr. Clifford. "I have gone past that mark by two years. Is your health good, Mr. Rockefeller?"

"I am in good health," said Mr. Rockefeller. "I am feeling very well, thank you."

A moment later the two men clasped hands once more, and Dr. Clifford said "God bless you."

The financier turned, and with a wave of the hand called back:

"And God bless you, Dr. Clifford."

Dr. Clifford came to America as a delegate to the Lake Mohonk Peace Conference. He is the pastor of the Westbourne Park Baptist Church in London, and without intermission has served there from the beginning of his ministry fifty-three years ago. He is President of the World's Baptist Alliance, and has been one of the leaders in the contest over British educational questions.

Dr. Clifford's text was taken from the fourth verse of the first chapter of St. John: "In Him was life; and life was the light of men."

He spoke of St. John's conception of Christ, and how he passed this on in the inspired first eighteen verses of his Gospel. These, he declared, are "without parallel in the literature of the world," for the conciseness with which they summarize the teachings of Christ.

From this the preacher went on to tell of the coming equality of man, when peace shall dwell throughout the world.

"The time is coming," said Dr. Clifford, "when the rights of the individual will be recognized from one end of the world to the other, and when the underlying principle of this Republic, freedom for all, will be the rule for all nations.

"Christ defined for us the value of the human unit, and made it impossible for us to treat men as if they were mere tools, as has been done in the past and is done by some to-day. The time is surely coming when the rights of every individual will be respected.

"Your educators do more by their lives than by their words. The greatest force in the world is in the life of the teacher. Always we learn lessons best from living examples. Lincoln lived his life—one of devotion to the poor and needy—and his life became a beacon of light for human freedom and a light by which thousands have been led."

Faith in World Peace.

The Rev. Siegmund Schultze, minister of the Court Church at Potsdam, Germany, and the Rev. Frederick Lynch, both fresh from the Peace Conference at Lake Mohonk, spoke on some of the aspects of the international movement for the abolition of war last evening at the Mount Morris Baptist Church on Fifth Avenue, above 126th Street. Both testified to their confidence in the value of the proposed increase of international hospitality as part of the work to be done under the Carnegie Foundation.

FARLEY LAYS CORNERSTONE.

Crowd at Ceremonies Making Start of Church of Ascension's New School.

Archbishop Farley laid yesterday the cornerstone of the new parochial school of the Church of the Ascension, in 108th Street, near Broadway. Nearly 1,000 persons, on an improvised platform, watched the ceremony, and the street and the windows of the surrounding buildings were crowded. Before the ceremonies there was a procession, in which detachments of the Sixty-ninth Regiment and the Knights of Columbus joined.

The address of welcome was made by the Rev. Edwin M. Sweeny, pastor of the church. He was followed by Mgr. Lavelle, who said, in part:

"The Catholic school is the most efficient engine for the propagation of the faith. There are to-day, according to the report for the year 1910, 4,972 Catholic elementary schools in the United States, and these schools have a total enrollment of 1,270,131 pupils. Every State and every Territory in this Union has its Catholic schools. There are five already in distant frigid Alaska. In our own diocese there are 156, with 77,683 pupils. These cost $891,705 for their maintenance last year, and the value of the property and the land on which they stand is $13,186,000."

After this the National flag was blessed by the Archbishop and raised by members of the Sixty-ninth Regiment; William Michael Byrne made an address, and the afternoon's ceremonies were closed by an address by the Archbishop.

The new school will cost about $120,000 and was designed by F. A. de Meuron. The laying of the cornerstone of the Church of the Ascension occurred just fifteen years ago yesterday.

New Thought Makes English Converts.

Dr. Julia Seaton Sears, founder of the New Thought School, returned yesterday on the White Star liner Baltic. She has been lecturing in London, where there are 169 New Thought graduates, about equally divided between the sexes. She will receive a welcome from the New Thought exponents at the Waldorf on Friday night. She will lecture in Canada and return to England.

We understand that on July 1st, 1910, the city had $78,000,000 for subways, and that on July 1st, 1911, it will have $30,000,000 more, making a total of $108,000,000. This map represents the Interborough's idea of what the city should do with that money.

$110,000,000 of the city's money, plus $140,000,000 to be contributed by the Interborough, will construct and equip this entire system. This is $58,000,000 less city money than called for by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit proposition.

TIMELY HITTING WINS FOR PIRATES

Cincinnati Makes Ninth-Inning Rally, but Loses by 7 to 5 Score.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 28.—The Pirates hit Suggs opportunely to-day and won a long game by a score of 7 to 5. Hans Wagner hit the ball twice with runners on the bases, one of his smashes being a two-bagger. Leifield was hit hard, but was effective in the pinches.

Pittsburg took the lead and stayed in front until the third inning, when the Reds tied the score. The fourth inning was marked by some hard hitting which netted the Pirates two more runs.

The Reds went to bat in the last half of the ninth 4 runs behind. They fell upon Leifield and for a time it looked as if the belated rally was going to be disastrous to the Pirates. After two runs had been scored Leifield settled down and held the Reds safely.

Cincinnati played a ragged game in the field, Egan having a nervous day at second, with three errors. The game was characterized by heavy hitting, Hunter, Bates and Wilson driving out three-baggers. The score:

St. Louis Hits Three Detroit Pitchers Hard and Wins, 12 to 6.

DETROIT, Mich., May 28.—Detroit received a setback to-day when the Browns pounded three of the Tigers' pitchers and ran away with the game by a 12-to-6 score. It was a long-drawn-out, listless game, the only feature being the sensational fielding of Bush, the Detroit shortstop, who had nine hard chances, fielding them all cleanly. Covingtotn was batted out of the box in the third inning, and Works failed to stop the bombardment. Willett finished the game, and was also hit freely. The score:

COSTER DEFEATS CONLEY.

Brooklyn Fighter Administers Severe Beating in Twenty Rounds.

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 28.—Joe Coster of Brooklyn administered a severe beating to Frankie Conley of Kenosha, Wis., to-day in a twenty-round bout. Three judges were unanimous in awarding it to the Brooklyn boy, and he is now slated to meet Abe Attell for the featherweight championship. Conley was a 7-to-5 favorite with the crowd, which fairly well filled the arena and sweltered in the excessive heat. Both pugilists appeared to be in excellent condition. They weighed 122 pounds.

Coster led off with a left to the chin, a short, vicious jab which he used almost at will after the eighth round, cutting the Kenosha boy's lips until they were raw. The continued hammering developed a swelling on Conley's right cheek almost as large as a baseball and huge welts over both eyes by the time the bout had ended.

Only in the seventh round did Conley make much of a showing. He then forced the fighting, and in clinches landed on Coster's mouth and nose. In the first, fifth, sixth, fifteenth and nineteenth rounds the honors were about even, but with the exception of the seventh Coster had the fighting all his own way, beating Conley at his own game of infighting. It was the first time Coster has engaged in a twenty-round bout and it was his first appearance here.

INTERNATIONAL HIGHWAY.

Plans for Road from New York to Montreal Accepted.

Gov. Dix has presented the pen and penholder with which he signed the "New York-Montreal Road bill" to Howard D. Hadley of Plattsburg, N. Y., Chairman of the "New York to Montreal" Road Committee. This bill appropriates the sum of $1,500,000 for completing the State trunk highway system between New York and Rouse's Point. Mr. Hadley was not only a willing and efficient worker in behalf of the New York State end, but he also called a meeting in Montreal last February of the Mayors, Boards of Trade, automobile clubs, and agricultural societies, of all the towns between Rouse's Point, N. Y., and Montreal, Quebec, when he formed a Canadian committee of which George A. Simard of Montreal was made Chairman, through whose efforts a project for building a road from Rouse's Point to Montreal has finally been adopted.

The officials of the Province of Quebec have agreed to defray 75 per cent. of the cost of the route from provincial funds, and the municipalities and towns along the route are to pay the remaining 25 per cent. of the total cost.

Miss May Sutton Coming East.

Women lawn tennis players in this section of the country have become aroused by the announcement that again the two Californians, Miss May Sutton, the only American who has distinguished herself by winning an English championship, and Miss Hazel Hotchkiss, present holder of the National title, are to make a conquest of the Eastern courts this season. As a consequence there is to be a number of important women's tournaments leading up to the deciding of the National championship on the courts of the Philadelphia Cricket Club, Wissahickon Heights, Philadelphia, late in June.

WORLD'S RECORDS AT CELTIC PARK

Sheridan Scales Discus 141.4⅜—McGrath Throws 35-Pound Weight Nearly 54 Feet.

With one world's record established, another best on the books created, and an exceptional performance at 100 yards, the games of the New York Post Office Clerks' Association yesterday at Celtic Park, bristled with interesting periods. Probably 7,000 persons witnessed the sports, which were participated in by the largest fields of the season.

Martin Sheridan, holder of the discus record, demonstrated his competitive worth by snatching victory out of defeat in his last trial by scaling the Grecian missile the hitherto unprecedented distance of 141 feet 4⅜ inches, thereby displacing the world's best figures of 139 feet 10½ inches. Up to this throw, the mighty Irishman's chances of a win looked dubious, as he was conceding that much improved athlete Jim Duncan of the Mohawk A. C. eighteen inches. The latter had got the weight out the highly creditable distance of 137 feet, in his second throw, and looked all over a winner.

Matt McGrath of the New York A. C. signalized his return to active field work by establishing a world's record at throwing the 35-pound weight for distance. He got the weight the remarkable distance of 53 feet 11 inches, defeating among others the National champion at the "56," Con Walsh. Incidentally the contest savored of a New York A. C. competition, as all of the placed men were wearers of the Winged Foot. Simon Gillies was third with 47 feet 6¼ inches.

100-Yard Run; Handicap.—Final Heat—Won by Gwyn Henry, unattached, (scratch;) C. Nicholson, Laetitia A. C., (6½ yards,) second; H. Faber, Irish-American A. C., (6½ yards,) third. Time—0:10. Won by 1 yard; 1 foot between second and third.

100-Yard Run; Novice; Final Heat.—Won by I. Picard, Flatbush A. C.; A. Garretson, East Side A. C., second; F. Ward, Paulist A. C., third. Time—0:10 4-5. Won by 1 yard easily; 1 foot between second and third.

Throwing Discus; Handicap.—Won by Martin J. Sheridan, Irish-American A. C., (scratch,) with 141 feet 4⅜ inches; J. H. Duncan, Mohawk A. C., (1 foot, 6 inches,) second, with 137 feet; T. Ryan, Irish-American A. C., (20 feet,) third, with 117 feet, 8¼ inches. All actual throws.

600-Yard Run; Handicap; Catholic Athletic League; Final Heat.—Won by M. J. McLoughlin, Knights of St. Antony, (scratch;) E. Quinn, Loughlin Lyceum, (20 yards,) second; L. Schloesser, Loughlin Lyceum, (14 yards,) third. Time—1:14 1-5. Won by 3 yards; 1 yard between second and third.

One-Mile Walk; Handicap.—Won by K. Hearns, Morris A. A., (14 seconds;) F. Plant, Long Island A. C., (20 seconds,) second; Samuel Schwartz, Pastime A. C., (scratch,) third. Time—7:30 4-5. Won by 10 yards; 25 yards between second and third.

800-Yard Run; Handicap; Final Heat.—Won by P. Houser, National A. C., (16 yards;) J. McCole, Trinity Club, (15 yards,) second; H. Desmond, Smart Set A. C., (unknown,) third. Time—0:31 2-5. Won by 2 yards; 1 yard between second and third.

1,000-Yard Run; Handicap; Final Heat.—Won by J. McCabe, All Saints' Lyceum, (56 yards;) G. Wilcox, Mott Haven A. C., (48 yards,) second; S. Janney, Jr., Pastime A. C., (50 yards,) third. Time—2:14 1-5. Won by 4 yards; inches between second and third.

Medley Relay Race; One Mile and Seven-Eighths; Handicap.—Won by Irish-American A. C. team, composed of A. R. Kiviat, (880;) R. Cloughan, (220;) J. M. Rosenberger, (440,) and F. M. Riley, (1 mile,) scratch; Irish-American A. C. second team, composed of Egan, (880;) Conway, (220;) Schaff, (440,) and Gaffney, (1 mile,) 50 yards, second; Mohawk A. C. team, composed of Ogg, (880;) Smith, (220;) Miller, (440,) and Hills, (1 mile,) 130 yards, third. Time—7:46 2-5. Won by 75 yards; 50 yards between second and third.

220 Yard Run. Handicap; Postal Employes.—Won by O. Heilmann, Grand Central Station, (6 yards;) A. Parkhouse, Station B, (5 yards,) second; J. E. Harris, Hudson Terminal Station, (scratch,) third. Time—0:23 2-5. Won by 2 yards; 1 yard between second and third.

Throwing 35-Pound Weight, Handicap.—Won by Matt McGrath, New York A. C., (scratch,) with 53 feet 11 inches; Con Walsh, New York A. C., (scratch,) second, with 52 feet 9½ inches; Simon P. Gillies, New York A. C., (3 feet,) third, with 47 feet 6¼ inches.

880-Yard Run, Handicap; Postal Employes.—Won by A. Dougherty, Station A, (18 yards;) W. De Baun, Grand Central Station, (scratch,) second; J. Gardner, Grand Central Station, (20 yards,) third. Time—2:04 2-5. Won by 10 yards; 9 yards between second and third.

RELAY RACE ON HUDSON.

New York Motor Boat Club Celebrates Opening with Novel Event.

The New York Motor Boat Club had its formal opening for the season of 1911 at the clubhouse, 147th Street and the Hudson River, yesterday. At 12 o'clock the club pennant was hoisted by the Commodore, A. T. S. Clark, beginning a varied programme, which continued throughout the afternoon and evening.

The feature of the day was a novelty in motor boat racing, a relay race of twelve miles over a triangular course covering three miles. Four teams, each made up of four boats, competed in this event, the start, each relay, and the finish being directly in front of the clubhouse. The boats were handicapped according to their 1910 performances. The team known as the Reds, won the race, covering the distance in 1:41:10, with the Yellow, Green, and White teams following in the order named. The last of the quartet covered the course in 1:56:00, almost fifteen minutes after the winner.

The teams were made up as follows:

Red Team.—Rex, H. L. Allen; Sea Fox, C. J. Breck; Arlington II., J. Klipper; Respite, V. C. Peterson. Time—1:46:10.

Yellow Team.—Gracelda, D. B. Brinsmade; Quita, D. Menke; Edith H., W. A. Madison; Tyro, C. J. Leonardi. Time—1:43:30.

Green Team.—Twin Kid, P. A. Valance; Monreve, E. E. Barney; Mabel F., J. Flynn; Blondy, A. Sacht. Time—1:49:30.

White Team.—Kid II., C. H. Douglas, Jr.; Consort, C. F. Chapman; Wag, M. Kellogg; Mon Plaisir, W. A. Latimer. Time—1:56:00.

Trying to Enjoin Aviator Goodale.

Claiming breach of contract, the Airship Trust, otherwise known as the Stroble International Aviation Company of Toledo, Ohio, headed by Charles J. Stroble as President, is seeking to restrain Frank Goodale, the daring young aviator, from making daily flights through the Summer and from fulfilling his agreement with the Schenck Brothers, managers of Palisades Park. Application was made Saturday for a preliminary injunction, and a rule issued by the Court of Chancery of Jersey City for a hearing this morning to show cause why Goodale should not be restrained from flying.

Vanderbilt Wins Race at Longchamps.

PARIS, May 28.—W. K. Vanderbilt's Hessian to-day won the Prix du Trocadero, at eleven furlongs, at the Longchamps course. His La Hire finished second for the Prix du Parc Princes, a three-year-old event, at eleven furlongs, stake $2,000. Nash Turner's Alby was second for the Prix de Neuilly, a selling race at one mile and seven furlongs.

WELLS AND CROSS MATCHED

In International Event at Madison A. C. Friday Night.

Through the matching late last night of Matt Wells, the lightweight champion of England, and Leach Cross, at the Madison Square A. C. for Friday night, the boxing situation for the week was sent a-glimmering, as the Englishman had been carded against Jack Goodman on Friday night at the same club, while Cross was scheduled to go with Benny Franklin to-night at the Olympic A. C.

The weight agreed upon yb Wells and Cross is 135 pounds at 3 o'clock.

Jack Goodman is said to have been advised by his physician not to take part in any matches until next Fall, therefore his elimination. Wells has started training for the bout at Chester, Penn., under the care of Jack Ward, an English lightweight, and Dai Dolling, who trained Wells for his battle against Freddie Welsh.

If Cross intends to fulfill all of his engagements for the week he will certainly be a busy fellow. It is not known on what conditions he gained the match with Wells, with to-night's bout with Franklin at the Olympic Club in prospect and previously arranged, but it is the consensus of opinion that the gravy in the shape of a good house will be spilled in the event of a slip-up with Franklin, who is considered a tough customer.

It almost goes without saying that Cross gave no consideration to the embarrassment he will cause the Olympic and Twentieth Century Clubs by signing up for Friday night with Wells.

The National Sporting Club will hold its show on Thursday nights during the Summer months, beginning this week, when Jim Smith, the Westchester light heavyweight, will clash with San Langford. Langford has not fought in New York since a year ago, when he disposed of Al Kubiak in two rounds at the Fairmont A. C., and the coming affair is attracting much interest. Smith has been making rapid progress among the heavy fellows, and is credited with giving Stanley Ketchel one of the greatest fights of his career.

Brown's gymnasium will have an unusually strong card to-morrow night—a welterweight contest between Honey Mellody, the American title holder, and Ted Nelson, the Australian champion. Mellody has been doing considerable fighting of late, and is confident that he will defeat the Australian.

The attraction at the Sharkey Club's weekly show Wednesday night will be two ten-round bouts, three of four rounds each, and a wrestling match.

The Long Acre A. C. will hold forth as usual on Thursday night with a ten-round bout between Dave Dillon, the Jersey lightweight, and Andy Cortez, the former amateur champion, as the feature of the show.

The usual week-end stags will be held at the Fairmont, Sharkey, and Long Acre Clubs Saturday night.

FIRST RACE FOR KRAMER.

Champion Wins One-Mile Bicycle Championship at Newark.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., May 28.—Frank Kramer won the preliminary, semi-final, and final heats yesterday in the one mile National championship at the Velodrome, scoring five points. Jackie Clarke came in with two points less, and Joe Fogler and Alfred Goullet followed in order. Fred Hill won the two-mile invitation professional after a plucky battle. The summaries:

One-Mile Professional Championship.—Won by Frank L. Kramer, East Orange; A. J. Clarke, Australia, second; Joseph A. Fogler, Brooklyn, third. Time—3:01 4-5.

Half-Mile Amateur, Handicap.—Won by Gus Wohlrab, Jersey City, (65 yards;) Anthony Revello, New York, (65 yards,) second; Chester Smith, Baldwin, L. I., (20 yards,) third. Time—0:58.

Three-Mile Amateur, Open.—Won by Chester Smith, Baldwin, L. I.; W. Pettit, Rockville Centre, L. I., second; Alvin Loftus, Providence, third. Time—6:33 1-5.

One-Mile Professional, Handicap.—Won by Clarence Carmen, Jamaica, L. I., (175 yards;) Floyd A. MacFarland, San Jose, (60 yards,) second; Percy Lawrence, San Francisco, (70 yards,) third. Time—1:56 4-5.

Five-Mile Motor Race Between Carl Rudden of Manchester, N. H., and James Hunter of Newark.—Won by Rudden. Time—5:52.

Two-Mile Invitation, Professional.—Won by Fred Hill, Boston; Ernest Jokus, Newark, second; Floyd Krebs, Newark, third. Time—4:42 4-5.

SPILLS IN CYCLE RACES.

Several Bad Falls Marked Events on the Guttenberg Track.

Although there was a lack of entries at the motorcycle races at Guttenberg yesterday, owing to the crack riders being scattered throughout the East for the Decoration Day meets, the sport was interesting, and several exciting contests occurred. The Coxes—John and H. W. G.—were the winners in the four events on the card. The latter won his novice, and then followed this up by a victory in the five-mile private owners' race. He also finished third in the ten-mile trade riders' contest. John Cox won the novelty and ten-mile trade riders' races.

Several nasty falls marked the day's races. J. P. Constant, Jr., riding for the first time in the three-mile novice, struck a stone on the turn out of the backstretch on the first mile and fell. In avoiding Constant, C. Koehler was thrown from his machine and crashed into the fence. He was badly bruised, and also suffered a sprained leg. Constant was uninjured.

A four-mile professional foot race, in which Bill Queal, Kohlemeinen, Raines, and O'Driscoll participated, concluded the card. Kohlemeinen was the only one able to give Queal battle, and he finished second, a yard behind Queal, who was timed in 21 minutes 55 seconds.

Olympic Medal for Austrian Emperor.

BUDAPEST, May 28.—The International Committee of the Olympic games has conferred an Olympic medal on the Emperor. At a meeting to-day it was decided that the committee should hold another conference at Stockholm in 1912.

Ben Ma Chree B. C. Opening.

The Ben Ma Chree Boat Club formally opened its season yesterday with exercises at the clubhouse on Gravesend Bay, foot of Bay Twenty-second Street, Bath Beach. Commodore John Bellmar was in charge. There were music and refreshments for the hundreds of guests who visited the club during the afternoon and evening.

St. Louis Aviation Meet.

The week of Sept. 30 to Oct. 8 has been designated by the Board of Governors of the Aero Club of St. Louis for the holding of an international aviation meet. The meeting will be open to all comers. Inquiries already have been received from several of the foremost foreign aviators.

AUTOS READY FOR RACE OF DECADE

Motor Enthusiasts Mobilizing in Indianapolis for 500-Mile International Sweepstakes.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 28.—Probably the largest gathering of automobile enthusiasts in the history of the machine in this country began mobilizing in Indianapolis to-day to attend the 500-mile forty-thousand-dollar race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on Tuesday.

Several thousand persons motored into Indianapolis from all parts of the country, arriving tired, hot, and dusty, but all eager for the big race. Delegations from Chicago, Pittsburg, Cleveland, Detroit, and many other cities came by automobile, while as many more arrived aboard trains.

Nearly all the best-known manufacturers, drivers, and motor followers in the country are here or have representatives on the ground. Barney Oldfield was among those to arrive to-day.

Hotels, clubs, and rooming houses began filling up at a rapid rate, and by to-morrow many private residences will be pressed into service. Committees working under the direction of the Speedway management have prepared to take care of 100,000 visitors. Many of the visitors with their own cars are finding hotel accommodations in the suburbs and cities within a radius of twenty-five miles of the Speedway.

A force of one thousand laborers worked at the Speedway all day cleaning the brick track of oil and other accumulations. Large quantities of lye were used in this work. The grounds were closed to the public, and even the racers were not permitted to drive their cars on the track.

The twelve hundred park employes who will handle the crowds on Memorial Day were sent to their posts of duty and finally instructed and drilled this afternoon.

Bob Burman will attempt to-morrow to lower the world's Speedway record for the mile, half, and quarter mile. As soon as Burman has finished the ten cars remaining to take the elimination trials for the 500-mile race will be sent out on their speed tests.

FINAL TARGET SCORES.

The fifteen members of the Manhattan Rifle Club who for three days have shot in the international match against an equal number of French marksmen at Paris, completed their scores at the Greenville, N. J., range on Saturday afternoon. While H. M. Pope made the top individual score with the rifle, (770,) and P. Hanford scored the highest with the revolver, (777,) Dr. W. G. Hudson returned the highest aggregate score with both weapons. It was 1,504. His rifle score was 768 and his revolver 736. H. M. Pope was second, with 1,501, and J. A. Dietz third with 1,494. The total scores for the rifle foot up 10,042 and for the revolver 10,972, making a grand total of 21,014

TODAY for Men's Straw Hats

At the risk of being bromidic we will remind you that you simply can't go into the country tomorrow wearing a Derby Hat. Consequently, you will have to invest in Straw Perferred, today.

This Gimbel stock of Men's Straw Hats is all Preferred Stock. It has been criticized as the best collection of hats of the best quality for the money, to be found anywhere in New York.

Gimbel Rainproof Straw Hats at $2

A satisfactory sloution of the problem of keeping a new Straw Hat new. Rain won't spot or hurt them, dust can be wiped off with a damp cloth. They are fine for traveling; and very good hats at their price. In all dimensions, in sennit braids.

English Sennit Hats at $2

A special Gimbel importation; very light in weight, with cable edges that won't chip. Cork lining and cushion tops, which prevent the hat from coming down flat on one's head. Proper shape to fit the head comfortably; cushioned sweatband. You cannot equal these Hats in New York at their price.

$1 and $1.25 Nightgowns, 85c
$1.50 Nightgowns, $1
$2 and $2.25 Nightgowns, $1.50

Frankly, this special purchase was one of those unexpected occurrences that are always most pleasant. A well-known manufacturer who makes many undermuslins for us discovered this surplus of several thousand garments when he was getting ready for inventory the other day. And, indeed, we were glad to get them at his generous concessions so that we could make this next-to-the-last day of this May Sale memorable for our patrons as well as ourselves.

Thirty-two styles is a pleasing selection, is it not?

Savings of 10 to 25 per cent. prevail throughout our May Sale of American and French Lingerie, which has been constantly re-enforced. Second floor

THE "CRIME" OF SMUGGLING.

Evasion of customs taxes with fraudulent intent is, by the law of the United States, a crime, punishable, in the discretion of the courts, by fine or imprisonment. It is, so far as its treatment by the law goes, very much the same as the counterfeiting of United States notes. In the latter case, as in the former, the purpose of the offender is to cheat the "Government," to take money out of the Treasury, or to keep it out, leaving the taxpayers to make up the deficiency. But it is not to be denied that smuggling generally, even in its worst form, is regarded by the public as very different from counterfeiting.

Take a recent aggravated case in which the offenders had for years practiced an elaborate system of fraud and deceit, involving lying, false papers, and forgery, as a substantive part of their business plans, depriving the Government of over a million of revenue. Four of them have confessed their guilt. Three of them have been fined, and the case of the fourth is deferred. None of them has been sent to prison. Legally and morally, there can be no doubt that these men are professional swindlers. There has been some expression of indignation, mainly based on the fact that guilty persons, without great wealth, have been jailed for the same kind of offense on a much smaller scale. But in the class to which these men belonged before the exposure of their elaborate rascality, there is a very general readiness to accept the outcome, a feeling that, on the whole, justice has been about as nearly administered as could be expected or desired. This feeling, in an extreme case, shows the state of public sentiment toward the "beating" of the tariff. In ordinary cases, in the great mass of those occurring from day to day, that sentiment, so far from being one of condemnation, is sympathetic, admiring, or at least indifferent. Why? Because the tariff is looked upon by the public as a vast scheme to secure profit for a relatively small class at the expense of the rest of the community. This view is very frankly supported by the very men who obtain, or seek, tariff favors. The testimony before the tariff committees of Congress is loaded down with pleas resting clearly on this view. The favor seekers argue, of course, that they need help, that they cannot make and sell goods as cheaply as their competitors abroad, but they openly ask for laws that will give them higher prices, which their customers must pay. There is no quarrel between the extreme protectionist and the free trader as to the purpose and intent of taxing imports for the benefit of home manufacturers. They may differ as to the amount the public pays, but they agree that the public does pay, and is forced to pay.

Now the average American, by instinct and by the training of generations within the steadily widening area of his own land, is a free trader. His ancestors fought the War of the Revolution largely against the British pretention that Americans must trade in British markets only. The United States Constitution was framed, in like spirit, mainly to secure free trade among the States of the Confederation. For a century and a quarter, under the beneficent working of the freedom thus secured, the commerce and industry of the Union have grown and spread with a mighty and steadfast impulse unequaled elsewhere in the world. Although as a Nation we have adopted the policy of restriction of foreign trade, the individual American has breathed the air of freedom, and from habit, association, sense of independence, instinctively resents any personal restriction of his liberty in his own dealings. He may think it a good thing to keep the goods of "foreigners" out of the American market, but he kicks at being taxed on his own purchases for the benefit of some one else. And he will not be hard on any one who gets around such tax. Undoubtedly, this state of mind is in some ways mischievous. It is not well to have a general willingness to evade the law, and an unwillingness in the courts fully to enforce the law. But we can't blink the fact that the law is essentially unjust, partial, bad in motive, and oppressive in operation. If we can get rid of it public sentiment will be healthier. Congress should not forget that even the Supreme Lawmaker is petitioned to "lead us not into temptation."

CORONATION CROWDS.

Two months ago we ventured to predict that there would be no lack of accommodations for visitors in London at coronation time, that hotel and lodging house prices would not be unreasonably high, and that the charges for seats on the stands from which ordinary mortals can see the King and the procession would not be exorbitant. The prediction is about to be fulfilled, but it was easy to make, for precisely the same conditions prevail as at the time of the coronation of EDWARD VII. nine years ago. London is amply provided with hotels and lodgings. Viewing stands are erected at every possible point along the line of march. There is plenty of room for everybody to see. The disappointment of hotel managers, reported in the cable dispatches, because the number of American visitors promises to be smaller than they expected, is not reasonable. Numberless Americans who go abroad every year will naturally avoid London until the coronation is over, not because of any fear of imaginary extortion or lack of accommodations, but because of the crowds in the streets, and the strictly enforced police regulations which make going about so difficult.

New York has never seen anything like the congestion the London police will have to cope with in coronation week, and already the main thoroughfares in the heart of the town are densely crowded night and day. When the time comes vehicular traffic of every sort will be prohibited west of Trafalgar Square on Whitehall and of Charing Cross Station on the Embankment; in Eaton Square, Buckingham Palace Road, and all the network of streets in old Westminster near the Abbey. The nobles who are bidden to the ceremony will be compelled to go afoot half a mile or more. Everybody who is to see the ceremony must be in the Abbey by 8:30 in the morning. Pedestrians in all the central streets must keep in line, and to the right. All rules of traffic are strictly enforced. No other policemen in the world can manage great crowds so well as the London bobbies, and no others have quite such vast crowds to handle. But the street crowds do not invade the hotels. There will be comfortable beds and wholesome food for all who desire to tell their grandchildren that they were in London when the great and good GEORGE V. was anointed with the ampula and crowned King of Great Britain and Ireland and the dominions thereto belonging.

WOOL AND TARIFF REFORM.

The Democrats undoubtedly are wise in proposing to cut the protective tariff rates on wool in two, instead of doing away with them altogether. Such a reduction will produce less political agitation and it will, if carried out, make adjustment of interests easier. The temptation to wipe out the duty is strong, because it is a tax on the material of manufacture of a necessary of life, and because it has been the one bribe to the farming class by which the inequity and the iniquity of the protective tariff have been fastened upon the country. But extreme measures, even the extremes of justice, tend to promote sharp reaction. By a moderate policy time will be given to the farmers to realize that their true interests have never really been advanced by the tax on wool, and that its complete final removal would leave wool-raising and all other farm industry on a sounder and more profitable basis.

We wish every intelligent farmer and wool grower could be induced carefully to study a volume recently published in the "Harvard Economic Studies," (Houghton Mifflin Company,) by Dr. CLINTON WHITNEY WRIGHT, on "Wool Growing and the Tariff." It is a very careful and painstaking review of the industry from Colonial times to the present, not at all from the standpoint of the free trader—the author is less a free trader, we think, than his own facts would justify—but with a serious purpose to trace the various forces that have shaped the changes that have taken place. Among these, he includes the tariff, and is inclined to recognize a certain benefit from protection, a certain injury from the repeal of the duty in 1894. But he makes it very clear that the effect of tariff legislation was only one of many causes working from time to time, that its operation has been always obscure, and that protective duties on wool have had far less effect than was generally supposed. The two forces he finds to have been strongest have been (1) the fluctuating but, on the whole, great and rapid increase of the supply of wool from South America, from Australasia, from Africa, and still other sources, and (2) the steady increase in the United States of the profit from uses of the soil other than sheep pasturing. To the latter of these the greatest importance and the greatest interest attach.

When wool-growing advanced in this country from a mere adjunct to farming, supplying the material for the family loom, its extension was very largely determined by the gain to be got from other employment of the land. First in the East, then in the Middle West, and finally in the Far West, as land became more productive for varied crops, and as the cultivation of it became more intelligent and intensive, the raising of sheep, for mutton or for wool, or both, relatively lessened. It was gradually shoved off on to such soil as could not at the time be put to better paying purposes. It has been in all our history essentially a frontier industry, and it has been carried with remarkable steadiness on the wave of the great Western movement. Necessarily, its growth has been very great, as immigration and the quickening of means of transport have strengthened and intensified that movement. On the one hand, the demand for woolen goods has enormously increased; on the other, until recently, the area opened up by the spreading population of the continent has been enormously extended. But wool raising has been from the first, in comparison with the general industry of agriculture, slow-moving, subordinate, and, in some sense, incidental. Taking the country over, the value of our wool is but little more than that of butter or vegetables, less than that of potatoes, one-sixth that of hay, and only about one-fortieth that of the cereals.

This is not to say that it is not a very valuable industry on lands suited to it. But its value is nowhere near in proportion to the artificial aid it has received. That aid has been given at the expense of other industries; it has very heavily added to the cost of living; it has thus been a burden upon all industry, and it should—gradually, no doubt, but surely—be withdrawn. It has been expensive to the Nation and has not served, does not and can not be made to serve, its purpose. In reality it is a hindrance, since it prevents a market for our finer wools which would profitably be mixed with coarser wools, could these be imported to advantage. The country has suffered incalculably from the bargains between the wool growers and manufacturers who made the oppressive tariff of 1867, and the farmers have really not gained from it. It is high time that the actual interests of the whole people should cease to be sacrificed to the imaginary interests of a small part of one class.

CHATEAUGAY.

The London journals are filled with Canadian complaints because not long ago Americans were told that, in deference to their susceptibilities, the representation of the battle of Chateaugay would be omitted from the Festival of Empire in connection with the Coronation. Shortly afterward the cable told us that we are not thus indebted, the battle scene being omitted because the Canadian committee thought the scene did not represent Canadian life, or the development of the country. This is what offends the Canadian newspapers. When the scene was dropped they were facetious because the American newspapers did not know the difference between Chateaugay and Chautauqua, and from every pore dripped information that the battle which Americans seemed to know nothing about was the one which saved Canada to the Empire.

Americans will scorn to defend themselves from the imputation of ignorance on any plea regarding the eccentricities of the cable's simplified spelling, and will candidly admit that some 7,000 Americans failed to storm intrenchments gallantly defended by a smaller number of Canadians. As to whether or not this incident saved Canada to the Empire we have no certain information, nor do we know that Canada was excessively fortunate in being thus saved. If the Americans had won at Chateaugay, whose susceptibilities would have been wounded at the Festival of Empire? The Canadians, in that case, would now be Americans, and would be part of a continental nation, with their susceptibilities soothed by the satisfaction of a larger ambition than theirs can be either as a colony or as a "nation." In other words, the Canadians would have won more by their defeat than they did by their victory.

Whatever Canada lost by its victory the Empire also lost. England no longer levies tribute on its colonies, and profits only by the commercial connection, which is larger with the vanquished at Chateaugay than with the victor. Dare we hint that the battle scene was dropped because of appreciation of these facts rather than because of any excess of American susceptibilities? It certainly is not politic to emphasize any loss which has come to Canada because of its Imperial connection, especially at a time when the Canadian Premier is about to raise again the banner of Canadian nationalism in the stronghold of British imperialism. That would go too far toward suggesting that the Imperial conference is the Chateaugay of this century, with Canada winning another victory against another member of the family.

ESCAPED WIRELESS.

Herr HENSINGMULLER is the scientist who now rises to warn mankind of a new danger, resulting from the use of wireless telegraphy. Deadly electric waves are being set free all over the world. We must wear non-conducting helmets and visors and insulated armor or we shall all be in a way to lose our hair, not to speak of our senses. Herr HENSINGMULLER argues from facts. He has carefully figured out that only one-three-millionth part of the electrical energy generated to carry a message from station to station is actually used up; the rest is scattered, to shrivel up some folks and do all sorts of queer things to others.

To be sure, a great deal of wireless electricity is in use. Messages cross the Atlantic, and nobody on ships at sea or on land yet knows that he has been hurt by free electricity. But now that Herr HENSINGMULLER has spoken, we must be alert for evidence of the danger that is abroad. There is a bare possibility that HENSINGMULLER may be mistaken, as Dr. JOHNSON was when he said that people could never breathe in a vehicle traveling twenty miles an hour. But HENSINGMULLER is a scientific man, which Dr. JOHNSON assuredly was not. It may be that escaped wireless has caused a lot of mental and physical trouble for which it has not yet been properly blamed.

A great many persons have done a great many queer things, and said queer things, too, in the very tracks of the wireless currents. There have been floods and droughts and political turmoil and sickness and death which, with a few Hensingmullers on the job, may yet be traced to the rampages of a lot of loose electricity. Already he has identified wireless toothache, which is said to be worse than the old kind. As like cures like, we shall doubtless soon have wireless dentistry. It will not do to scoff at HENSINGMULLER simply because somebody has always pointed out the danger and folly of every invention, discovery, and improvement in the world's history. There is clear proof that escaped wireless has badly affected HENSINGMULLER.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Editors Again Indicted.

A woman who has been not infrequently successful in selling both prose and verse to the better magazines surprised a friend the other day by expressing not contentment or exultation with achieving what so many ambitious writers miss, but a sense of somewhat resentful grievance. Her complaint was that the editors would more readily accept work easy for her to do, though unsatisfactory to herself when done, than what she really wanted to do in spite of its realized and experienced greater difficulty.

According to this authority, one "mustn't write stories about sick people, about sex relations, about eugenics, about Jews, Catholics, Episcopalians, as such, about women who have broken social laws, about artists, as such." On the other hand, the stories one probably can sell, if they be fairly well written and what the editors call "strong in plot," are, first, about love and the Young Person. Then, in order, come those dealing with "love and the middle-aged person, children and lovers, adventure, getting married, why one doesn't get married, romantic love, (with some scenery, some character drawing, and some incident,) the very young and charming person, and the college boy or young man in business."

She admitted that this was a rather wide field, but she insisted that the subjects first named interested her more—seemed to her more important. Yet with most magazine editors stories about them were thought not to be "what the people want," and the stories were handicapped from the beginning by this belief, no matter how alert, human, or vital. "The handicap can be overcome," she added, "Even I have done it, occasionally, but it is discouraging to expend a lot of energy on work one cares about, only to have the editors tell you that though it interests themselves, they must refuse it because the public's interest is in other directions."

It is in the restrictions thus imposed that this writing woman found, as she hoped and believed, the explanation "why most of my stories that get published seem disappointing to my friends. They tell me I am 'capable of doing more original work,' and I feel that I am myself, but to handle the 'more original work' one must have a rarer technique, a more nearly perfect mastery of style and plot, than is necessary for the better selling little story along more familiar lines."

That last is true, no doubt, but an editor, in turn resentful of a complaint which he and all his predecessors have heard in one form or another, can justly enough reply that it is not his fault.

Quarantine Facts and Follies.

Up in New Rochelle the people have passed from patient acquiescence, through slowly growing impatience to fierce anger and something like readiness for revolt and revolution, all because of a dog quarantine that has been imposed upon the little city by the State Department of Agriculture.

The necessity for some measure of precaution and protection was recognized at the beginning of this quarantine, for several cases of rabies had developed there, and nobody denied that New Rochelle, like every other town in the country, had more dogs than it really needed. The rules as to muzzling and leashing laid down by the department, however, were neither well observed by the dog owners nor well enforced by the local authorities, while the dog-catcher's cruel attentions seemed to be directed for the most part to valuable animals whose masters would ransom them promptly from the pound.

Hearing of this, a Deputy Commissioner came down from Albany just before the time set for raising the quarantine arrived, and not only did he extend it indefinitely, but he delivered to the local police an oration of such effectiveness that they began to do what they should have done in the first place—they enforced the law with rigor and impartiality. Then there was a howl! There were many howls, some of them from dogs who liked neither the pound nor the asphyxiation chamber, and more from people who didn't like as a penalty for their own negligence to pay $10 to save the life of poor Towser, who never bit anybody and never thought of having rabies, and who, therefore, didn't need to wear a horrid muzzle, though, of course, all other dogs should.

But the rigid and impartial enforcement went on and the rage grew. It culminated last week in a mass meeting at which those present, after very foolishly applauding the very foolish speeches of certain "experts," who denied the existence of any such disease as rabies and said that PASTEUR and his followers, including NEGRI, were fools, drew up and dispatched to Albany a passionate and rather impudent petition, demanding that the quarantine be raised. There the matter stands at present, and from beginning to end the progress of events has been a beautiful illustration of "how not to do it."

Incidentally, the poor dogs are suffering much, the business of the town is affected a little, and some houses are not renting—all quite needlessly, and with the people really to blame taking to themselves not a bit of responsibility!

We Could Holler in Our Joy.

Mayor GAYNOR has sometimes written to complaining citizens letters which, it has seemed to some of us, would have gained in dignity had they proved him the possessor of more patience and a better temper. There is nothing to criticise, however, and much to commend in both sides of the correspondence which has passed between the Mayor and Mr. C. S. LODER in regard to the "hollering" of newsboys.

Each of them had some excuse for testiness, one that anybody should have tried to add another to burdens already too numerous, and the second that a jesting reply should have been made to a seriously intentioned communication. But that the Mayor should have been really humorous, when he might so easily have been curt or fierce, and that Mr. LODER should have taken the humor in such good part, when in it he might have found an undeserved imputation of crankiness—those were really pretty manifestations of a shared and appreciated desire to avoid an unpleasant little squabble.

And, by the way, why should the Mayor, or we, or anybody, think it needful to put quotation marks around the word "holler" or any of its derivatives? To be sure, the dictionaries have an illusion to the effect that the proper spelling and pronunciation is "halloo," but of course that's just nonsense. Perhaps it was right once, and people really said "halloo," but no man now alive ever heard it uttered above a whisper, if at all, and everybody who has a decent respect for custom and public opinion both hollers and says that other folk do it. So, why quotation marks?

A ROBBER OF WIDOWS.

Says This State Acts Like a Pirate with its Inheritance Tax.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is to be hoped when the Legislature of the State of New York takes up the task of so changing the inheritance tax law as to make those of its citizens who expect to leave enough at their death to come within its provisions less fearful of dying within the State, that the whole subject will be treated in a broad and liberal manner—not only with a view of making the tax an income producer, but also to take the State from the class of pirates and make it a moral community.

For the present law and also its predecessor as construed by the courts, indicates a narrow, illiberal, grasping policy, the sole idea being to levy as much toll as possible both on residents of the State and on non-residents, who have, by their investments in New York enterprises, been unwise enough to lend their financial aid to its business. First, consider the illiberal treatment of lineal descendants; under the former law if an estate exceeded $10,000 a transfer of it to a widow or to children was taxed 1 per cent. Thus, a widow with a family of small children, suddenly deprived of the support of her husband's income, was obliged to pay upon an estate of, say, $20,000, a tax of $200, and this to the richest and most powerful Commonwealth in the Union, though the entire income which she could obtain on the small estate would not exceed $1,000. Assuming that a man leaving such an estate had enjoyed an income of $5,000, it is evident that our widow would have to exert all her energies to reduce her scale of living so greatly, and that every dollar deducted from her income because of this grasping tax would entail a curtailment of the necessities of life.

The present law is no better; if the estate did not exceed $25,000 she would have to pay 1 per cent. on $20,000, and if it exceeded $25,000 she would have to pay 2 per cent. upon the excess, up to $100,000; over that amount she would have to pay more. Limiting the discussion to an estate of $50,000, the tax would be $700, or a reduction in income because of the tax of $35 a year, a serious matter to a woman with small children, or, for that matter, to a woman without any children who has been accustomed to live on a larger scale.

Why should not an estate of $50,000 or less be exempt when it passes to lineal descendants? To discuss the justness of the increase in tax with the increase of the estate, or to glance at the heavy toll taken from collaterals or strangers to the blood would take more space than you could spare me, but would result in convincing any fair-minded person that this great State is practically a highway robber holding a pistol at the head of defenseless successors to estates and ordering them to stand and deliver.

Let us pass to the case of the non-resident who derives no benefit from the State's expenditure of taxes, and whose decedent enjoyed no protection from its laws. If, relying on the financial and physical strength of the safety deposit vaults of the great metropolis, he keeps therein bonds of corporations organized by the laws of other States, he must pay a tax to New York. To the credit of three Judges of the Court of Appeals be it said this monstrous construction of the statute was made by a divided court, four to three. Unable to set aside the long-established rule of law that bonds are mere evidences of indebtedness and not in themselves property, these four wise Judges placed their State in the category of pirates by saying that people commonly regarded them as property, and so it was to be presumed that the Legislature, drawn from the people, intended by the use of the word property to include them. Fine logic. The moral is that non-residents should at once withdraw all securities from the State and never place any more within it. Apparently that is just what they are doing.

The New York statute exempts bequests to charitable institutions, such as hospitals, churches, colleges, &c., but the courts say that such exemption must be limited to the case of institutions organized under the laws of this State. That any institution of another State no matter how worthy and far-reaching its charity, no matter even how much residents of New York or their children may enjoy its beneficence, must pay a tax to the great State of New York, must have its usefulness as intended by the testator diminished by the amount of the tax. Is not this enough to make every resident of New York thrill with pride at the skill of his State in robbing the needy?

Dissuading Child Vandals.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have a sore grievance (in the shape of a sore head) against the lady who wrote from Teachers College last week advising grown folk to interfere with children destroying bushes and plants in the parks. The very day her letter appeared I went to Central Park to spend the afternoon, feeling to the full my responsibilities and knowing that I had a persuasive way with the child. Alas! we live and learn.

The first essay was with a little girl of eight or nine whose mother sat calmly watching her tear some dozen twigs from one bush and then pull each twig to pieces. The girl ran to the protection of her ma, who declared that it was a pity children could not play without vagrants annoying them; and she actually bade the hopeful go on with her amusement, and declared that she'd protect her.

Two boys of fourteen were next requested to desist from similar acts of vandalism, but they responded very promptly with such a flood of profane abuse that I threatened punishment; whereupon, retreating to a safe distance, they threw more solid missiles, and two "hoboes" sitting near announced that they would take a hand against me very soon, since I was the aggressor. So I left the park to Mr. Stover and departed sadder and wiser. The plan won't work.

Objects to "Hurdy-Gurdies."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is there no way in which we can get rid of those horrible hand organs? From morning until 9 P. M. they are a continual torment in Madison Avenue. They frequent boarding house vicinities and render life miserable to quiet people who have to read and write.

PHOTOGRAPHY IN PICTURES.

Every Process Illustrated in Collection Made for Smithsonian Institution.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Thomas W. Smillie, official photographer of the Smithsonian Institution, is preparing an exhibit of photographs which will illustrate the development of the photographic art from the time of the discovery of the first process by the Frenchman, Neipce, in 1824, to the present time, and include 5,000 photographs.

Mr. Smillie has been connected with the Smithsonian Institution since 1868, and is regarded as one of the foremost photographers in the country. He is the inventor of the process of photographing on wood, and is the author of many books and pamphlets.

Perhaps the most interesting pictures of the collection are two daguerreotypes of Daguerre himself. One of the photographs of the inventor of the most perfect method of photography was loaned for the collection by Mrs. Vallentine of New York, while the other was presented to the National Museum by Mr. Cramer of St. Louis. He paid $500 for it. Mr. Smillie is of the opinion that the daguerreotype method has never been excelled. Even the most modern and up-to-date methods, he claims, do not produce the fineness and satisfactory results obtained by the old slow and cumbersome method on the silver plate. The picture is toned with gold, thus producing a wonderful clearness, likeness, and detail.

The daguerreotype was first produced in 1839, and in the same year came also the talbotype, a process by which chloride of silver was used successfully on paper. The first negative of the Talbot process, "calotype," was produced in 1840. After this came the collodion negative on glass, then came the ambrotype, and later the present-day method of photography known as the gelatine-bromide emulsion process.

Great headway is now being made in developing color photography. Prof. Baird, Assistant Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, who was engaged in preparing an elaborate work on North American birds, asked the photographer to assist him in its preparation. Many of the illustrations that appear in this recognized textbook were photographed on wood by Mr. Smillie for the engravers.

Mr. Smillie regards as one of his most important accomplishments in photography the series of photographs taken of the solar eclipse in 1900 at Wadesboro, N. C. These photographs are regarded as among the most remarkable ever taken. In all eight negatives were obtained with the 135-foot telescope, twelve with a 40-foot telescope, and a number of others, all of which will be shown in the collection. In one end of the 135-foot telescope was the lens, while the other end terminated in a dark room. A mirror operated by clockwork and known as a coelostat reflected the image of the eclipse eastward into the camera. By means of the clockwork the mirror was made to revolve once in forty-eight hours, so that a perfect photograph was thus obtained. This negative measured 30 by 30 inches, and will be one of the most prominent in the exhibit.

The exhibit of photography will be of unusual interest, not only to the photographers but to the public in general. It will be the only one of its kind in the world, and unusual care is being used in preparing, cataloguing, and indexing. Among the pictures shown, one series will illustrate the development of color photography and another will show the beginning and progress of spectrum photography.

HITCHCOCK ECONOMIZES.

Refunds $3,000,000 Not Needed in Post Office Department—$1,000,000 Surplus.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Postmaster General Hitchcock last night signed a warrant returning to the Secretary of the Treasury $3,000,000, the last of the amount set apart from the public funds to assist in defraying the expenses of the Postal Service for the present fiscal year. Reforms in the financial system, it is stated, have made the refund possible.

An accounting plan, which was adopted about a year ago, insures the prompt deposit in the Treasury of postal funds not required immediately for disbursement at Post Offices, thus making available for use by the Post Office Department several millions of dollars that, under the former practice, would be tied up in Post Offices. Under the old system it required approximately $10,000,000 to finance the Postal Service.

In making the refund to the Treasury Mr. Hitchcock said he was satisfied that the postal revenues would be more than sufficient to defray the postal expenses during the remainder of the fiscal year, and that July 1 would show a surplus considerably over $1,000,000.

DR. H. M. MacCRACKEN HOME.

Chancellor Emeritus Studied Education in the Far East.

After a year's absence and a trip around the world, Henry M. MacCracken, Chancellor Emeritus of the New York University, and Mrs. MacCracken arrived yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner George Washington. They sailed from San Francisco last June, and spent two months in Japan and Korea and the same length of time in China, principally in Manchuria. From there they went to Manila, where Dr. MacCracken delivered the Thanksgiving Day address.

While in the Far East Chancellor MacCracken was the guest of the Chinese and Japanese Governments and received every opportunity to study educational systems. He also visited India and the Straits Settlement, but was obliged to return before his plans were completed on account of the illness of one of his daughters.

"I was much impressed with the progress in the public schools in the Philippines," said Chancellor MacCracken yesterday, "and particularly with the Agricultural College on the Pasig River near Manila. The better class of Filipino is not indolent. They are ready for work and are aggressive. They are more on the order of the Japanese than the Hindu.

"In India the system is different. There care is given for the colleges and the higher education rather than the elementary. There are many children between the ages of 7 and 12 who have practically no opportunity to read and write. Such a condition cannot prevail in Japan, because education is compulsory. I believe the same system will soon prevail in the Philippines."

"Aquatic Economy" Just an Anomaly.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My scat! What's that? Our poet caught a-nappin'? Upon my word, it ne'er occurred to me that that could happen.

But in his remarks on "aquatic economy" in THE TIMES of to-day "W. J. L." gravely asks, in reference to the water from the fountains at Columbia University, "does it flow back into the main from which it came?"

If so, say, Oh!—proclaim it from ocean to ocean—W. J. this day discovers perpetual motion.

Great Scott!

Why not?

But maybe it is some other W. J. L., or maybe he is laughing in his sleeve at the fellow who is unsophisticated enough to take him seriously.

TO DISCUSS WELFARE WORK FOR EMPLOYES

Elaborate Plan to be Outlined at Electrical Engineers' Convention.

TO MEET HERE THIS WEEK

Most Important Session to be Held in The New Theatre on Wednesday—Reception To-night in the Astor.

Between three and four hundred members of the largest society of engineers in the United States are in the city to attend the thirty-fourth annual convention of the National Electric Light Association. In point of attendance and importance of subjects discussed it is expected to be the greatest convention the association ever has held. The convention will begin to-night with a reception, concert and dance in the Hotel Astor. The reception is to the association's President, W. Winans Freeman, and Mrs. Freeman.

The convention proceedings will be conducted in the Engineering Societies' Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, and will continue until Friday. The most important meeting will be held at The New Theatre on Wednesday evening, when the report of the Public Policy Committee will be presented. This report will embody what is said to be the most elaborate plan of welfare work yet approved in the United States for application to any given industry, embracing many details and experiments not found in the governmental welfare systems in Europe. President Taft was invited to address this meeting, but he sent word that his engagements wouldn't permit. However, he will send Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel as his representative.

At the reception to-night in the Astor President and Mrs. Freeman will be assisted by Mr. and Mrs. John F. Gilchrist, Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Tait, and Gen. George H. Harries. During the reception there will be an organ recital by Arthur Depew and later a promenade concert on the roof garden. During the entire evening there will be dancing in the main ballroom.

This will be the programme for the remainder of the week: To-morrow morning, general session in the Engineering Societies Building, and address of welcome by John Purroy Mitchel, President of the Aldermen. The President's address will follow. To-morrow afternoon technical and accounting sessions. Wednesday forenoon commercial, executive, accounting, and technical sessions. Wednesday evening, Public Policy Meeting in The New Theatre. Thursday morning, power transmission, commercial, and accounting sessions; afternoon, technical and commercial sessions. Friday morning, power transmission and commercial sessions, and afternoon general sessions ending the convention, with election of officers.

Among the more important subjects to be considered are the recommendations of the Public Policy Committee, including life, accident, and sickness insurance, and death benefits; service annuities, profit sharing, and employes' saving and investment funds. The growth of the association and the progress of electricity is set forth in the programme thus:

> A quarter of a century ago not only were the inventions upon which this society was founded crude but the engineering was primitive, and naturally capital was skeptical. This of course made the future look uncertain. By hard work in perfecting the various inventions and improving the engineering capital soon recognized the value of this science, with the result that to-day this association represents an investment of over $2,000,000,000, while the field occupied by electric lighting and power has long since become definitely established.
> The growth of this industry has been remarkable. In the past twenty-five years it has developed from practically nothing to one of the great industries, if not the greatest, of the age. It is the ideal method of lighting and motive power. The public was quick to recognize and demand the convenience, economy, safety, and cleanliness of electricity, as is shown by its universal adoption for lighting houses, buildings, streets, cars, &c., and for propulsion on railway systems, in factories, for elevators, pleasure and commercial vehicles, &c. In fact, there are between three hundred and four hundred different uses for this marvelous force.
> Not only is the use of electricity becoming more popular for power transmission and illumination but new fields are opening for the application of this wonderful current, such as stimulation of soil and vegetation, the sterilization of food products, the purification of water, &c. It is safe to say that in the future electricity will prove a more potent factor to the medical profession, where already it has been used to such great advantage.

The officers of the association are: President, W. W. Freeman; First Vice President, John F. Gilchrist; Second Vice President, Frank M. Tait; Secretary, T. Comerford Martin; Treasurer, George H. Harries; Assistant Secretary and Treasurer, H. Bullings; General Counsel, Everett W. Burdett, and Master of Transportation, Charles H. Hodskinson.

TO SAVE ALBANY POST ROAD.

Automobile Club Sees a Trolley Grab in Bill Now Before Legislature.

The Automobile Club of America, through its President, Henry Sanderson, went on record yesterday as protesting vigorously against the passage by the present Legislature of the bill introduced by Assemblyman Frank L. Youngs of Ossining to amend the highway law so that railroad tracks can be laid upon the Albany Post Road within the County of Westchester. President Sanderson sees in the bill an attempt to grab the Albany Post Road for trolley tracks between New York and Albany. The bill has been passed by the Assembly and is now before the Senate Committee on Internal Affairs.

"The public seems to be entirely unaware of the determination of somebody to extend a street surface railroad system upon the Albany Post Road from New York to Albany, which is to-day the main highway for automobile travel between New York and the West via Albany," said Mr. Sanderson yesterday. "Trolley tracks will not only encroach upon the use of this thoroughfare by automobiles and all pleasure vehicles but will greatly increase the danger of its use by everybody. Although the plan, as thus far disclosed, only affects a local section, the ultimate result of legislation opening the door for its consummation would be to devote the Albany Post Road to railroad tracks as a through line between New York and Albany.

"If the railroads wish a trolley line between New York and Albany they should buy their right of way through private property, and not be allowed to encroach upon thoroughfares which have been dedicated to the general use of vehicular traffic, for which they are, even as matters now stand, inadequate."

SUPREME COURT OUT TO-DAY.

If Tobacco Decision Is Not Given It Must Wait Until Next Fall.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—To-morrow the Supreme Court of the United States will adjourn for the term, and interest is high as to whether the second important trust decision in the suit against the Tobacco Trust will be handed down. The Tobacco Trust case has been associated in the public mind all along with the Standard Oil case, decided by the court on May 15, and it had rather been expected that the two decisions would come down together.

The two cases have many points in common, and they were ordered to a rehearing at the same time, owing to the depleted bench. Rehearing was had in February, and if the decision is not delivered to-morrow it will be the Fall term before the case is disposed of.

IMPURE MILK KILLS MORE BABIES YEARLY

Deaths from Intestinal Ailments 32 Per Cent. Greater So Far This Year Than Last.

EVEN THE ASYLUMS BLAMED

Farming Out Little Ones a Menace—Nursing Infants Comparatively Safe—Milk Committee's Remedy.

The death rate from intestinal complaints among children under two years old was almost one-third greater in this city in the last four and a half months than in the same period last year, according to a statement of the New York Milk Committee yesterday. From Jan. 1 to May 14, 1910, 709 children under two years old died of intestinal complaints, while 947 died of these ailments in the same period this year.

The percentage of increase was 32.2. These figures include all the boroughs. In Manhattan itself, the increase was 31.7 per cent. Physicians of the city are greatly worried over this remarkable increase in infant mortality, according to the Milk Committee, their anxiety being greater because the cause of the increase is so hard to combat.

"If the present death rate from intestinal trouble among babies in this city merely remains where it is, over 1,800 more babies are going to die in this city this year than died in it last year," a member of the Milk Committee said yesterday. "And the chances are that many more than 1,800 more babies are going to die. The months of January to May are considered the moderate months for infant mortality. Infant mortality is greatest in the Summer. There is no telling, under present conditions, how many babies are going to die in this city from intestinal trouble before the Summer is through."

The cause of the increase in baby mortality through intestinal trouble is unquestionably due to the use of "loose" milk, according to the Milk Committee. The committe itself, which was organized several years ago by a number of the city's leading physicians and social workers, has been conducting a vigorous fight for better and healthier milk for the city's babies. A sub-committee of the Milk Committee, known as the "Committee for the Reduction of Infant Mortality," of which Dr. Godfrey R. Pisek is Chairman and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman is Vice Chairman, has collected a number of interesting statistics concerning infant mortality. This sub-committee learned that only 5 per cent. of the babies who died in this city last year from intestinal ailments were breast-fed.

"The lesson from this discovery is plain enough to every one," said a member of the sub-committee yesterday. "The babies who live on their mother's natural milk are comparatively safe from intestinal trouble. The babies who live on milk bought at the corner grocery are dying in numbers, which have increased more than 32 per cent. in the last year alone. There must be something wrong with this corner-grocery cow milk if so many babies who live on it die, and if so many babies who don't live on it remain well.

"This corner-grocery cow milk is kept in big cans, and ladled out in whatever quantity the mother desires. It is called 'loose' milk. It stays in these big cans a comparatively extended length of time. It becomes stale, and even sour. Hundreds of thousands of bacteria breed in it. These bacteria tend especially to increase under the conditions that exist in the ordinary grocery stores in this city. The humidity of this city is unusually high for one thing, and bacteria always breed better in proportion to the humidity.

"Refrigerating conditions here in the tenement homes and in the grocery stores of tenement localities are inadequate. And bacteria always breed better in warm liquids than in cold ones. The low water in the city's reservoir, too, has caused a number of vegetable organisms—harmless to mature persons, but injurious to the more delicate intestinal tracts of babies—to find their way into all milk which is not prepared and preserved with unusual care.

"Our committee has noticed that the death rate of babies from intestinal troubles, presumably due to 'loose' milk, is especially high in the infant asylums and in the neighborhood of infant asylums in this city. In certain of these infant institutions the death rate is as high as 68 per cent., while in other infant asylums, where especial care is taken of the milk or where we have been allowed to establish our own pure milk depots, the death rate among the babies has fallen as low as 30 per cent.

"The death rate among the babies of these infant asylums is especially great where the institutions farm the babies out. The farming out of babies is done in this city even by well-known and well-established religious institutions. But it is sometimes a bad thing for the babies. The asylums board out their small charges with poor people who need the two or three dollars a week which the asylums or the city are willing to pay for the baby's board. The foster parents, in order to economize, feed the babies on the loose milk bought for from 4 to 6 cents a quart at the corner grocery store. The baby falls sick of intestinal trouble. The foster parents take the sick baby back to the asylum. The asylum puts the baby in its hospital. And in the hospital the baby dies. There should be a pure-milk depot in every infant asylum in this city, and foster parents with whom babies are farmed out should be obliged to obtain all the milk for the baby from this pure-milk depot.

"Another cause of this city's increased infant mortality is the increasing practice of allowing the babies to be treated by ignorant midwives instead of by physicians. This is especially prevalent in the foreign sections of the city. The midwives soothe the babies with patent medicines and patent syrups containing morphine, opium and chloral. These stupefy the babies and lower their vitality."

The Milk Committee is trying to get the city to pass an ordinance along the line of Health Commissioner Lederle's graded milk plan. The ordinance would provide that all milk sold in this city should be divided into grades and labeled according to its quality. There would be "babies' milk," "drinking milk," "cooking milk." No ordinance, of course, could force parents to feed their babies on the milk which the label guarantees to be suitable for them. But the parental instinct, it is believed, would lead most fathers and mothers to buy the milk which was labeled as best for their babies.

The representative of the Milk Committee also said yesterday that the committee was trying to persuade the city to open more pure-milk stations. The city now has twelve pure-milk stations. The committee itself is conducting thirty pure-milk stations at a cost of $150,000 a year.

AMERICANS IN ROME.

George Armour Visits City en Route for Elba—Seton Off to Rouen.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 28.—George Armour has just paid one of his flying visits to Rome, dining with a friend or two, and then went off on his yacht for Elba. From there he goes to Budapest for the fêtes there.

The American delegates to the International Institute of Agriculture, whose convention is now over, have been taking the opportunity to see something of Rome and its environs before scattering. They went to Viterbo, which seems the fashionable thing to do at present, and on their return could not make up their minds which was the most interesting—the town or the Cuocolo trial. Viterbo is one of the most charming mediaeval towns in the world, its old quarter being preserved just as it stood over 500 years ago.

Nearly all the little bands of Americans who have visited it have gone north, stopping at various points, with Paris or London as their ultimate goals.

Miss Lubin, daughter of David Lubin, has just become engaged to a young Italian, Signor Sibenzi, who is now Italian Consul at Nice.

Archbishop Robert Seton of Heliopolis, the genial American who now lives in Rome, has left for Rouen to spend the week there on the invitation of the Archbishop of that city.

Rouen is now celebrating the millennial of Normandy, (911-1911,) and it is appropriate that a descendant of the Lords of Seton of Scotland should be there on that occasion, as they were of Norman origin. Archbishop Seton is a fluent French scholar.

FRIARS IN A FROLIC.

Give Big Minstrel and Vaudeville Show at New Amsterdam.

The annual Frolic of the Friars' Club began at the New Amsterdam Theatre last night with a crowded house, and an entertainment that should make theatrical history in the cities the company is to visit during the next ten days. The programme provided about three and a half hours of varied types of amusement, and a number of the performers made the audience believe that they had been hiding unknown talents for all these years.

The show began with a minstrel first part, with three editions of interlocutors and end men. Fred Niblo sat in the centre of the crescent at the beginning, with Tom Lewis and Harry Kelly at the ends. Then came Emmett Corrigan, with Raymond Hitchcock and Richard Carle as humorists, and last Jerry J. Cohan introduced Dave Montgomery and George M. Cohan to finish the minstrel part. The soloists—and they all had new songs except two—were John J. Nestor, Fred Brown, Ernest R. Ball, Irving Berlin, Frank Coombs, John King, Robert Dailey, Andrew Mack, Mat Keefe, and George Cohan. The two old songs were "Silver Threads Among the Gold," and Andrew Mack's moon song.

Then came George (Honey Boy) Evans in a monologue, and after him a sketch called "The Pullman Porters' Ball," written by George M. Cohan and played by Julian Eltinge as a millionaire colored lady, William Collier as a bad man, Robert Dailey as a millionaire colored gentleman, Tom Lewis as the bad man's wife, and George Beban, Raymond Hitchcock, Vaughan Comfort, and Fred Niblo as characters connected with the club. Dances were given by George M. Cohan, William Rock, Ben Ryan, and Tom Dingle.

The Friars' "Piano Bugs" came next on the programme. This was an act that required seven pianos and nine composers and song writers. They played and sang their own compositions. William Collier and George M. Cohan followed in a number they called "Two Hot Potatoes."

The scene showed the exteriors of the Cohan and the Collier theatres, in juxtaposition for the sake of convenience. Cohan and Collier made personal remarks about the merits of their respective houses, and concluded with a song and dance number of the old-fashioned sort.

Weber and Fields, assisted by Mr. Collier, followed. The famous "choking scene" from the days of Weber & Fields's music hall was offered, and the audience, already almost laughed out, went into ecstacies over it.

Bertram Marburgh and Bennet Musson's sketch, "The Great Suggestion," concluded the programme. In this appeared, in the characters of themselves, Earle Browne, Emmett Corrigan, William Collier, Sam H. Harris, Fred Niblo, Raymond Hitchcock, and William Rock, and the rest of the Friars company.

The tour of the organization will start at Atlantic City to-night, and end with a matinée at the New Amsterdam Theatre on the afternoon of June 8.

MAY BAR NEW YORK AUTOS.

Radical Move of New Jersey Commissioner May Include Many States.

The radical move by the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles for New Jersey, J. B. R. Smith, in refusing to issue any more tourists' licenses to States that will not reciprocate with New Jersey will work a hardship on the motorists of Pennsylvania, New York, and Massachusetts particularly. Many owners from these States have been in the habit of using their eight-day licenses for at least four trips to New Jersey every Summer. This has already been stopped for Pennsylvania, and may at any time be stopped for New York, Massachusetts, and other non-reciprocatory States that will not recognize New Jersey in an eight-day license issuing way. All agencies have been withdrawn from Pennsylvania, and any owner from that State who wishes to go into New Jersey will have to go to Camden or apply at Trenton.

It was reported around New York yesterday that Attorney General Carmody of this State has decided that New York cannot issue eight-day licenses. It is not known whether this information has been received at Trenton, but when it is received it is expected that New York will be placed on the non-reciprocity list with Pennsylvania, while Massachusetts will follow in due course if the Legislature does not act favorably on Commissioner Smith's suggestion for an eight-day interchange license.

New Jersey has put it up to other States squarely, and has therefore placed other States on the defensive. It is true that many New Jersey automobilists have objected to paying the full license fees of other States while automobilists of the other States can visit New Jersey for the nominal fee of $1, and that is what is hurting many of the New Jersey motoring leaders who in the past have invited other States to punish New Jersey because of its lack of total reciprocity. The shoe, however, pinches, and the Commissioner has heard from a large number of his State's motorists who want other States to imitate New Jersey. It was also rumored that all New York agencies would be shut up if the Commissioner decides to put New York on the non-reciprocity list.

It was stated yesterday that possibly a delegation of A. A. A. officials, State and National, would go to Albany immediately and try to induce the Legislature to pass an amendment to the present automobile law allowing a limited touring license reciprocity to New Jersey motorists. This, it is thought, would smooth things over and allay the bitterness which will surely arise in New York and Massachusetts and other States if they are placed under the ban by New Jersey through the lack of reciprocity on their part.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Jane Gray has been engaged for the stock company at Elitches Gardens, Denver, and will open there about the middle of June.

Percy Haswell, who is to be leading woman of the stock company at the Royal Alexandria Theatre, Toronto, this Summer, has been engaged for the leading feminine role in support of Dustin and William Farnum, in "The Littlest Rebel," next season.

De Witt C. Jennings has been re-engaged by the Authors' Producing Company for his original role of Giles Raymond in "The Gamblers" next season.

Mrs. Leslie Carter has decided to spend her Summer vacation on an automobile trip to Poland Springs, Me., and back by way of the White Mountains and the Berkshires. Later in the Summer she expects to go to Europe for a short motor trip.

"Happy" Fanny Fields, who has been in England and Scotland for the last nine years, was a passenger on the Baltic, arriving yesterday. She will spend the Summer with her sister, Mrs. Henry Furmur, in West 163d Street.

HOW TO BE A GOD AS TAUGHT BY SWAMI

MADE A LECTURE TOUR HERE

Mrs. Bull's Acquaintance with Him Dates from His Attending the Chicago World's Fair in 1893.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., May 28.—The World's Fair at Chicago in 1893, with its Parliament of Religions, may have been indirectly responsible for the contest in the Probate Court of York County, Maine, over the $500,000 estate of the widow of Ole Bull.

To the Parliament of Religions there came, among others, the Swami Vivekanenda, who appears to have been a sort of chief priest of the Blessed Ramakrishna. Both of these holy men have since died. Vivekanenda, before he came to this country, wrote a book about Ramakrishna called "My Master." The Swami, or priest, said of him in it:

"He was known as Paramhamsa Sprimat Ramakrishna, and is regarded by thousands of his fellow countrymen as a divine incarnation, although he would not claim for himself any high position."

Vivekanenda made a decided impression in Chicago in 1893, and he was immediately taken up by the intellectuals, especially by visitors from Cambridge, Mass. He went over the United States delivering a lecture entitled "Raja-Yoga," a study of the control of the mind.

To attain this control of the mind, as laid down by the Swami Vivikanenda, the novice has to go through some eight preparatory stages. In the end the soul, or mind, becomes detached from material things and the individual takes on the nature of a god.

Down at the base of the spine, according to Vivekanenda and other devotees who have come from India, there reposes the "kundalini," a "residual energy." In normal persons it lies dormant in a triangular aperture, giving rise to hallucinations, visions, dreams, and other things. In order to be a god—to rise above the things of earth—you have to move the kundalini upward until it touches the brain. This is done by way of the sussuma canal.

Some of the folks in history's pages have accomplished the feat by accident, without knowing it. Napoleon Bonaparte is among those mentioned; also Alexander, Julius Caesar, and—Sayers and Heenan.

The purpose can be accomplished without accident by putting one's mind to it. Nicolo Ruberto, ex-barber and masseur, who is here from Naples to testify for Mrs. Bull's daughter, has explained the process, as he was given to understand it, in Eliot, Me.

According to Ruberto, you sit up straight, and by a system of breathing—closing the right nostril and inhaling through the left—start the kundalini. Once you get it going it makes a genius of you. You become supersensuous, superconscious. Your mind roams far off in the abstract, detached from mere material things of every nature. You have achieved control of the cosmic activities like a god. It all reads simple enough, but the problem is to go through the course of scientific breathing with such success as to start the kundalini.

After the World's Fair Vivekanenda came East, stopping first at New York. Among other people of note who were attentive to the Indian priest there was Francis H. Leggett, the wealthy grocer. Mrs. Ole Bull was a close friend of the Leggetts.

Miss Sarah J. Farmer had already established the "Greenacre Conferences" in Eliot, Me., just outside Portsmouth, and in 1894, it was said yesterday, Mrs. Ole Bull hired a house in Brattle Street, Cambridge, for Vivekanenda to lecture in. In that year the "Cambridge Conferences" were established. Dr. Lewis G. Janes, who died in 1902 in Greenacre, and who was pursued by a "malign influence," some said was the director.

At this time, some of her friends say, Mrs. Ole Bull was peculiarly susceptible. She had just suffered the death of her mother. The change in Mrs. Ole Bull (if there was a change) may have begun about this time. Two years later her father died in Cambridge.

There seems to be an impression that the fortune her daughter is fighting for in Alfred, Me., came from Ole Bull. As a matter of fact, it comes from the other side of the house. Mrs. Bull's father when he died left $1,000,000. He was Joseph G. Thorp, 1st, and he made his money out of Northwestern lumber. A couple of generations ago the Thorps resided in Oxford, N. Y., where the children were born. Later they moved to Eau Claire, and still later to Madison, Wis.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Presses Used in Printing from Engraved Plates Pay Duty as "Printing Presses."

The Board of United States General Appraisers in sustaining a protest filed by Lunham & Moore has decided that presses used in printing from engraved plates or dies are properly entitled to classification under the Tariff act of 1909 as "printing presses," with duty at the rate of 30 per cent. The Government alleged that the presses in question are not the kind contemplated in the tariff's provision for "printing presses." Classification was therefore imposed as "manufactures of metal not specially provided for," with duty at 45 per cent. on the value. In reversing the Government, General Appraiser Fischer says:

"The proof offered shows that the importers' claim in these cases is well founded. The Falcon press is admittedly a printing press, and the Waite die press is in our opinion to be likewise considered. The testimony convinces us that the latter presses perform the ordinary work of printing with ink from dies and plates. This would entitle them to classification as 'printing presses,' and we so hold. The protests are sustained, and the decision of the Collector modified."

Acting in harmony with a ruling made by the United States Court of Customs Appeals the board has handed down a decision sustaining the claim of Hawley & Letzerich regarding the classification of wire drawers' plates. The plates are forged from steel to their finished state, and have holes punched through of diminishing diameters. The plates are used for drawing wire. The Government assessed the goods at 45 per cent. as a manufacture of metal not specially provided for, whereas the importers' contention was for classification under the act of 1897 as "forgings," with duty at 30 per cent. This claim is upheld by the board.

Protests filed by the Empire Zinc Company and Alexander Murphy & Co. questioning the manner of assessing duty on the lead and zinc contained in ores were overruled. Lower duty was granted by the board on importations of rough mica imported by Joseph Huse & Son and Eugene Mussell & Co.

SUIT OVER BOY AERONAUT.

Toledo Company Seeks to Enjoin Goodale from Appearing at Palisades Park.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., May 28.—Frank Goodale, the boy aeronaut, whose flights have interested the visitors to Palisades Amusement Park, must appear in the Chancery Court at Jersey City to-morrow in response to papers served upon him yesterday to enforce a contract with the Stroble International Aviation Company of Toledo, Ohio.

An affidavit accompanying the application for an injunction says that Goodale's contract with the Stroble Company is for three years more out of a five-year agreement, and that the company will suffer financial loss through inability to fill its contracts for exhibition flights by Goodale. Goodale said yesterday that the Stroble Company had not lived up to the terms of its agreement with him.

REINHARDT PLAY COMING.

New York to See This Oriental Pantomime Next Season.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 28.—Arrangements were concluded to-day for introducing Germany's dramatic genius, Max Reinhardt, of the Deutsches Theater, Berlin, to the United States.

James C. Duff of New York has contracted for the production next season of M. Reinhardt's Oriental pantomime "Sumurun," which was the sensation of the Berlin theatrical world the past year, and took London by storm a few months ago.

M. Reinhardt will produce "Sumurun" in New York, and then throughout the United States and Canada, with the full original cast.

"Sumurun" not only presents the most lavish stage pictures of Oriental life ever presented, but also by far the most daring.

M. Reinhardt intends its production as only the first of his enterprises in America, where he hopes eventually to introduce others of his famous productions, notably Sophocles's "Oedipus," and Shakespearean plays.

ACTOR VERNON CASTLE WEDS

Miss Irene Foote of New Rochelle Bride of Zowie of "The Hen Pecks."

Vernon Castle, the actor, and Miss Irene Foote were married yesterday at the Foote home, Beachmont Park, New Rochelle. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Mitchell. Miss Florence Eisendrath and Miss Louise Mathews were the bridesmaids and Gladwyn MacDougall was the best man.

Mr. Castle's real name is Vernon Castle Blythe. He is an Englishman, a graduate of Birmingham University, and came to this country several years ago to visit his brother-in-law, George Grossmith, Jr., who was then appearing with Lew Fields in "About Town." Mr. Fields took the young man into the company and has kept him under his management ever since. The bride is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. T. Foote of New Rochelle.

Mr. and Mrs. Blythe will spend the first week of their honeymoon at the Hotel Knickerbocker, and will sail for England immediately after the closing of "The Hen Pecks" next Saturday night. They will return the latter part of July.

GLEN ISLAND IS OPENED.

Boats to the Sound Resort Are Crowded, and All Amusements Prosper.

Glen Island was opened for the season yesterday, and about 25,000 people took advantage of the fine weather to see its new attractions. Seven steamboats, owned by the McAllister Steamboat Company, began a regular service between the Battery, East Twenty-third Street, and Glen Island, and the ferry from New Rochelle brought many more visitors.

The concessions, including a dip-the-dip, German village, merry-go-rounds, swings, and rides, moving picture show, and museum, all prospered, and there were many picnic parties on Beach Lawn. The bathing pavilion was well patronized, too. Vito Bavetta's Marine Band gave concerts in front of the Casino, and an orchestra furnished music for dancing inside.

OLD CLIPPER'S LAST TRIP.

The Alexander Gibson to be Converted Into a Coal Barge.

One of the last of the famous American clipper ships, the Alexander Gibson, sailed into port yesterday, completing her last voyage under sail for she is soon to be converted into a coal barge. She brought Oregon pine from Tacoma, one consignment in her cargo being a flag pole 185 feet long, which is to be shipped to Germany. The Gibson made the voyage from the Pacific Coast in 293 days.

The voyage just ended is also the last voyage for Peter Matson, A. B., who is 70 years old, and has been sailing into this port for twenty-three years. He will come to anchor in the Sailors' Snug Harbor on Staten Island.

The Gibson showed the effects of her long trip. Her hull is covered with barnacles and she has a slight list to port. During the days at sea she met with rough weather and had to remain at Valparaiso several weeks repairing damage done aloft. In a bad storm on the Pacific some of her spars were broken. The ship's carpenter used some of the cargo in effecting repairs. In one heavy blow it was necessary to jettison 50,000 feet of lumber.

An interesting member of the ship's company is Mag, a big tiger cat. When the vessel lay at Oakland, Cal., Mag was the pet on board the big schooner Karinga. She made friends with the ship's official cat and deserted schooner for ship bringing with her five kittens. Two kittens went to Japan on a steamship, one is in Barbados, and another will live on Staten Island with a friend of the ship's carpenter. During the long voyage Mag added to the roll sixteen kittens. They died at sea.

The Alexander Gibson was built at Thomastown, Me., in 1877.

COURT FOR METHODISTS.

Judicial Body Planned to Interpret Church Enactments.

A Supreme Court is planned for the Methodists. It will be known as the Final Court of Appeals. Its membership will be fifteen, three Bishops, and six each of ministers and laymen. Members are to be chosen by the General Conference, the Bishops to serve four years, the others four and eight years.

Co-ordinate with this new highest court will be others for members, local preachers, and ministers. Methodists find the General Conference, meeting every four years, to be both too large and too much burdened with other work to sit as a court. They reason, besides, that the same body that makes the laws ought not to construe them, so the new and highest court will have as its chief function the interpretation of Methodist enactments.

A commission has just made a report on this matter of courts, and it is considered certain that its report will be approved and the courts established by the next General Conference, meeting in May, 1912. Presbyterians recently perfected their judicial system. So did the Episcopalians. Other large Protestant bodies are either doing so or are studying the question.

WOMEN FOR A SANE FOURTH.

Approve Plans of Committee Arranging for Independence Day.

The committee which is planning a "safe and sane Fourth" has been encouraged by many letters of approval and practical support given by the women of the greater city. Every day Isaac Seligman, Treasurer of the general committee, receives approving notes from mothers of families and women interested in civic welfare movement. The writers, the committee assumes, believe that a "Sane Fourth Makes a Happy Fifth."

Several prominent women were invited by the Mayor to become members of the general committee. Mrs. E. H. Harriman, inclosing a check, wrote that "she appreciates the honor." Miss Helen Miller Gould wrote: "Will you kindly thank the Mayor for so kindly appointing me on the General Fourth of July Committee, and tell him I shall be glad to serve?" Notes and inclosures were received from Mrs. Frances T. Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Morgan, Jr., Miss Olivia Leventritt, Eleanor H. Johnson, and Miss Mary Taber.

Henry W. Taft, brother of the President, is among those who have heartily indorsed the movement, as are also the Rev. Dr. W. T. Manning, rector of Trinity; Henry Clews, Robert Goelet, Thomas M. Mulry, Charles M. Schwab, Ralph Peters, Justice Gerard, and Nathan Straus.

HEARD THAT BOYNTON BLEW UP THE MAINE

SPANISH PLOT, STORY SAID

Granted Capt. Boynton, Their Prisoner, Life and Liberty for Throwing Switch That Caused Explosion.

Capt. George B. Boynton, the American soldier of fortune whose career has been the subject of countless wonderful stories, revealed to a few intimate friends, shortly before his death in New York a few months ago, the fact that for some time he was under suspicion of being the man who blew up the battleship Maine in Havana harbor on Feb. 15, 1898. He succeeded in showing the Secret Service men, he said, that at the time of the explosion he was in Venezuela as Chief of Secret Service for President Crespo, whose life he saved on more than one occasion.

The story on which the United States Secret Service sought to connect Capt. Boynton with the occurrence was substantially as follows:

"The Spaniards were entirely unprepared for the visit of the Maine, which was sent to Havana suddenly and without warning. Consequently there was no mine attached to the buoy at which she was moored, though it was stated that one would have been placed there if it had been so much as suspected that she was coming. Once in the harbor she had the city and its defenses at her mercy, for all the modern guns in the surrounding fortifications faced the sea and none of them could be brought to bear on her.

"Capt. General Blanco and his staff did not relish having a hostile warship in such an advantageous position in the event of war with the United States, which they regarded as a possibility, if not a probability, and it was decided, as a military precaution, to blow her up under conditions which were intended to make it appear that she had been destroyed by an accidental explosion of her own magazines. It was concluded that a mine might not do enough damage, and, besides, it might leave traces that would be found by the divers who would investigate the disaster, so a large boiler from the navy yard was taken to the arsenal and filled with powder. It was provided with a mechanism by which it could be exploded by electricity, and hermetically sealed.

"It was impossible to place the improvised mine under the Maine, for every vessel or boat that approached the warship was closely watched, so the men in charge of the operation were ordered to place it in such a position that the battleship would swing around over it when the wind shifted. The boiler was lashed to a sling under a lighter, which was towed across the bow of the Maine at night and at as close quarters as it dared to go.

"When the lighter was directly in front of the battleship, the lines which carried the boiler were cut and it dropped into the mud. The Maine was then headed northeast, into the trade wind, and the mine was about 75 feet away from her. The wire by which the mine was to be exploded was led to the end of the Machina wharf, one of the Government docks, and it was then a question of waiting until a shift in the wind brought the warship over the boiler and of selecting some one to throw the switch that would set it off at the proper time.

"The Spaniards conceived the idea of having the mine fired by an American, which conformed to the conception of justice. The American named in the information that was given to the Secret Service was Capt. Boynton, who, it was said, had been captured shortly before while conducting a filibustering expedition for the Cubans, whom he had aided during the Ten Years' war, and was then imprisoned in Cabañas fortress. According to the story, he was at once tried and sentenced to death, but his life and liberty were offered him if he would press the button that was to destroy the Maine, and swear never to reveal the secret. He accepted these terms, and on the night of Feb. 15, 1898, when a change in the wind swung the Maine around until her bow was directly above the mine, which was only three or four feet away from her keel, he was taken to the Machina Wharf and threw the switch that produced the explosion, after which he was released."

The Secret Service worked on this story for a long time, but was unable to establish Capt. Boynton's connection with the alleged conspiracy. Chief Wilkie has never revealed the source of this information, nor the result of his investigations. Light may be thrown on its probability when the wreck of the Maine has been raised, which is expected to be accomplished by July 4.

John G. Meehan, who has an international detective agency in this city which has been employed for many years by Venezuela, Colombia, Haiti, Nicaragua, and other South and Central American Governments, has a sheaf of confidential reports showing the revolutionary activities of Capt. Boynton. Beginning with 1890 Mr. Meehan received numerous requests from practically all of the Latin-American Presidents to locate the Captain, who they feared or suspected, was stirring up some trouble for them. They did not want him arrested, chiefly because it was seldom possible to get conclusive evidence against him before he was ready to strike, but they were very anxious to be advised as to where he was and what he was doing.

Capt. Boynton was born of New England parents who lost track of him in 1873. According to his biographer his real name, which he would not permit to be revealed until after his death, was George Boynton Stone.

To Produce Drama by a Rabbi.

Hans Robert, who formerly starred in "Checkers," and last season played an important rôle in "Alma, Where Do You Live?" is to enter into partnership with Joseph M. Weber next season to produce a new play, called "A Man of Honor." The piece, a domestic drama, is by the Rev. Dr. Isaac Landmann, a rabbi of Philadelphia. Edmund Breese will have the star rôle, and the acting company will include Mr. Robert, Ralph Delmore, Ben Johnson, Edwin Robbins, and Mary Nash. The opening will be in the Broad Street Theatre, Philadelphia.

Train to Newark Every Nine Minutes.

Wilbur C. Fisk, Vice President of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad, which is building the fast line between Newark and New York, announced at a dinner given on Saturday night by the Newark Real Estate Board that when the line is opened in October trains will be run on nine minutes headway in rush hours and ten minutes at all other hours up to 1 o'clock in the morning.

WATCH ARBITRATION PLANS.

Nations Ask for Copies of Draft Treaty, Including Holland.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Other nations than France and Great Britain are awaiting with keen interest the development of the negotiations looking to a general arbitration treaty. Already Secretary Knox has received a number of applications from diplomatic representatives in Washington for copies of the draft of the treaty. Among them is one from the Netherlands, the home of the arbitration principle. The Secretary has declined to grant requests inspired by mere curiosity, but has let it be known that any nation professing a willingness to enter into negotiations for arbitration will be furnished with a copy.

Other purposes will be sufficiently served, in the Secretary's opinion, by a reference to the general outline of the proposed treaties made public by the State Department when they were submitted to the French and British Ambassadors for the consideration of their respective Governments.

BETH DAVID HOSPITAL SITE.

Block Facing East River Park Acquired for New Building.

The Federation of Russian Polish Hebrews of America has bought the entire block in Eighty-sixth Street, between Henderson Place and East End Avenue, facing East River Park, for a new building for the Beth David Hospital.

The committee of the federation has been at work for nearly a year looking for a site. The Beth David Hospital is at present at 246 and 248 East Eighty-second Street. Since the federation got control of the institution the demand for admission by poor patients became so great that it was decided to erect a larger and more modern institution.

The new hospital will be built on a lot 72 by 90 feet, will be six stories high, and will accommodate 150 beds, which will be free to the poor.

Luncheon for the Peace Delegates.

Mrs. Elmer E. Black will give a luncheon this afternoon at Sherry's to the English and German delegates to the Peace Conference recently held at Lake Mohonk, N. Y. The list of guests includes many prominent clergymen and peace workers. Mrs. Black is Chairman of the Propaganda Committee of the American Peace Arbitration League.

OLD BOOK DEALER DEAD.

Carl Schoenhof Had Been in Business in Boston for Fifty Years.

Carl Schoenhof, one of the oldest importers of books in this country and well known among book dealers of this and other large cities, died yesterday in his home in Brookline, Mass. Mr. Schoenhof, who founded the Schoenhof Book Company of Boston, had been in the book business for fifty years.

Mr. Schoenhof published several German textbooks which were adopted a few years ago by public schools. The funeral will take place to-morrow in Brookline.

George W. Tomkins.

George W. Tomkins, 69 years old, former Vice President of the Newark (N. J.) Board of Education, died yesterday morning in Roosevelt Hospital, in this city, where an operation was performed ten days ago for intestinal trouble. He had been failing rapidly since last Friday.

Before the operation Mr. Tomkins resigned his office with the Board of Education, which he had held three years. He was President of the Tomkins Brothers Company, in Newark, and President of the Newark Board of Trade in 1901 and 1902.

BRITISH POLO TEAM SHOWS GREAT FORM

Last Practice at Cedarhurst Developed Play Which Thrilled the Big Crowd Present.

To wind up their practice play yesterday on the Rockaway Club field at Cedarhurst, the British challengers, Capts. Cheape, Edwards, Lloyd, and Wilson, gave an exhibition of scientific polo before 2,000 votaries of the sport, that was most instructive and comprehensive. Only six periods were played, but every chukker bristled with striking incidents of the game. The score, 9½ to 5½, being a fair indication of the form developed.

For several chukkers there was not much time for calm consideration, as the pace was quite fast enough to suit sticklers for speed. No fault could be found with the Englishmen yesterday in regard to slow turning, deliberate attack, or heavy massing over the ball at the boundaries or in centre field. The game was decidedly an open affair, absolutely clear of friction, and whatever argument developed was carried on in a gentlemanly way. The Rockaway, or mixed, team gained merit while it gathered knowledge all through the afternoon. Malcolm Stevenson was a stiff factor on his side from the moment things grew interesting in the third period, and prior thereto he was in place every moment, steering balls for Phipps and La Montagne to dally with.

It was after the half-time had been taken out, and when Wilson realized that his side was 5½ to 0 on the shoreboard, that he began to plunge in strenuously and indulge in long, harum-scarum rides. The goal he recorded came after six minutes of exciting polo and right in the midst of some remarkable infield work that the Rockaways, in blue, had mapped out. They had reckoned without Edwards and Cheape, however, and just as seon as the latter sailed in earnestly there was little else to it. It fairly showered goals of English design all through the third rally, and the bugler, Sergt. Gray, whose expert services had been engaged as a distinct novelty, was kept busy sounding "boots and saddles" to get the teams into line three times in as many minutes, so persistent were the visits of Lieut. Edwards and Capt. Lloyd to the dark-blue goal. The introduction of a bugler into polo was something entirely new to all onlookers, save those who had enjoyed polo at army outposts or on Indian fields.

By all odds, the fifth chukker was the gem of the collection. Not since the early days at Lakewood has a more remarkable demonstration of position play been rendered. Capt. Cheape picked the ball up the instant Joshua Crane, the sharp-eyed referee, had thrown it into play. On the officer's second shot the stick struck the air, which gave Malcolmn Stevenson his chance to score, but the pace was a bit too fast, and he rode over the sphere unfortunately. Cheape had "gone to his man" effectively and kept him out of the way while Capt. Lloyd drove through. The strong clip was rather unexpected, and as he turned the eastern corner the rest of the company formed into line and then flew across the greensward like birds in migration. Rene La Montagne next got his chance to turn a trick, but the pesky ball struck the post and glanced an inch on the wrong side. Capt. Cheape's lofting strokes were astonishing, and not since the early days at Lakewood has the cavalryman sent them higher.

The line-up:

BRITISH TEAM.	FREEBOOTERS
1—Capt. Cheape,	1—J. S. Phipps,
2—Capt. Edwards,	2—R. La Montagne,
3—Capt. Lloyd,	3—Malcolm Stevenson,
Back—Capt. Wilson.	Back—J. Cheever Cowdin

Goals—Edwards, 4; Wilson, 1; Lloyd, 1; Cheape, 4, less ½. Total 9½. LaMontagne, 2; Cowdin, 1; J. S. Phipps, 2; Stevenson, 2, less 1 on penalties. Total 5½. Referee—Lieut. Palmes.

Pell Reaches Third Round.

Theodore R. Pell, the National indoor lawn tennis champion, experienced a busy but successful day on the courts of the New York Club, 123d Street and Manhattan Avenue, yesterday. In the Felipe Challenge Cup singles, the open event of the tournament, under the direction of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, Pell won his place in the third round. In turn he defeated Frederick C. Baggs, 6—3, 6—0, and I. Hartman, 3—6, 6—3, 6—0.

REFEREE PRAISES COLLEGE GAMES

James E. Sullivan Says Intercollegiate Contests Were Best in History of Athletics.

"The greatest series of games the world has ever seen," was the summing up of James E. Sullivan, the referee of the intercollegiate sports held Saturday at Cambridge. "We have always looked back at the 1895 internationals as about the limit of perfection in the world of track and field, but really a new athletic epoch was created by the many who competed in the games.

"With one world's record, five intercollegiate marks broken, and three others equaled, the sports stand unrivaled in performances of excellence. Of course, the work of Jones eclipses that of any athlete who ever participated in a double event. It is my idea that the Cornellian can, under the climatic and track conditions which prevailed last Saturday, and without a previous race under his belt, go to the tape in a half-mile race close to 1:51. Again, in a mile event, a man with his pace would have no trouble in going to the half-mile mark in 2:03, and come home in time better than even the world's professional record, viz., 4:12¾, which has stood the test of time, having been made over a generation ago.

"Then again, there's that sterling performer Harry Babcock, the backbone of Columbia's athletics, who ten days ago failed to vault over 10 feet 6 inches. Yet he cleared 12 feet 8⅜ inches, and who will say that he has not 13 feet within his reach? And he did his great work with a borrowed pole, loaned to him by Harry Hillman.

"Only once before Saturday have we seen a man run 100 yards in 0:09 4-5, and come back and do 0:21 1-5 for the furlong, this being when Bernie Wefers did the trick in 1896, and duplicated by Ralph Craig of Michigan. The new shot put and two-mile marks, accomplished by Horner and Berna, were looked for, but the possible surprise in the runs was the work of Young, the Amherst man who tied Taylor's record in the quarter.

"It's been many a moon since Pennsy has left an intercollegiate series without an out-and-out first place, and yet that is what we see as the result of the games. The Red and Blue got a triple tie as the nearest to a victory, this being in the high jump, which had been conceded as one of the certainties to the Quakers.

"The so-called minor teams cut more figure in the point column than is usually the case, and worked havoc with the aspirations of the big fellows. I'm glad to see this phase of the competitive situation, and trust that they will continue to send in entries to the games, and not be scared out by the presumed prowess of those whose wants are supposed to be catered to in more advantageous fashion.

"With the advent of keener competition, I notice that the idea of fairness in their dealings with opponents is preeminent in the work of the college men now engaged in track sport. It was unnecessary for me to take any action which touched upon the proposition of fouling, unwitting or otherwise, and the various coaches and managers are to be thanked for bringing about such a condition of affairs, which is, of course, probably helped by the rules."

Touchard Gets Bronx Tennis Cup.

Gustave F. Touchard won the Bronx lawn tennis championship singles yesterday on the courts of the Bedford Park Club at Mosholu Parkway. As the challenger for the cup and title Touchard defeated Carlton R. Gardner, the Californian and holder, 6—4, 5—7, 6—3, 9—7. The game score was 26 games to 2, and 164 points to 148. Touchard has now his second leg on the trophy, which is one of the most valuable ever offered in this section of the country.

AMATEUR RACE MEETINGS.

Record Entry Lists for Belmont Park and Brookline Club.

If any doubt remains of the importance of the amateur race meetings of the present season it should be at once dispelled by the list of entries received for the meetings of the United Hunts, at the Belmont Park Terminal, and those for the three-day meeting of the Brookline Country Club. For the two-day meeting of the United Hunts no fewer than 207 entries have been received, while for Brookline there are entries of 261. The United Hunts meeting will be held June 8 and 10, while the three days selected for the racing at Brookline are June 17, 21, and 24.

For the meetings at both Belmont Park Terminal and at Brookline races are offered for the army officers, and with entries of 16 in one and 11 in another at Belmont, and a like number in the two at Brookline, the interest in the features is readily apparent. For the meetings the best cross-country horses now in training will be brought together.

Davis Cup Matches Not Likely.

Again, early in the season, the prospects of there being international tennis matches for the Davis Cup are dwindling. From an official note from London received in this country yesterday it appears that South Africa, which challenged as a nation for the first time, is likely to default. England, or, as the cup conditions put it, the British Isles, is finding it difficult to secure players willing to journey to Australia. Controversy there is becoming heated, as the advice of the majority of the leaders is against sending a team and incurring the expense unless the top class players are willing to go. The prospect of the United States sending a team is generally regarded as uncertain.

Compare Your Car With a Silent Six

If you own a high-powered car we suggest that you try this experiment—have the driver throttle it down as far as possible on the high gear and see how fast you are going.

¶ Then think how much comfort would be added in city driving if the car would only stay on high gear at half that speed, without stalling or missing.

¶ A Silent Six will throttle down or up, from over sixty miles an hour to the pace of a man walking—without changing from high gear.

¶ You can try it for yourself—step out of the car and walk beside it. You will notice also its extreme quietness—hard to describe because like the car's flexibility it exceeds previously known standards.

We take particular pleasure in demonstrating the Silent Six to these men.

The Big Four

¶ We find that there are many users of high-grade cars who still prefer the four-cylinder type. For them we continue our Big Four—a 50-horse power chain-driven car that is known on two continents for its absolute dependability even under the roughest touring conditions.

¶ We have been building Big Fours for eight years, and every Big Four engine is still in service. For heavy touring service it has many advantages over a shaft-driven car, and the records of its service with owners are really remarkable.

Demonstrating appointments for the Silent Six or the Big Four may be made in person or by telephone.

The LOZIER in New York

The first LOZIER Cars were built seven years ago to meet the requirements of New Yorkers who sought an American car to meet the high standards then found only in the foreign automobile. Although the reputation of the LOZIER has since extended throughout the world, it is still a car peculiarly suited to New Yorkers.

The LOZIER is made for those who can afford and who demand the best. It appeals to the man who possesses not merely wealth, but discernment. It is high-priced, but legitimately so, and particular people demand it.

When you see a LOZIER Car, you may know that it is owned by a person accustomed to the best—a man of affairs, a man whose keen judgment has won him the success that enables him to possess the luxuries and comforts of life.

You are invited to visit our Eastern branch and inspect the 1912 Models—six cylinders and four—now being delivered.

Mitchell The Famous Model R

THOUSANDS of physicians, salesmen and women today find the Mitchell Model R an indispensable factor in their business routine. In fact, there are so many in use everywhere that the model needs no introduction. It is offered for 1911 with only minor refinements and development of details.

MODEL R is equipped with the same 4-cylinder, 30 H. P. motor as used in the Model T touring car making it speedy and smooth running with an abundance of power. As a convenient and reliable conveyance for the man whose business or pleasure requires a safe and sure maintenance of a fast average speed over average roads, uphill as well as on the level, you cannot find its equal.

GOOD materials, ample proportions, liberal bearing areas, correct assembling and a saving of weight wherever the same is possible without sacrifice of strength, place Mitchell Cars in a class by themselves from the standpoint of low maintenance and operating costs.

MASTER'S SALES.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT, NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS.—

THE MERCANTILE TRUST COMPANY, TRUSTEE; THE FARMERS' LOAN AND TRUST COMPANY, TRUSTEE; GEORGE J. GOULD, ET ALS., COMPLAINANTS, VERSUS, INTERNATIONAL AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY, DEFENDANT.

Consolidated Cause No. 2,501.

THE FARMERS' LOAN AND TRUST COMPANY, TRUSTEE, COMPLAINANT, VERSUS INTERNATIONAL AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY, THE MERCANTILE TRUST COMPANY, AND THOMAS J. FREEMAN, AS RECEIVER OF THE INTERNATIONAL AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY, DEFENDANTS.

Equity Cause No. 2,514.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that in pursuance of a decree in these causes made and entered on or about the tenth day of May, 1910, foreclosing the mortgage made by the International and Great Northern Railroad Company to The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, as Trustee, dated June 15th, 1881; and of decrees of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Texas, entered on or about the 25th day of June, 1910; the Eastern District of Texas, entered on or about the 27th day of June, 1910; and the Western District of Texas, entered on or about the 29th day of June, 1910; in the suits in equity in each of said last mentioned Districts pending, wherein The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, Trustee, is complainant, and the International and Great Northern Railroad Company, The Mercantile Trust Company, and Thomas J. Freeman, as Receiver of The International and Great Northern Railroad Company, are defendants, and in accordance with an order dated September 28th, 1910, made and entered in said Consolidated Cause No. 2,501, and in said Equity Cause No. 2,514; I, WILLIAM H. FLIPPEN, the Master Commissioner in and by said decrees appointed for the purpose, will, on Tuesday, the sixteenth day of May, 1911, at twelve o'clock, noon, at the passenger depot of the International and Great Northern Railroad Company in the City of Palestine, in the County of Anderson, in the State of Texas, sell at public auction, to the highest bidder therefor, and as an entirety, and without valuation, appraisement, redemption or extension, and with all muniments of title thereto and evidences of ownership thereof, the following property, premises, and franchises described in the said decrees, as follows:

"ALL and singular the lands, tenements, and hereditaments of the defendant International and Great Northern Railroad Company, whether owned at the date of the execution of the said Second Mortgage, namely, on the 15th day of June, 1881, or thereafter acquired by it, including its lines of railroad in the State of Texas, extending from the town of Longview, in the County of Gregg, in said State, through said County, and through the Counties of Rusk, Smith, Cherokee, Anderson, Leon, Robertson, Milam, Williamson, Travis, Hays, Comal, Bexar, Medina, Frio, La Salle, Encinal, and Webb, to Laredo in said last-mentioned County; and from the town of Mineola in Wood County to Troupe in Smith County; and from the City of Palestine in Anderson County, through the Counties of Houston, Trinity, Walker, and Montgomery, to Houston in Harris County; and from the town of Spring in Harris County, through the Counties of Montgomery, Waller, Grimes, Brazos, Robertson, Falls, McLennan, Limestone, Hill, Navarro, Ellis, and Johnson, to the City of Fort Worth, Tarrant County; with branches and branch lines from the town of Overton to the town of Henderson, in Rusk County, from the town of Round Rock to Georgetown in Williamson County, from the town of Phelps to the town of Huntsville in Walker County, from the City of Houston in Harris County to the town of Colombia in Brazoria County, from Navasota in Grimes County to Madisonville in Madison County, from Calvert Junction to Calvert, and from Waco Junction to East Waco; also, the railway and railway tracks and property appurtenant thereto, and certain tracts of land in and adjacent to the City of Houston in Harris County, State of Texas, known as the Houston Belt Terminals; a total distance of about eleven hundred and six miles of completed railroad, all in the State of Texas; also the trackage rights of the said International and Great Northern Railroad Company from Houston in Harris County to Galveston in Galveston County, in said State of Texas, over the railroad of the Galveston, Houston & Henderson Railroad Company, of 1882, accorded to it by an agreement between said last-named railroad company and said International and Great Northern Railroad Company, dated November 19th, 1895; also, all and singular the said International and Great Northern Railroad Company's railroads, tracks, rights of way, main lines, branch lines, superstructures, depots, depot-grounds, station houses, engine houses, car houses, freight houses, wood houses, sheds, watering places, workshops, machine shops, bridges, viaducts, culverts, fences, and fixtures, together with all its leases, leasehold-interests, leased or hired lands, leased or hired railroads, and all its locomotives, tenders, cars, carriages, coaches, trucks, and other rolling stock; its machinery, tools, weighing scales, turn tables, rails, wood, coal, oil, fuel, equipment, furniture, and material of every name, nature, and description, together with all its corporate rights, privileges, immunities, and franchises, whether held at the time of the execution of the said Second Mortgage, namely, on June 15th, 1881, or thereafter acquired (including the franchise to be a corporation), and all the tolls, fares, freights, rents, income, issues, and profits thereof, and all the reversion and reversions, remainder and remainders thereof, as well as all property purchased or held by the Receiver herein, including any balance of cash, credits, and income which may remain in his hands after application thereof, as herein provided or as has been or may hereafter be directed by the Court herein, to the payment of receivership obligations and charges and to the payment of claims which may be allowed by the Court herein against the same with priority over said Second Mortgage dated June 15th, 1881; excepting, however, all land grants, lands, land certificates, town lots, and town sites, owned or controlled by the said International and Great Northern Railroad Company at the date of the execution of said Second Mortgage, namely, on June 15th, 1881, or at any time prior to said date, which were not, on the first day of November, 1879, or thereafter up to the said 15th day of June, 1881, actually occupied and in use by the said Railroad Company and necessary to the occupation and maintenance of its lines of railroad; and excepting, further, any portions of said premises and property which may have been released from the lien and operation of said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, and the releases for which have been duly filed for record in the proper county."

The said premises and property will be sold subject to the mortgage dated November 1st, 1879, made by said International and Great Northern Railroad Company to John S. Kennedy and Samuel Sloan, as trustees, and known as said Railroad Company's First Mortgage, and subject also to any unpaid indebtedness or liability contracted or incurred by said International and Great Northern Railroad Company in the operation of its Railroad, which the Court has, since the entry of said decree herein, ordered or decreed, or which it may hereafter order or decree herein, to be prior or superior to the lien of the said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, except such as shall be paid or satisfied out of the income of the property in the hands of the Receiver herein under orders of the Court entered or to be entered herein; and subject also to such debts, claims, liens, and demands of whatsoever nature heretofore incurred or created, or which may hereafter be incurred or created by the Receiver herein under orders of the Court heretofore or hereafter entered herein and which have not been or shall not hereafter be paid by said Receiver under orders of the Court heretofore or hereafter entered herein, or other parties in interest herein; or out of the proceeds of the said sale as in said decree directed; and certain specific portions of said property and premises, namely: The San Antonio Passenger Station, the Colorado Bridge and certain equipment, will be sold respectively subject to the existing recorded mechanic's lien, the First Mortgage Colorado Bridge Bonds and the unsatisfied recorded equipment liens, specifically and respectively affecting the same.

The Master Commissioner will receive no bid from any person until such person shall have deposited with him the sum of $100,000. Such deposit will be returned in case the depositor's bid be not accepted; but if his bid be accepted, then such deposit will be held by the Master Commissioner on account of the purchase price.

The purchaser, when the property is struck down to him, shall at once pay the Master Commissioner on account of his purchase a sufficient sum to make up with his deposit ten per centum of his accepted bid. The deposit required before bidding shall be paid in United States currency or in such certified draft, certificate or cheque as may be satisfactory to the Master Commissioner, or in a certificate of The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company duly made payable to the order of said Master Commissioner. Said further payment shall be made either as aforesaid, or in the bonds and coupons secured by the said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, taken at a valuation equal to the amount said bonds and coupons would be entitled to receive in cash out of the amount bid for the said property. The certificate of the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company that it holds bonds and coupons as therein described subject to the order of the party named therein, such certificate being by him transferred to the order of said Master Commissioner, will be accepted in lieu of such bonds and coupons. Should such further payment not be made, the property will be forthwith resold, without further advertisement, the Court reserving the right to consider such resale made on account of said successful bidder or as an original sale; and in case of such resale, the deposit received from the said successful bidder will be applied on account of the purchase price. Such further portions of the purchase price shall be paid in money as the Court may from time to time direct, the Court reserving the right to resell the premises and property herein directed to be sold upon the failure of the purchaser or purchasers, his, its or their successors or assigns, to comply with any order of the Court in that regard, and in case of any such resale or the failure of the said purchaser or purchasers, his, its or their assigns, to comply with the terms of the bid or the orders of the Court relative to such additional payments, the said money, bonds and coupons so paid in as aforesaid shall be forfeited as liquidated damages and shall be applied toward the expenses of any resale ordered, or toward making good any deficiency or loss in case the property at such resale shall bring less than at the prior sale. The balance of the purchase price may be paid either in money or in bonds or overdue coupons secured by the said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, each said bond and coupon being received for such sum as the holder thereof would be entitled to receive under the distribution herein ordered and according to the priority herein adjudged. The certificate of the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company that it holds bonds and coupons as therein described subject to the order of the party named therein, said certificate being by him transferred to the order of said Master Commissioner, will be accepted in lieu of such bonds and coupons.

Within thirty days from the confirmation of said sale or such further time as the Court may allow on application of the purchaser for good cause shown, the purchaser or purchasers, his, its or their successors and assigns, shall complete payment of the entire amount bid to the Master Commissioner; and on such payment the said purchaser or purchasers, his, its or their successors and assigns, will be entitled to receive a deed of conveyance and bill of sale of the property purchased from the Master Commissioner, and from the other parties to this cause as in said decree herein provided, and to receive possession of the property so purchased from the parties holding possession of the same, subject, however, to the said mortgage, dated November 1st, 1879, made by said International and Great Northern Railroad Company to John S. Kennedy and Samuel Sloan, as Trustees, and known as said Railroad Company's First Mortgage; and subject also to any unpaid indebtedness or liability contracted or incurred by said International and Great Northern Railroad Company in the operation of its Railroad, which the Court, since the entry of the said decree herein has ordered or decreed, or may hereafter order or decree herein, to be prior or superior to the lien of said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, except such as shall be paid or satisfied out of the income of the property in the hands of the receiver herein, under orders of the Court entered or to be entered herein, and subject also to such debts, claims, liens, and demands of whatsoever nature heretofore incurred or created, or which may hereafter be incurred or created by the Receiver herein under orders of the Court heretofore or hereafter entered herein, and which have not been or shall not hereafter be paid by said Receiver under orders of the Court heretofore or hereafter entered herein, or other parties in interest herein, or out of the proceeds of said sale, as in said decree directed, and subject also, as to certain specific portions of said property and premises, namely, the San Antonio Passenger Station, the Colorado Bridge and certain equipment, to the existing recorded mechanic's lien, the First Mortgage Colorado Bridge Bonds and the unsatisfied recorded equipment liens specifically and respectively affecting the same. And the Court reserves jurisdiction over said property, notwithstanding such deed or deeds or delivery of possession, for the purpose of enforcing such payment.

For a more detailed statement of the terms and conditions under which said sale will be made, reference is hereby made to the said decrees and each and every one of them on file with the Clerks of the several Courts hereinbefore mentioned.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—A change to considerably cooler weather will overspread the Upper Lake region and the Upper Mississippi Valley and the Plains States, and temperature continues below the normal in the Rocky Mountain and plateau regions. There was a general increase in temperature on Sunday in the Atlantic States, and high temperatures were again reported from the Ohio and Lower Mississippi Valleys, the Lower Lake region, and the East Gulf States. Temperatures will be lower Monday in the Ohio Valley, the Lower Lake region, the interior of New York and Northeast Pennsylvania, and Tuesday in the Middle Atlantic and New England States. Somewhat higher temperature is indicated for the Northwest States Monday, and the North Plains States Tuesday.

The weather will be generally fair Monday and Tuesday in the Atlantic States, although conditions will probably become unsettled in the Middle Atlantic States Tuesday.

The winds along the New England Coast will be moderate variable, becoming west; Middle and South Atlantic Coast and East Gulf Coast, variable.

Steamers departing Monday for European ports will have moderate variable winds and generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND TUESDAY.

New England.—Fair Monday; slightly cooler in northwest portion. Tuesday probably fair and somewhat cooler; moderate variable winds, becoming west.

Eastern New York.—Fair Monday, cooler in north and central portions. Tuesday probably fair; light to moderate variable winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania.—Fair Monday, slightly cooler north portion. Tuesday probably fair; moderate temperature; light variable winds.

	1910.	1911.		1910.	1911.
3 A. M.	52	59	4 P. M.	77	77

Margin of Safety in Investments

The wise investment of money is not simply a question of safety; nor, on the other hand, is it merely a matter of income. It is in reality a combination of the two.

While it is impossible to present any fixed rule, it is generally laid down by experts as an axiom that when a bond issue represents from one-half to one-third the true value of a property mortgaged, then the margin of security is ample.

If, moreover, the income applicable to interest charges on a given bond issue is from two to three times the annual requirement, then the margin of earnings is ample.

If, in addition, the bonds yield approximately 5 per cent. and have a reasonably broad market, then they combine:

1. Safety as to principal.
2. Liberality of income.
3. Convertibility into cash.
4. Opportunity for profit.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

On a limited scale the steel trade of the country is being put to a test to determine whether or not concessions in prices are all that is necessary to stimulate consumption and start the trade on a recovery from the depression into which it has fallen. An extension of this procedure to include all, or practically all, steel products was regarded last week as a possible, and by many as a probable, outcome of the situation presented by the cut in steel-bar prices made by the Republic Iron and Steel Company and met by other makers. Conferences are to be held this week, at which it is expected that the desirability at this time of a general revision in steel prices will be canvassed, and upon the decision reached on this question will depend whether or not the cuts made last week are to be regarded merely as an incident of the present dullness in the steel trade or as the first stage in a development of prime importance to the steel trade and to the business of the country at large. The attitude of the United States Steel Corporation in a situation such as is now presented is very clearly defined. Under the corporation's price policy reductions are considered desirable only for the purpose of protecting the corporation's customers in the face of reductions made by others or when it clearly appears, in the judgment of the management, that a cut in prices would bring a large increase in orders. A cut in prices merely for the purpose of obtaining a somewhat larger share of current orders does not fall within the policy to which the Steel Corporation has committed itself. For this reason no danger seems to be presented of a price war such as in earlier years demoralized the steel trade. Such price wars in the long run work harm, and not good, and such incidental advantages as they possess from the point of view of the consumer are in nowise comparable to the much greater advantage of an orderly revision of prices made to meet changed conditions. The significance attaching to the Steel Corporation's price policy just at this time lies in the fact that a general revision in prices under the leadership of the United States Steel Corporation will very reasonably be accepted as equivalent to an announcement that, in the opinion of the peculiarly well informed and conservative management of that corporation, the steel trade is ready for a very considerable increase in activity under the encouragement of price concessions to consumers. Such being the case, the present situation seems to present no reason for the uneasiness which for a time was displayed in the stock market last week. Taking the week's record as a whole, however, it is very clear that the securities markets were disposed to accept calmly a turn in steel trade affairs which more likely than not will lead at no very distant date to some measure, and perhaps to a large measure, of relief from the dullness which has lately prevailed in that trade. The ground for this expectation, on the assumption that those are right who anticipate a general price revision at this time, is found in the record of the course which events took following the general revisions which were made in the steel trade two years ago and further back in 1904. Both in February, 1909, and August, 1904, the position was similar to that which now confronts steel manufacturers. The review this record made last week indicates very clearly the beneficial effect of those price revisions. In both those years activity followed the cuts in prices with only moderate delay, and there are no elements in the present situation which preclude the assumption that in the present instance also an orderly reduction in prices, under the leadership of the principal interest in the steel trade, would bring increased orders and stimulate the general business of the country.

A development not immediately associated with the course of events in the steel trade, but which nevertheless has an important relation to those events, was the improvement which occurred last week in the demand for bonds and the successful placing of a number of issues, including long-term bonds issued by several railroad corporations. The ability of the railroads, the chief customers of the country's steel mills, to buy freely depends upon their ability to obtain needed new capital, and the success which attended last week's security issues shows that there is a market available for a large amount of railroad financing. In this connection the return of the money market last week to the level prevailing before the recent advance in rates brought about by the more active Stock Exchange borrowing of funds is interesting as bearing on the ease with which corporation appeals for new capital are likely to be met.

To-day there is a possibility of the rendering of the Supreme Court's decision in the American Tobacco case, but the security markets watch for this event with less intense interest than that with which this and the Standard Oil decision were awaited up to a fortnight ago. The Supreme Court's decision in the Standard Oil case has laid down a principle which must necessarily govern in the American Tobacco case, and for this reason the importance attaching to the decision which still remains to be rendered has been considerably diminished from the point of view of the financial markets. In other words, the decision in this case is now looked upon as likely to be merely the application to an individual corporation of the principle which has already been laid down in the Standard Oil case. Whatever the nature of the American Tobacco decision may be, the principle stand established that reasonable restraints of competition are not contrary to the law of the land and that the Sherman law forbids only those corporation policies and practices which are unreasonable.

The series of irregular movements which accompanied last week's reduced volume of transactions on the Stock Exchange brought very little net change in the average level of prices. Neither the active industrials nor the active railway shares showed on the average more than a fractional change at the close of the week, despite the fairly sharp movements which in some stocks on some days lent interest to the trading. United States Steel, because of the importance of the week's developments in the steel trade, occupied the pivotal position in the transactions on the Stock Exchange, but the influence of its movement on the average price level was offset by advances in other stocks. At the low price of the week—77%—United States Steel was selling about 4 points below the highest figure reached in the buying movement which followed the Standard Oil decision, but that still left it over 2 points above the price at which it was selling two weeks ago today. In view of the character of the steel trade news, this record may well be pointed to as illustrating the very large degree of stability which United States Steel has been showing, and which unquestionably is one of the fruits of the turning back into the property of so many millions of the corporation's surplus earnings since its organization, a decade ago.

BOURSE LANGUID, TOO.

Looks to American Tobacco Decision to Enliven Copper Market.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 28.—Throughout last week, which was broken by the holiday of Ascension, the Bourse showed little inclination to do business. The effect of the good news from Morocco was counterbalanced by Russia's diplomatic intervention in Turkey. Thus general dullness continued until the close.

The Supreme Court's decision on the American Tobacco case is rather anxiously awaited here, as it is hoped it will be an instrument to enliven the copper market.

Better business is looked for in the coming week.

LONDON STOCKS DULL.

Gold Influx from Paris Counterbalanced by Brazilian Demands.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 28.—The Exchange throughout the week was dull. Speculation was inactive and conditions generally depressing.

The gold influx from Paris, due to an excess of French imports over exports, has been offset by demands from Brazil, but, on the whole, money conditions are expected to take a turn for the better.

BOERSE AFFECTED BY RUMORS.

Price Cutting in American Steel and Mexican War Depress Market.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 28.—Although money rates continue temptingly low, operations on the Boerse last week were dull. The market was unfavorably influenced by fears of a Russian-Turkish diplomatic conflict, and fresh disturbances in Mexico. Domestic steels, and irons were especially depressed on bad trade reports, but revived on assurance of no price cutting because of war imminent in the American Steel industry.

WHEAT'S COURSE A PUZZLE TO DEALERS

Milling Interests Hold Aloof Despite All Varied Crop Alarms.

CORN DOWN, BUT OATS SOAR

Cotton Trade, Swayed by Rumors, Awaits the Government Report.

Decided confusion is apparent in many circles of the wheat trade, which is at a loss to account for the latent strength displayed by the market at various times. Naturally the spasmodic advances that have occurred recently were justified to some extent by the character of crop advices from scattered localities, but on the other hand the impressive feature of the situation has been the tendency of the market to practically ignore bearish news. Occasionally information would be promulgated which ordinarily would exert considerable bearish influence if not actual selling, but recently advices unfavorable to holders of wheat received comparatively little recognition.

At the commencement of last week the entire Winter wheat belt received a fall of precipitation which was generally commented upon as being very opportune, while dispatches pertaining to the American and Spring wheat belt for the past several weeks have been of such a character as to warrant unusual optimism. Nevertheless a sudden change in the American Southwest to dry and hot weather resulted in many claims of deterioration. These messages were very pessimistic from Oklahoma and Texas, it being estimated that the outturn in those States would not exceed one-third or half of last year's crops, which aggregated to approximately 44,000,000 bushels. Western Kansas this season has been known to be practically eliminated from the wheat-growing sections, but why so much emphasis should be placed on a comparatively small area is the puzzling feature at present. Canada alone with favorable crop prospects to the end of the season promises an outturn of probably 25 per cent. greater than that of last year, according to unbiased estimates. In 1910 the crop amounted to 150,000,000 bushels in that country. It is therefore readily discernible that such an increase with the million acre increase in the Spring wheat belt as compared with last year and generally high promise until recently of most sections of the Winter wheat belt, aside from the Southwest, crop advices do not point to a catastrophe. In the meanwhile the advices from abroad are indicative of favorable prospects in the principal producing countries there. The drought in Russia has been relieved, while dry conditions in Roumania have also been ameliorated, and, with the exception of reports of frost in Hungary, foreign crop information has been almost monotonously favorable. In Argentina complaints have been conspicuous by their absence.

The momentary attention, therefore, given the general run of good crop advices and the wide advertising of scattered complaints would seem to indicate to some extent that sentiment favors the line of least resistance at present, which does not point toward lower prices. The consensus of opinion is that original bulls have been reinforced by several large interests, and the tenor of market advices indicates a disposition to operate on the buying side when small setbacks make their appearance. For the basis of the bullish enthusiasm is given the debatable argument that present prices discount present crop advices, and therefore any change must be for the worse and would be quickly reflected in values. The point is also made that Argentina and Russia have been heavy shippers during the entire season, underselling America, but notwithstanding this, foreign stocks at present are not burdensome, and on a cessation of supplies from those countries America may have an opportunity to partially rid herself of a surplus that promises to amount to approximately 100,000,000 bushels, unless an improvement in export business is noted between now and the first of July. Prospects, however, of such a betterment are not bright at the moment, as even with the rather attractive level of new crop wheat, bids in some instances from foreign sources are known to be from 2 cents to 3 cents a bushel below a working basis.

While some interests stoutly maintain that with the elimination of the May option at Chicago in a few days, bear aggressiveness will probably be encouraged, this view is not widely entertained. Many interests who were short that month and long others in the way of switches, were undoubtedly punished; but notwithstanding this the belief is prevalent that the deal to date has not been successful from a bull standpoint. However, it is the impression that the accepting of delivery of considerable wheat and the subsequent squeeze of shorts has been more profitable than would have been the liquidation of contracts in the open market. This wheat, however, taken in, will have to be disposed of, and it is just for this reason that there are many authorities who suspect leading holders in May as the principal bulls in other options, with their efforts mainly for the purpose of distributing their cash wheat at as favorable a level as possible.

Demand for the cash article recently has not been encouraging, with millers generally saying that there is little incentive for buying other than immediate requirements. The flour business has been of meagre proportions as buyers on the whole, similar to many wheat operators, have not yet become convinced that with the present crop outlook, prevailing levels are low enough.

CORN.

Probably the most bullish feature in the situation is the ability of farmers to withhold corn on the decline, while at the same time the cash and export interests are urgent enough on those recessions to imbue confidence into the ranks of holders. There was an increased movement during the week and following the rains over the greater section of the belt last Sunday and Monday, offerings from first hands did increase, but they failed to cause any pressure in passing to consuming channels. Despite the knowledge of large available supplies, the market appears to be resting on a supply and demand basis, with the commercial situation encouraging to the bulls. Material advances, however, appear to be checked at present by an increase in country sales on the bulges just as declines are checked by a falling off in offerings. This tendency can naturally be expected to continue until the situation becomes more acute one way or the other. The dry weather complained of in wheat and oats circles is not regarded seriously in the corn trade, although intermittent showers will be of benefit.

OATS.

A revival of bull speculation such as has not been witnessed in several years appeared in oats during the week. There were confident predictions of the acreage being materially reduced, and this, in conjunction with prospects of an unsatisfactory hay crop, has already had the effect of influencing sentiment. The hot and dry weather which prevailed over the belt during the greater part of the week led to many bullish advices, and deterioration reports, especially in the extreme Southwest, were numerous. Some relief was promised by the Weather Bureau toward the close of the week from showers and lower temperatures, but this only appeared to have a temporary effect in stemming bull excitement.

PROVISIONS.

The belief that packing interests control a large part of available provisions product at present has led to expectations in many quarters of a rather steady undertone being maintained. Consuming inquiry has been from fair to good, with more disposition shown to absorb cash offerings at these levels, particularly from foreigners. On the other hand, however, there has been little to encourage the idea that hogs will not be in sufficient volume for the remainder of the season to furnish the needed product, and, owing to this impression, speculative buying has been restricted.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Developments of last week were not of a character to infuse enthusiasm into the ranks of either those in favor of higher prices or interests preferring a decline. Considerable interest was manifest in dealings by the consuming trade in general, due to insistent reports that refining interests control the bulk of available supplies, but the disposition appeared to be a waiting one, to await the power of controlling interests in maintaining prices. For a time values were very firm, but near the close of the week a substantial recession resulted from a withdrawal of bull support. The set-back was also attributed to a cessation in the inquiry from consuming sources. Claims were made that compounders could not afford to pay 8¼@8½c for oleostearine and purchase loose oil on the basis of approximately 47 cents for the manufacture of compound lard and dispose of it profitably. It was also asserted that foreigners were not inclined to follow the market with their bids, evidently having supplied their requirements for the time being. Further concessions in the tallow market had a sympathetic effect, but tallow for sometime past has been realtively cheaper than cottonseed oil from a soapmaker's point of view.

Despite the diminution in demand, sentiment on the bear side was not greatly augmented. Many were expecting a renewal of support from refiners on a decided recession, while there was an inclination to await definite crop accounts which will have a direct bearing upon the season-end demand for oil. At present a rather bearish bureau report is expected on June 2, both in regard to acreage and condition of the plant, but undoubtedly additional precipitation in the Carolinas, Oklahoma, and parts of Texas would be of benefit to the growing crop.

COTTON.

Opinions are quite likely to be diversified as to whether or not bulls have partly relinquished their hold on the old crop months by liquidating during the past week, but, irrespective of opinions, it is undeniable that they have given but meagre support to the list. Bearish sentiment has been augmented as a result, and there was considerable selling by trailing longs, the near months showing declines of over ½c per pound from the high levels scored in the early part of the current month. Divergent views are also expressed as to the meaning of the recession, but with all there are few authorities who care to intimate that the bulls are contemplating abandoning their position entirely.

It has been freely commented upon, however, that the short interest was undoubtedly materially reduced, while at no time has there been much incentive for an increase in short selling until recently. The failure of bullish week-end figures to attract other than passing attention is indicative of a general belief that supplies for the balance of the season are light, but also that the price level is such as to warrant caution prior to becoming bullish on the anticipated scarcity. Furthermore, the Southern spot situation and conditions at Manchester, factors which were the mainstay of the bulls for several months, are of a different aspect. The present curtailment in the American trade circles naturally reduces the demand from American spinners to a minimum, and official cables from abroad have indicated some slackening there. While without a doubt foreign spinners are sold up for several months, in view of the current discounts of our new crop options and their fairly liberal supplies they cannot be expected to be desirous of carrying cotton bought at around prevailing levels into next season. These conditions reflect at Southern points, and it has been commented upon that the demand at the South when July was above 16c did not increase so as to have appreciable effect on values, while at present, with the future market ½c a pound lower for the spot options and Southern markets a shade lower, demand is still extremely limited. Of course the small amount of cotton pointed this way at present to be applied on delivery is indicative of some confidence in higher prices, and also far from burdensome supplies there, but there are still several weeks for cotton to be shipped.

The new crop deliveries have displayed an undertone of firmness that has been decidedly impressive. While admittedly crop prospects will have much to do in shaping fluctuations in those options, there seems to be a disposition to minimize the importance of optimistic crop accounts, yet those that are less favorable commend unusual attention. This tendency, it is believed, is due to the supposition that so far farmers have shown little disposition to sell new crop cotton, while trade interests have shown their desire to purchase conservatively. On this account, as an offset to the optimistic outlook entertained relative to the probable crop in many quarters, the bulls emphatically declare that trade conditions are showing sufficient improvement in domestic quarters, while activity abroad is not expected to show much diminution, so that a large crop will be a necessity next season.

Many contradictory crop accounts came to light last week, but, withal, aside from scattered localities, it would appear as though prospects have been well maintained. Complaints are confined mainly to the areas in the Carolinas and Oklahoma, also the northern sections of Texas, all of which districts would welcome precipitation. The Journal of Commerce reports from its correspondents to date have been quite favorable on all the States east of the Mississippi, indicating generally an improved condition percentage, as compared with last year, and an increment in acreage. The deficient rainfall, however, in the Carolinas is referred to. The National Ginners' Association was also said to have issued a report placing the condition of cotton at 85 and the increased acreage at 5 per cent. While this was not authentic, it appeared to be about in line with what many authorities are expecting the Government report to show, although some interests were of the opinion that a condition of 85 will be found to be a trifle high. On June 2 the Government report will be made public and will compare with a condition of 82 per cent. last June, when the area sown was 33,418,000 acres. Of course, with the many vicissitudes that the crop will be compelled to encounter following this report, deductions on the acreage and condition with the average yield of a series of years cannot be convincing. The crop at present is thought to be rather late in some sections, which may or may not be made up, while the boll weevil will probably be a factor, as will torrential rains or drought reports, and lastly the possibilities of frost at the end of the season. The improved methods of cultivation, however, this year, together with a larger increase in area, are naturally factors which will surely offset a certain percentage of present and prospective crop complaints.

The American visible supply, according to The Chronicle, is now 1,976,000 bales, against 1,993,000 a year ago. The amount brought into sight is 11,228,000 bales, against 9,841,000 last year. Exports are 7,140,000 bales, against 5,524,000 in 1910. Stocks at Great Britain are 913,000 bales, against 696,000 last year, and at the Continent 489,000 bales, against 526,000 a year ago. At American ports the stock left is 349,000 bales, against 566,000 last year, and at interior points 215,000 bales, against 250,000 last year.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to:

6,795. DRUGGISTS' SUPPLIES.—An American Consul in Greece reports that a druggist in his district, doing an extensive business, desires to be put in touch with American firms manufacturing antiseptic cotton, antiseptic gauze of all kinds, bandages, chemical products, and other goods for pharmacies.

6,796. MEN'S FURNISHING GOODS.—A merchant in a European country informs an American Consulate that he is anxious to correspond with an American firm exporting men's hats, cuffs, collars, ties, and general haberdashers' lines of goods. This firm has been long established and does a good business.

6,797. CITRON.—A report from an American Consulate in Greece states that a firm in that country desires to establish relations with American firms importing citron. Correspondence in French.

6,798. PORT IMPROVEMENTS.—An American minister in a Latin-American country reports that the plans for certain port improvements, prepared by the Port Commission, have been completed and public bids have been asked for. There will be constructed the necessary levels of ground indispensable for the working of the port, also warehouses for merchandise and a building for the Custom House. Later on, as the necessities of commerce require, there will be constructed new docks or wharves. The estimated cost of the works is about $3,744,000.

6,799. DOORS AND SASH.—One of the commercial agents of the Department of Commerce and Labor reports that a well-established business house in Turkey, with a large and varied clientele, desires to arrange with American manufacturers of doors and sash for exhibition and sale of those articles at various points in that country, in which much building is in progress and in prospect.

6,800. COTTON YARNS AND THREAD.—An American Consulate in the Levant has been requested by a firm of prominent thread importers in that region to place it in communication with American manufacturers and exporters of certain kinds of cotton yarns and thread, similar to samples which have been submitted. This market consumes more than $500,000 worth of this particular article annually for the weaving of cotton cloth. The same firm also desires to make connections for the purchase of certain cotton, "filet glace," which is used for the warp of cotton goods woven locally, and of which there is a consumption of about $50,000 worth per annum.

6,801. CALIFORNIA DRIED FRUITS.—A business man in Germany informs an American Consul that he desires to get in touch with firms in the United States exporting California dried fruits. Correspondence in German preferred.

6,802. SPECIFICATIONS FOR BIDS FOR POSTAGE STAMPS.—The Bureau of Manufactures is in receipt of a communication from a Consular officer of a foreign country requesting the names of American lithographers. He is anxious to secure specifications for bids for an issue of postage stamps, which his Government will order in the near future.

6,803. GLUCOSE.—An American Consul in the United Kingdom reports that a business house in his district has applied for a list of firms in the United States engaged in the manufacture of glucose. This firm desires to form connections with American manufacturers, and would like to hear from such concerns as soon as possible.

6,804. MACHINES FOR CUTTING AND DRESSING GRANITE BLOCKS.—A reliable business house in the Near East informs a commercial agent of the Department of Commerce and Labor that it desires to receive communications from builders of machines for cutting and dressing granite blocks used in street paving. Descriptions of methods of treating the blocks, and operations of the machines, together with illustrations and prices free on board, New York, should be given.

NEW YORK TRAINS ON TIME.

During Three Years 83.4 Per Cent. Kept to Their Schedules.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 28.—Past performances of railroad trains for the three years in which the up-State Public Service Commission has kept a record of their running make the excellent record of 83.4 per cent on time. For the year ended March 31, 1909, there were 650,592 trains, or an average of 54,216 trains per month, run on the steam railroads of the State. For the year ended March 31, 1910, there were 703,816 trains, or an average of 58,651½ trains per month. And for the year ended March 31, 1911, there were 758,833 trains, or an average of 63,236 trains per month. The total number of trains run for the three years was 2,113,241, an average of 58,701 trains per month.

The average delay for each late train for the three years was 25.96 minutes, and the average delay for each train run during the three years was 4.47 minutes. The principal causes of delay were as follows:

	Average per cent.
Waiting for trains on other divisions	32.6
Train work at stations	14.3
Waiting for train connections with other railroads	13.0
Trains ahead	7.5
Engine failures	7.1
Meeting and passing trains	6.3
Wrecks	5.7

The number of trains run for the three years in New York State follows:

Month.	1908-09	1909-10	1910-11
May	43,350	58,197	59,065

Cornell Mansion Sold.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 28.—Llenroc, the mansion built in 1868 by Ezra Cornell, founder of Cornell University, has been sold by his daughters, Miss Mary Cornell and Mrs. Emma Blair, to the Cornell Chapter of the Delta Phi Fraternity. It is understood the price was $100,000.

The grounds cover seven acres, and the mansion commands an imposing view of the lake and valley.

CUMULATIVE 7% FIRST PREFERRED STOCK

Guaranteed both as to Principal and Dividends

BY American Type Founders Co.

Preferred both as to dividends and assets. Redeemable at option of the company in whole or in part on any dividend date, at $110 per share plus accrued dividends. Dividends payable quarterly: February, May, August and November.

Capitalization.

First Preferred Stock..............	$1,250,000
Second Preferred Stock............	750,000
Common Stock	1,000,000

No Bonded Indebtedness.

We consider the First Preferred Stock of Barnhart Brothers & Spindler a safe and attractive investment. Our opinion is based upon the following facts summarized from the accompanying letters of W. H. French, Presidentof Barnhart Brothers & Spindler of New Jersey, and R. W. Nelson, President of American Type Founders Company, and the report of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company:

I. This company has no mortgage indebtedness and no bonds can be placed upon its property or assets except with the written consent of 75% of the outstanding Preferred Stock.

II. As security for this stock there are net assets of more than $8,000,000, of which the net quick assets, alone—of Barnhart Brothers & Spindler—amount to over $1,250,000.

III. Net profits of the past ten years, available for dividends, have averaged over five times the 7% dividends on this First Preferred Stock.

IV. It is contracted and guaranteed that the net quick assets of Barnhart Brothers & Spindler shall at all times amount to at least 100% of the outstanding First Preferred Stock.

V. The Guarantor company, in addition to the regular 7% dividends on its $2,000,000 Preferred Stock, has paid continuously for the past twelve years 4% dividends on its $4,000,000 Common Stock.

The majority of the above issue having been sold, we offer the balance for subscription at 101%. Subscription books will be opened Wednesday, May 31, 1911, at 10 A. M. and closed at noon the same day, or earlier. The right is reserved to allot a smaller amount than that applied for, or to reject any application in whole or in part.

TO THE HOLDERS OF THE KENTUCKY FIRST MORTGAGE 5% SINKING FUND GOLD BONDS OF THE CONSOLIDATION COAL COMPANY

Secured by its Kentucky First Mortgage, or Deed of Trust, dated December 1, 1908.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that THE CONSOLIDATION COAL COMPANY will redeem ALL of its outstanding Kentucky First Mortgage 5% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds on the first day of June, 1911, that being a semi-annual interest date, in accordance with the provisions contained in the Kentucky First Mortgage or Deed of Trust, dated December 1st, 1908, from The Consolidation Coal Company to The Fidelity Trust Company, (Baltimore, Md.,) Trustee.

Said bonds will be redeemed and payment therefor made at the office of The Fidelity Trust Company, Trustee, 200 N. Charles Street, Baltimore, Md., or at the office of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, 28 Nassau Street, New York City, New York, the place at which said bonds and the interest coupons thereto attached are made payable.

Holders of the said bonds are notified to present them for payment at the office of the Trustee or of said Guaranty Trust Company of New York, on the first day of June, 1911, at which time and place they will receive, as provided in said Kentucky First Mortgage or Deed of Trust:

105% of the face or Par value of each bond with accrued interest to June 1st, 1911, at which date all interest on said bonds will cease.

Dated at Baltimore, Maryland, the 21st day of February, 1911.

J. H. WHEELWRIGHT,
President, The Consolidation Coal Co.

The Company having deposited funds with the Guaranty Trust Company of New York for the redemption of the above bonds, holders thereof may present them to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, 28 Nassau Street, New York City, at any time on or after this date, and will receive therefor 105 and accrued interest.

T. K. STUART,
Assistant Treasurer.

A HOME ON THE HUDSON.

Always a Seat for You—On Fast Electric Train Service

ALONG THE HUDSON PARK appeals to the discriminating—to those of taste and refinement tired of the city artificial, who long for nature, beautiful roads of macadam amidst lovely homes with gardens of flowers or vegetables, boating on the Hudson, tennis and golf near at hand, joyous outdoor life of freedom; private or public schools conveniently available—a choice community overlooking the majestic sweep of the Hudson; a suburb beautiful within the city limits, possessing all New York City advantages of comfort, protection, service, and convenience of transit.

ALONG THE HUDSON PARK, commanding a beautiful river view, is divided into building plots of 1-3 of an acre and up, restricted to houses of at least $10,000, representing a total outlay of about $20,000 for an ideal home and grounds.

Visit this section for an afternoon of rest, where nature still riots among the trees.

Send for illustrated booklet, "SOMETHING DIFFERENT," with a breath of outdoors in its leaves for you.

TO BUY RESIDENTIAL
Ocean and Bay Frontage
IN NEW YORK CITY

Neponsit
is a year-round home settlement, restricted to residences. Lying to the west of the Rockaways, between the Ocean and Jamaica Bay, it is THE LAST OCEAN BEACH PROPERTY IN NEW YORK CITY offered for residence. Its ample home sites combine suburban advantages with a location nearer to business, both in distance and time, than the upper part of Manhattan. Rapid transit and frequent trains are provided by the Long Island Railroad. 35 MINUTES FROM PENNSYLVANIA TERMINAL, MANHATTAN, or 28 minutes from Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn. An appropriation of $1,000,000 by the City and Federal Governments for the Jamaica Bay Improvement confirms the belief of experts that the greatest development of New York in the next decade will be in that section of the city.

$500,000 Improvements
Seven miles of macadam streets, including two miles of Boulevards and Parkways, are being made with concrete curbing, cement sidewalks and electric lights. The Sanitary Sewer System, designed by John Middleton, C. E., was approved by Lederle & Provost, the firm of Sanitary Engineers of which Dr. E. J. Lederle, Health Commissioner under Mayor Gaynor, was a member, and also by the State Board of Health. Water and gas mains have been laid throughout the property. A $25,000 Club House has been designed for the Bay Front at the Anchorage, on which work will begin on August 1st. A New York City Public School and two Churches serve this community.

The Ocean Park
The beach frontage at NEPONSIT is dedicated as an Ocean Park to the lot owners, and the deeds protect against any encroachments. Sixty lots in the centre of the property have been reserved for business. Reasonable Restrictions insure spacious grounds and attractive houses. NEPONSIT has no land breezes. It is 10 degrees to 15 degrees cooler in summer and 10 to 15 degrees warmer in winter than Manhattan. It has the benefit of the same climatic influences as Atlantic City.

Bathing; Athletics
The finest surf of the purest waters on the Atlantic coast is offered on the one side, with still water bathing in the Bay on the other. Nowhere are there better waters for yachting, motor boating, rowing and fishing. Tennis courts are being built on the property.

Neponsit's Backing
Interested in the development of this property, as majority owners, are the Realty Associates—paid in capital $5,000,000—the largest and best known realty concern in Brooklyn. The Company has put its own capital into the improvements and is offering no "bonds" for sale. Title insured without expense to the purchaser by the Title Guarantee & Trust Company, capital and surplus $15,500,000.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

NEW YORK SUPREME COURT, NEW YORK COUNTY.—KATE L. NUGENT, Plaintiff, against HENRY L. DAVIS and ANNIE S. DAVIS, his wife, FRANK DRECHSEL, EMILY A. DAVIS, WILLIAM A. FERGUSON, as Assignee of said Henry L. Davis, under a General Assignment for the benefit of Creditors, and LAFRENZ W. GOOSS, Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above entitled action, bearing date the 15th day of May, 1911, and entered and filed in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York, May 16, 1911, I, the undersigned, the Referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 12th day of June, 1911, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Bryan L. Kennelly, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot of land, situate in the Borough of the Bronx, City of New York, being part of Lots Nos. 23 and 24 on a certain map entitled "Map of Mount Pleasant" being a subdivision of Plots 1, 2, 3 and 4 of the Abraham Bassford Estate, in the Village of Tremont, Westchester County, New York, filed in the office of the Register of the County of Westchester, January 25th, 1871, and being bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the northerly side of Burnside Avenue, distant 90.91 feet westerly from the corner formed by the intersection of the said northerly side of Burnside Avenue and the westerly side of Bassford Place as shown on said map, (now as widened, Ryer Avenue;) thence northerly parallel with Ryer Avenue, 73.71 feet; thence westerly at right angles with Ryer Avenue 24 feet; thence southerly parallel with Ryer Avenue 58.03 feet to the northerly side of Burnside Avenue; thence easterly along the northerly side of Burnside Avenue 28.71 feet to the point or place of beginning.

Being the same premises heretofore conveyed by Frank P. Lockwood and wife to Henry L. Davis, by Deed, dated, July 20th, 1896, and recorded in the office of the Register of the County of New York, July 21, 1896, in Liber 23 of Conveyances, Sec. 11, at page 495.

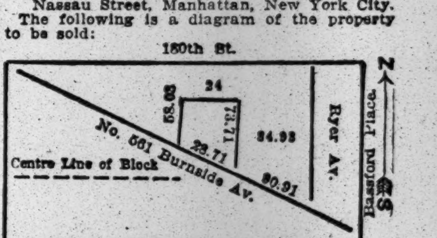
JAMES OLIVER, Referee.
SAMUEL CROOK, Attorney for Plaintiff, 93 Nassau Street, Manhattan, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge, to satisfy which the above described property is to be sold, is four thousand one hundred ninety-six and sixty-seven one-hundredths dollars, ($4,196.67,) with interest thereon from May 6th, 1911, together with costs and allowance amounting to two hundred and thirty-nine and ninety-one one-hundredths dollars, ($239.91,) with interest from May 6, 1911, together with the expenses of sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments and water rates or other liens, which are to be paid by the Referee out of the purchase money, is ninety-three and thirty-seven one-hundredths dollars, ($93.37,) and interest.

Dated, New York, May 19th, 1911.
JAMES OLIVER, Referee.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—JOSEPH J. BRADY, Plaintiff, against WILLIAM HAUPTMANN et al., Defendants.

In pursuance of an interlocutory judgment of partition and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 19th day of April, 1911, and of an order duly made and entered therein, bearing date the 25th day of May, 1911, I, the undersigned, the Referee in said judgment and order named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 20th day of June, 1911, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All those certain lots, plot, pieces, or parcels of land, with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, City, County, and State of New York, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the southerly side of One Hundred and Fourth Street, distant ninety-three (93) feet four inches easterly from the corner formed by the easterly side of First Avenue and the southerly side of One Hundred and Fourth Street; running thence southerly parallel with First Avenue, and part of the distance through a party wall, one hundred (100) feet eleven (11) inches to the centre line of the block; thence easterly along said centre line of the block one hundred and nineteen (119) feet eight (8) inches; thence northerly and again parallel with First Avenue one hundred (100) feet eleven (11) inches to the southerly side of One Hundred and Fourth Street; thence westerly along the same, one hundred and nineteen (119) feet eight (8) inches, to the point or place of beginning, said premises being known by the street numbers 404 to 412 East 104th Street, both inclusive.

MICHAEL J. EGAN, Referee.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold; its street Number is 404 to 412 East 104th Street, both inclusive:

CUT IN STEEL BARS NO AID TO BUSINESS

Trade Stunned by Prospect of Open Market and Buying Has Practically Stopped.

OTHER LINES STILL FIRM

Changes Looked For After To-day's Conference Between Steel Corporation Officials and the Independents.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, May 28.—Intimations that the sensational cut of $3 a ton in merchant bars announced the middle of last week by the Republic Iron and Steel Company and promptly met by the Steel Corporation and independents in this district was a cut-and-dried plot to counteract the effect of the present Federal investigation into the "controlled" market in steel is not borne out by the incidents that attended the Gates interests' coup on last Wednesday.

The genuineness of the Republic's declaration of sales department "aggressiveness" is attested by the fact that the action is against all the preachings and established policy of the Steel Corporation. It came at a most embarrassing time for the Steel Corporation and independents, all the interests in this district having opened their books early in the week for the contracts of the agricultural interests for their twelve months' supply of bars beginning July 1. These contracts are generally closed late in April or early in May. This year their closing was delayed by the leading producers in the hope that the market would show an upward tendency during the fag end of the Spring season.

The Steel corporation and the independents, including the Republic Company, had begun taking reservations on this agricultural bar business on the basis of $1.40, Pittsburg mill, but with the mills positively guaranteeing the buyers against any market decline. Into the midst of these negotiations came the Republic's announcement of a cut of $3 a ton to $1.25, mill, and the buying movement for agricultural bars was thrown into dire confusion. Contracts closed only two days before were on application of the buyers readjusted on the $1.25 basis. Buying in this line has stopped till the market shows a more coherent tone.

Preparations for the announcement of the cut were made with the utmost caution. It is related in steel circles here that the Gates Company has had long-distance telephone wires connected to practically every selling centre east of the Mississippi River at which it maintains offices in order that the announcement might be made simultaneously. It was not till the following day that rival interests got the situation sufficiently untangled to give the necessary orders to their selling agents to meet the cut.

Steel men are discussing another phase of the situation—the fact that the Republic Iron and Steel Company within the last thirty days has completed an immense new open-hearth steel plant at Lansingville, just out of Youngstown, Ohio, and turned out its first steel at the new furnaces less than a fortnight before the reduction was announced. Crude steel was notoriously weak in this district, and there seemed no immediate demand in sight for the product of the new plant. The idea is ventured that the cut in merchant bars, the most likely line in which to make a "killing" in new business, may have been dictated by a desire to make a good showing for the new Ohio operation.

Instead of encouraging the closing of merchant-bar contracts, however, the effect has been to stop practically all buying. The market for several days was stunned by the first indication of "open market" conditions since early last year, and the buying movement may not be resumed for a week or two.

Contrary to all predictions, the cut in merchant bars did not affect other lines of merchant, jobbing, plate, and structural mill products. There is shading here and there by small producers in all these products, particularly in plates; and low fabricating contracts have been made in a number of instances during the last month at prices that indicate the ability of somebody to buy heavy structural stuff at a shade under the 1.40-cent minimum. But the alignment of producers on this product has not changed an iota in the last week. If any corresponding cut is made in structural and plate products, announcement probably will be made at the close of to-morrow's conference of Steel Corporation and independents in New York City.

There seemed to be danger that the valley pig iron market would hit the toboggan early in the week, when the action of certain Southern iron producers in selling iron at $10.50, Birmingham, for delivery over the entire last half of the year, was noised about the district. Heretofore the minimum on standard Southern brands for Ohio delivery has been $10.50 for prompt, $10.75 for third quarter, (on only a few known sales,) and $11 for entire last half. Almost simultaneously came the news of the shading of Virginia irons by the leading producer in that section, the Virginia Coal and Iron Company, to $12.25 at furnace—a cut of 75 cents from its former minimum for third quarter.

The situation was saved by valley producers acting in concert. The Birmingham price was quoted in Southern Ohio, which brought the tonnage directly in competition with valley irons. The effect of the reduction in Virginia was more sentimental, but none the less difficult to overcome.

Basic iron alone showed a drop in valley markets, declining to $14, delivered, Pittsburg, which is equivalent to $13.10 at valley furnace, on several small sales for prompt and near-by deliveries. All these sales were by middlemen, however, producers holding to a minimum of $13.25, valley furnace.

The last bona fide open-market sale of valley basic into Ohio by producers was a fortnight ago, when 5,000 to 10,000 tons changed hands at $14, delivered Alliance, Ohio, which is about $13.25, valley furnace. The new low prices of Southern iron are bound to affect the local market before long unless there comes a speedy turn for the better, according to local predictions.

What tonnages of foundry iron from valley furnaces changed hands during the week (and they were small, on account of the market's unsettled state) showed a price of $13.75 at valley furnace for prompt or third quarter. Malleable was distinctly weaker, with offers of $13.50, furnace, a decline of 50 cents from the high point of last month. In Bessemer iron there were absolutely no announcements of sales. It is suspected that the official monthly averages in both Bessemer and basic grades, when they are issued the latter part of this week, will show one or two surprises in realized prices on sales.

TO TAX PET DOGS HOME FROM ABROAD

Government Finds Authority to Impose Duty on American Animals Brought Back.

AIMED AT BORDER BUSINESS

Contractor Who Used Teams on Mexican Side Made to Pay—Now Will Be Applied in All Cases.

The Treasury Department has discovered another clause in the tariff law by which the Nation's revenue may be increased. This is a clause under which those sending abroad American-born animals must pay duty upon their return to this country. It will principally affect those sending racing strings across the Atlantic and those taking pet dogs over and back. Collector Loeb has received from Washington a department order calling his attention to the law, and consequently on June 1 it will be enforced here.

The decision to put the heretofore unapplied clause of the law into effect follows a decision of the United States District Court in Texas. An American contractor had been working many horses and mules on the other side of the Mexican border. When the revolution came in that country he brought his stock back into Texas. The customs officials sought to collect duty upon it. This the contractor resisted. The case went to the courts, and the Government won.

Section 500 of the free list of the Tariff act of 1909 provides under what conditions articles of American make can be returned duty free after exportation. This free list includes "articles the growth, produce, or manufacture of the United States, not including animals, when returned after having been exported. * * *"

The "not including animals" is the clause under which the present action is taken. It was included in the law for the purpose of preventing those on the border obtaining a revenue from their animals in a foreign country and then bringing them back without the Government sharing in the revenue derived from such foreign service. They probably contemplated, customs experts say, the application of the law in this spirit and not to the letter. Not long ago the Treasury Department, keeping to the letter of the law, confined the $100 duty free limit allowed every resident returning from abroad to embrace simply articles of personal necessity. A storm of protest arose, and the order was soon rescinded.

Under the tariff law foreign-bred animals can be brought in duty free provided they are for breeding purposes, but these must be of blue blood for in excluding them from the payment of duty the law contemplates the improving of our own live stock. Such animals may be also brought in without the payment of duty for exhibition purposes, provided they are placed in bond.

Collector Loeb would not discuss the new order yesterday except to say that he would enforce it. He, as well as other men in the service, make it plain that they are in no sense responsible for its promulgation and some even go so far as to call it a very foolish attempt to collect a duty not contemplated by those who framed the Tariff act.

The new order is viewed with dissatisfaction by those in the ranks who have to do the actual collection of duties. Already, under the rigorous administration of affairs at this port, their duty is by no means pleasant. It will be less so when they have to insist upon the payment of duty upon dogs and other animal pets returned after a trip abroad. The aristocratic canines will probably resist being appraised no less than will their owners resist their appraisal. The customs men hope that some one will appeal a case and force the department to withdraw the new order.

New Restaurant in the Shanley Family

Patrick and Andrew Shanley, the two younger of the four Shanley brothers, announced yesterday that they will open a new restaurant next Thursday on the site of the Old Curiosity Shop, in West Forty-second Street. The restaurant will seat about 250 guests on the ground floor and another 100 in a balcony.

The Washburn-Crosby Company's famous Gold Medal Flour has all the bread, biscuit, cake, and pastry-making qualities of the finest wheat concentrated in it. It bakes more to the pound than other flour, saves money as well as the extra work and worry occasioned by the use of flour of less uniform quality. That is why knowing housewives always demand it.
